THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Break—Call Money 3½ @4 Per Cent.

San Francisco Catastrophe, Coal Road Situation, and "Beef Message" Factors.

Prices at the opening of yesterday's stock market broke sharply, many issues falling 2 points or more upon the news of the early morning catastrophe at San Francisco, and the influence of this disaster, augmented as it was by other unfavorable developments, including the firm reply of the anthracite operators, the engagement of a successful inquisitor by the Department of Justice for its crusade against the Eastern oil and coal corporations, and the President's extraordinary message to Congress anent the beef trust case, dominated the market throughout the day, causing maximum declines of 3 or more points in such issues as Union Pacific, Amadgamated Copper, and Reading, and provoking general liquidation of stock holdings. In the absence of definite information as to the extent of the damage to property and business interests in San Francisco, Wall Street was compelled to rely upon such bulletins as came to hand over private wires and through news agencies, and confused and shocked, it was disposed to accept at full value these thoroughly unsettling reports. They may prove to have been exaggerated, but even yesterday it was possible to work out some of the consequences upon financial markets; thus the loss caused to the railroad companies through the destruction of shops, water towers, equipment of one kind and another, and diminished traffic, as well as the damage resulting from the burning of business properties, must be large, while of more immediate importance to this market is the practical certainty that large transfers of currency must be made to the ravaged city to assist in its reconstruction. It was natural, therefore, that these matters should be reflected in securities most closely affected, as in the United Railways, the traction system of San Francisco, the stock of which fell from 92 to 64, recovering later to 77, and in Atchison, Southern Pacific, and Union Pacific, all of which roads enter the city.

Declines elsewhere through the list of active stocks, while brought about in large measure by the depressed sentiment of the day, would, in all probability, have occurred had there been no earthquake, for the other developments of the day were, in a stock market sense, only little less unfavorable. Thus, the President's message to Congress and the activity of the Department of Justice in the matter of the coal roads investigation, convinced Wall Street that even with the closing of the present session of Congress there will be no let-up in the campaign against corporations, while the tenor of the anthracite operators' formal reply to the miners was anything but an assurance that there will be no coal strike. The liquidation provoked by these various matters brought about the heaviest volume of trading witnessed on the Stock Exchange in many days, but at no time was the selling so urgent as to create an impression of real unsoundness. Late in the day there were rather general recoveries from the extreme low prices, but these were in most cases little more than fractional, and substantial losses marked the closing.

In the money market, rates for call funds were again easy, while those for time loans were a trifle higher, owing, of course, to the day's developments. Following a slight increase in discount rates at London and Paris, demand sterling rose some 15 points. A loss of $216,000 by the banks to the Sub-Treasury was the first reported for some days, but in all the banks have gained since Friday $16,680,000.

JAMES J. HILL'S PLANS FOR CANADIAN ROADS

Says His Projects There Have Been Much Exaggerated.

HIS CONTEST WITH HARRIMAN

The Hill Canadian Line to Cover 1,300 Miles Instead of 3,000, as Reported.

James J. Hill, who has just returned to this city after an absence of a number of weeks, gave a reporter of THE TIMES yesterday the first definite public statement which he has made in regard to the extent of his railroad projects in Canada. Mr. Hill said that these had been very much exaggerated in some recent accounts, and that what he was doing in Canada was merely carrying out work which he had undertaken some time ago. The total length of the lines in Canada, which he intends to build, Mr. Hill said, will be about 1,300 miles. He was reminded that it has been reported that the lines which he proposed building would amount, all told, to 3,000 miles.

"I do not know where I would put the 3,000 miles," Mr. Hill replied.

"Some accounts had it that you proposed continuing the line from the Pacific straight through to the Atlantic."

"That is not so," he said. "There is really nothing new in the work which we are doing in Canada. For the last two years we have been at work on a line from the Pacific Coast through the mountains in British Columbia, and we are now working on a line from Winnipeg westward. We are building the line from both ends, and by the time the Grand Trunk reaches Winnipeg—that is, perhaps in three or four years—we expect to have our line completed from Vancouver on the Pacific to Winnipeg."

Asked about the relations between this Canadian line and the Great Northern lines, Mr. Hill said:

"The Canadian line is really a distinct undertaking in many respects. The roads, of course, will co-operate, as there is a good deal of international business. At the same time our tariff laws are not favorable for the development of that country, and things in that respect are a little easier in Canada. In that part of the country there is one smelter on the American side, which has been there for some time. None has been added to it, although on the Canadian side seven new smelters have been built. This new line in Canada is really for the development of that country."

Mr. Hill was asked whether he meant to buy the rails for his new Canadian line in Canada in order to avoid the Canadian tariff on steel rails. He replied that probably foreign rails would be used.

He was inclined to treat lightly the reported contest between him and Mr. Harriman over the construction of new lines in the Northwest. All that he would say on this subject was:

"The contest is in a very small way, indeed. It is merely in regard to a certain right of way."

Mr. Hill denied all knowledge of any contest between himself and Mr. Harriman or any one else for the control of the Pacific Coast Company.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Further bear selling and light liquidation developed in Diamond Match shares on the local Exchange to-day, depressing the price from 132 to 130 before noon. As the special meeting for the consideration of the $1,000,000 new stock on May 1 approaches, shareholders of a speculative turn are giving more thought to the possible storm of queries which will break upon the Barber management. The pertinent question among these interests just now is why pay 10 per cent. dividends and increase the capital stock in order to cut down a debt practically incurred by these excessive dividend payments.

The tremor in Wall Street was not appreciable in the rest of the local list. Subway dipped from 56¾ to 55½ on a small scale, but rallied.

Brick eased to 55½ and rallied to around 56. Swift's eased off. Telephone sold all morning at 110. Edison went again at 154. Lake Street Elevated first mortgage bonds sold off a point, at 99.

New York exchange, 15 to 20c premium. Money, 5½ to 6 per cent. The list:

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Advance in Sheet Steel Expected—Heavy Steel Rail Orders.

Meetings of the steel associations in New York this week are not expected to bring about any change in the price of steel. Owing to the scarcity of the raw product in some quarters, an advance in sheet steel is looked for.

Steel rail orders since April 1 aggregate 180,000 tons, not including a large contract said to have been given to the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company for 1907 delivery. This company, according to The Iron Age, has taken a 42,000-ton order from Louisville & Nashville, an order for 25,000 tons from another road, and is negotiating the sale of 60,000 tons more.

Of the situation The Iron Age says:

> Reports from the leading interest indicate that there has been a more general resumption of buying. The congestion of the rail mills is growing more serious and is likely to have its effect on the general steel market, and indirectly upon the output of the rolling mills.
> There have been further sales of steel rails for 1906 delivery, among the larger orders being 25,000 tons for the Southern Pacific and 20,000 tons for the New York Central, in addition to former purchases.
>
> The prospect of an anthracite coal strike is having little effect on the market. The structural trade is quieter, notably so far as new buildings are concerned. It is admitted that the strike is having some effect. Among the large orders placed are 5,200 tons bridge work for the New York and Long Branch Railroad.
> It is estimated that the contracts of the bar mills with the Western implement makers aggregate from 175,000 to 200,000 tons. They were made on the basis of 1.40c Pittsburg, with the implement makers exclusively, and that figure has since been withdrawn.

LONDON, April 18.—Money was in fair demand in the market to-day and considerable sums changed hands in connection with the retirement of $5,000,000 of Exchequer bonds and the payment of $12,500,000 for London County Council bills. Discounts were firm.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet on the disquieting news from Natal and the heavy New York demand for gold. Consuls were easier at first but rallied at the close. Home Rails drooped.

Americans opened irregular, rose to above parity and sagged later, especially during the last hour on New York selling and closed weak.

Grand Trunk improved on the traffic returns but reacted later. Foreigners were dull on Paris selling in preparation for taking up the Russian loan.

Kaffirs were flat.

The Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railway Company operates a line of 337 miles of road running from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Chattanooga, Tenn., forming, with the Alabama Great Southern and the New Orleans & Northeastern, the "Queen & Crescent Route" from Cincinnati, Ohio, to New Orleans.

During the years from 1834 to 1905, according to figures from various records, railways aggregating 94,000 miles, on which there were outstanding about $60,000,000 of car-trust obligations, went into the hands of receivers. In every case the holders of the equipment notes were paid in full, without the loss of a dollar, even when the roads were in default upon their first mortgage bonds.

In the present case we wish to call attention to the strategic position of the road, and the financial strength of the property.

We have purchased the above bonds from the Railroad Co., and having sold over three-quarters of the issue, we offer the balance for sale at price to yield 4.90%

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Weakness on the Stock Exchange Affects Curb Market.

General Recessions of a Point or More in Leading Securities—Slight Rally at Close.

Sympathetically with the weakness on the Stock Exchange, as a result of the San Francisco calamity, the market for outside securities yesterday was feverish and depressed. Losses of a point were general and in some instances exceeded that amount. Opening figures were well under those of Tuesday evening and the movement of prices continued downward until near the close when a fractional rally occurred. United Copper led in activity and was offered down from 66⅝ to 65⅝, closing at 66¼; Butte coalition receded from 36⅛ to 35½, but recovered to 36¼; Copper Securities dropped from 38⅛ to 36 and closed without a rally. Nevada Consolidated was comparatively firm, its loss of ¾ to 19¼ being practically recovered before the close. Boston Consolidated declined from 24 to 23⅜, closing at 23⅞; British Columbia from 7½ to 7, closing at 7⅛; Gold Hill from 2 15-16 to 2⅝, closing at 2⅝; Union from 2⅜ to 2 and Greene from 31¼ to 30⅛, the two latter closing at their lowest figures.

Chicago Subway lost a point to 56, but rallied to 56⅝; Inter-Met. fell off from 53⅜ to 52½, and closed at 52⅞. Mackay Companies, common, which has been a recent strong feature, opened at 65, but the next sale was at 63¾, a loss of 1¼ points. It dropped half a point further to 63¼, closing with only a slight rally at 63⅜. Standard Oil on light sales lost 3½ points to 650. Baltimore and Ohio rights varied from 1½ to 1⅜.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The verdict among unbiased critics was that the stock market stood the test of the San Francisco disaster anybody could have expected. Doubtless if commission houses had been loaded up with stocks there would have been a much more serious break in prices.

***

At the close of trading the confusion of ideas was almost as great as at any time during the day. It seemed almost idle to speculate as to the effect of the San Francisco disaster in Wall Street when the extent of the disaster itself was still unknown. Fuller details might give the calamity a more or less horrible aspect over night. Another thing to be considered was that a secondary selling movement might follow a complete reading of the story by the country at large. The selling done yesterday was largely intended to anticipate the worst. Only a small proportion of it came from the public, and there is never any telling for sure how the public is going to be influenced by a startling piece of news. The opening this morning, therefore, is awaited with considerable anxiety. If it does not reflect an outside selling movement Wall Street will assume that the initial effect has passed. Western wire houses were among the heaviest sellers of stocks yesterday, the market's Western following being disposed, apparently, to take the matter in a very serious light.

The market contended yesterday with an uncommonly forbidding set of influences. Politically, there was the news from Washington that Charles E. Hughes, who conducted the "insurance inquisition" here in New York, had been retained to perform a like service for the Government in its investigation of the coaler railroads, and also that the President would send to Congress during the day a special message dealing with one phase of the corporation subject. There was also the news that negotiations for amicably terminating the coal strike were at an end, at least so far as the operators were concerned.

Overwhelming everything else, of course, was the dramatic fragmentary news from San Francisco. The coaler railroad stocks were sold on the news from Washington and on the growing prospect of an anthracite strike, while Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison, and other of the so-called transcontinental railroad stocks were sold on the disaster at San Francisco. In addition to the selling thus particularly influenced, there was general and indiscriminate liquidation, much of it coming from houses of highly speculative tendencies. The market opened down sharply, with severe weakness in the issues named, and was throughout the session in that condition which traders describe when they say that "the market is full of stocks." In the afternoon stop-loss orders began to be uncovered. The buying at the lowest prices was pronounced to be better than the selling by brokers who examined it closely.

***

Houses that did not carry their stocks through the tight money period had an opportunity yesterday to replace their lines. It is doubtful, however, if they improved the opportunity to any extent. Such buying is commonly done only on rising prices, which is proof that brokers are subject to the same weakness as their clients, and that speculative human nature is all of one piece.

***

The news from San Francisco awaited the Wall Street community and took it completely by surprise. There was not the slightest inkling of it in the newspapers which were read on the way down town. The beginning of it was found on the news tickers and in the news slips shortly before the opening of the market. The disposition at first was to hold that the thing was being grossly exaggerated, but the terrible story, instead of shrinking, grew with each new bulletin, so that those who would not act on impulse and sell stocks at the opening fared worse, if they sold at all, than those who took the worst for granted at the outset and tumbled out of their stocks.

***

The recent Baltimore fire occurred on Sunday. On the following Monday news was received of the beginning of the war between Russia and Japan, and on the same day, too, a bull panic occurred in the cotton market. Stocks broke very violently, losses of 2½ to 4 points occurring abruptly in the active issues, and at the close of Monday's trading Wall Street was exceedingly blue. Contrary to general expectations, the selling movement was not resumed on Tuesday morning; instead, prices recovered all around. Commenting at the end of the week upon this phenomenon one chronicler said: "The next day, Tuesday, although the general sentiment the night before foreboded a panicky time ahead, affording a great chance for bargains at the Wall Street Exchange, the whole interpretation of the affair had in the morning materially changed. The truth is that the public is in a more hopeful mood now, and, hence, instead of accepting unfavorable circumstances at their worst, as it would have done six or eight weeks previously, appeared after a night's rest with its views clarified and its nerves steadied."

***

There will be an opportunity this morning to judge, if the public is still in that hopeful mood, to see whether, instead of accepting unfavorable circumstances at their worst, it will appear, "after a night's rest, with its views clarified and its nerves steadied." Probably the appetite for bargains is not as keen as it was in February, 1904, or rather, prices are so much higher than they were then that real bargains are not nearly so likely to appear.

***

A large Philadelphia bull interest in Brooklyn Rapid Transit has been liquidated this week. Selling of this origin served yesterday to accentuate the stock's weakness.

***

The out-of-town correspondents of Wall Street brokerage houses have been urgent of late in their requests for news of speculative value, saying, in support of their demand for this sort of thing, that it is almost impossible for them to get people into the market; that their clients do not come in on the mere inducement of rising prices as clients should, and that perhaps it will be possible to get business out of them if they can be provided news of specific value. A broker who commented upon a request of this character yesterday said that it was rather new to him. In twenty-odd years' experience as a broker he had never known a time before when people who trade on margins were so unresponsive to fluctuations. In a collateral vein, a very prominent house remarks: "The disposition to follow every bull rumor, and to indorse all kinds of schemes, no matter how vague, is distinctly lacking at this time." The market itself testifies to the absence of speculative enthusiasm, but there are experienced operators who confidently believe that it can be revived.

***

There is now much doubt and perplexity concerning the Amalgamated Copper dividend. Some think it will be unchanged, others that it will be the regular dividend, with one-quarter of 1 per cent. extra, and others expect an increase to the rate of 7 per cent. But nobody seems to have any positive information on which to act. Some good traders would hardly know what to do with such information if they had it. Flower & Co. were reported to be buying the stock freely yesterday below 112.

***

The necessities of the Baltimore & Ohio are apparent when it has to anticipate the sale of new 5 per cent. common stock with a temporary loan of $9,000,000 for which it pays 6 per cent. This announcement has not been favorably received.

***

So far the Government's uncomfortable interest in the methods of the coaler railroads has been viewed in Wall Street with no apparent concern—none at least that has been reflected in the market quotations for these securities. Unfortunately, there were so many other factors at work yesterday that the coaler railroad stocks could not be regarded apart from the general weakness, and hence it is impossible to say in what degree their weakness was due to the appearance of Mr. Hughes in the rôle of investigator. It is by no means a new subject, having been at the surface several times before, but it begins to present some new phases, and it is now a question in serious minds whether the proposed investigation will not at least interfere with a bull campaign in this group of securities, especially in the Pennsylvania group, on which a good deal of bullish talk has lately been heard. Some argue that to bull these stocks in the face of such an investigation would smack of impudence, and might arouse a good deal of undesirable antagonism.

***

A prominent Wall Street critic questions the wisdom of permitting call money to rule at 3¾@4 per cent. so soon after a very serious money market stringency. He fears, for one thing, that it will cause the withdrawal of much outside money attracted here by the higher rates, as was the case in January, when, from rates that were almost prohibitive, money declined to rates that were abnormally low, as subsequent events have shown. In January, however, advantage was taken of the easy money to work up a big market on which many stocks were distributed.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—There was more activity in the local market to-day, but it was due almost wholly to several of the arbitrage stocks, United States Steel, Reading, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Pennsylvania, all of which were actively dealt in, especially the first named. Commission houses were liberal buyers of the stock. The anthracite coalers were under pressure most of the day, Lehigh Valley suffering most—2½ points; it recovered fractionally before the close. The selling was based wholly upon the promised investigation of the status of these roads.

Apparently, the Philadelphia Company issues were not disturbed by the great disaster at San Francisco or the break in United Railways Investment stocks, but this was due to the fact that no transaction occurred in them after the news became public. Until near the close not a single bid was made for any of the Philadelphia Company stocks except that an odd lot of the preferred sold at 49½. Cambria Steel was a shade lower, and Electric Storage Battery, on small sales, declined 1¾. Union Traction shaded off fractionally, while Westmoreland Coal was up a point. The remainder of the local list held steady.

Total sales, 33,847 shares.

Arkansas—Increasing cloudiness Thursday; rain and cooler at night and Friday.

Tennessee—Fair Thursday. Friday, rain and cooler.

The cotton market took on something of a midsummer aspect yesterday. Trading was listless throughout the greater part of the session. Most of the activity was manifested immediately after the opening. A break in the price of Egyptian spot started heavy liquidation in the Alexandrian market, which extended to Liverpool and New York. Together with this foreign selling the San Francisco earthquake shook out considerable cotton from the South and West, and Wall Street liquidated rather freely. There was some support apparent from the bull leaders, but this was thought to cover selling. The room was thought to have generally gone short.

With Liverpool 6 points lower, the local ring started 6 points under the previous close, May trading at 11.32, July at 11.23, and October at 10.60. A further decline followed, carrying May down to 11.27, July to 11.17, and October to 10.54, making the full decline 11 to 12 points. The market closed at practically the lowest prices of the day. The Liverpool spot market declined 3 points, to 6.21d., against 4.19d. last year, with sales of 8,000 bales, 7,000 of which were American. The Southern spot markets were quiet and unchanged. In New York spot prices were 5 points lower, at 11.85 for middling cotton, against 7.85 last year.

The firmness of Southern spot markets and the accumulating short interest is the bulls' standby. The bears are harping on the brightening crop prospects, and though some look for a round-up of the scattered short interests, they believe the latter will ultimately win. It all hinges, on the weather, however. Meanwhile the trade awaits the outcome of the May deal.

Estimated receipts for to-day are: Houston, 3,250 to 3,750 bales, against 2,426 last week and 4,930 last year; Galveston, 3,500 to 4,500 bales, against 2,940 last week and 6,996 last year; New Orleans, 3,000 to 4,000 bales against 3,207 last week and 3,963 last year; interior receipts were 7,914 bales, against 9,424 last week and 16,794 last year; shipments, 10,882 bales, against 10,484 last week and 19,823 last year; port receipts were 17,631 bales, against 23,887 last week and 31,994 last year; exports were 7,702 bales; port stocks are 702,790 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—The public cable accounts were better than called for by the American closing of the previous day. The bullish foreign news was supplemented by reports of light country offerings and a continued good demand for home consumption. The market opened ½c higher, but within a half hour the advance had all been lost under quick selling to secure profits on reports of exceptional weather in the belt. Again the market advanced sharply. The market was finally firm at ¼c net decline to ⅝c net advance. The market for cash wheat was too firm for general business. No. 2 red, 91½c nominal and 91⅝c free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 90⅝c.

CORN—Corn opened ½@⅝c lower under adverse cables and good weather conditions, returned to Tuesday's closing prices, with wheat, and became irregular, closing barely steady at net unchanged prices to a decline of ⅛c. Exporters took 24,000 bushels of corn. Cash corn closed steady as follows: No. 2, 57c elevator and 54⅞c free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 56c, and No. 2 yellow, 55⅞c free on board, afloat, all nominal.

TO REPORT FOWLER BILL.

Measure Regulating the Deposit of Public Moneys in National Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The House Committee on Banking and Currency agreed to-day to report favorably the Fowler bill, which makes important changes in the regulations governing the deposit of public moneys. A report to accompany the bill is being prepared, and the bill will come before the House at the earliest opportunity.

The proposed law strikes out of the Revised Statutes the provision which excludes the customs receipts from the sums distributed by the Secretary of the Treasury among designated banking institutions. As amended by the terms of the bill, which it is expected will be passed by both branches of Congress, the statute will read:

"All National banking associations designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury shall be depositaries of public moneys under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary, and they may also be employed as financial agents of the Government, and they shall perform all such reasonable duties as depositaries of public moneys and financial agents of the Government as may be required of them.

"Whenever the public moneys in the United States Treasury exceed in amount $50,000,000 the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deposit with National banking associations all such moneys without requiring special security therefor, as in his discretion may seem proper to prevent the absorption of money in the Treasury, always excepting the gold reserve held for the redemption of legal-tender notes.

"Such deposits shall be equitably distributed throughout the United States by the Secretary of the Treasury, and shall be a first lien upon the assets of the banks receiving them, and such banks shall pay interest at the rate of 2 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, upon the average balance thereof. The amount so deposited by the Secretary of the Treasury with any National banking association shall not exceed 25 per centum of the paid-up and unimpaired capital of such bank, and shall at all times be subject to the demands of the Secretary of the Treasury."

Legislation removing the restriction as to customs receipts has been the subject of widespread demand and members of the committee will make an earnest effort to have the provision speedily enacted into law.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 18.—The local money market continues to grow easier. Call loans, 5½@7 per cent.; time loans on collateral, 5½@6 per cent.; time loans on mercantile paper, 5½ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 6 per cent.; New York funds, 16 2-3c discount; clearings, $34,614,385; balances, $3,180,777; Sub-Treasury debit, $51,820.

There was considerable liquidation in the local market around the opening and this selling in turn reached stop-orders, resulting in lower prices all around. Amalgamated lost about 3 points, North Butte and Smelting over a point each, and the balance of the list in proportion.

There is considerable stock offering here at slightly above going prices, and little disposition on the part of local traders to increase their lines, but a great part of these offerings would undoubtedly be withdrawn should the New York market show any pronounced signs of strength. The closing was weak and at a slight advance from lowest prices for the day. To-morrow being a local holiday, there will be no session of the Exchange.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 18.—The money stringency is making itself very strongly felt in the local market. So far from Baltimore sending money to New York, as has been asserted at various times, the financial institutions of the city find considerable difficulty in providing at present for their own needs.

An official of one of the largest banking institutions to-day said that his concern was yesterday required to turn down certain gilt-edge applications for money simply because it was impossible to accommodate the customers.

Several of the local National banks report that they are lending as much money as they can offer at 6 per cent. According to reliable information, it is a serious task for the majority of the banking concerns to take up all the paper offered.

In the trading to-day the usually inactive issues held about normal. Houston Oil was active at lower prices, opening ¼ lower at 10 and breaking through to 9⅝, but recovering at the close to 10. The preferred dropped one point. Atlantic Coast Line rights sold at 5. Cotton Duck 5s were active at 86½. United Railways 4s changed hands liberally at 92⅝ and 92½. Seaboard ten-year 5s gained ⅝. Augusta Railway and Electric 5s advanced ½. There was a stronger tone toward the close.

Sales: Bonds, $70,500; stocks, 1,815 shares.

BALTIMORE & OHIO LOAN.

Road Borrows $9,000,000 to Meet 4½ Per Cent. Notes Due May 1.

It was announced yesterday that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad a few days ago borrowed $9,000,000 for three months at 6 per cent. from the National City Bank. The loan was negotiated to provide the road with funds while awaiting the receipt of the first payment on the new issue of $27,750,000 of common stock announced last week.

The loan, it is understood, is specifically for the purpose of paying off the $8,915,000 of 4½ per cent. notes of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which fall due May 1. The loan will in turn be paid off out of the proceeds of the new stock.

The loan is an ordinary time loan and not a note issue by the railroad company.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

CITY OF NEW YORK.
BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held March 2, 1906, the following petition was received:

To the Honorable Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York:

The petition of the Manhattan Refrigerating Company respectfully shows:

1. The said Manhattan Refrigerating Company is a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having its principal place of business at the northeast corner of West and Horatio Streets in the City of New York, and has built and is operating a large plant at that point for artificial refrigeration, conducting a cold storage warehouse and also a pipe line for the supply of customers in the market and others whose places of business front on the streets and avenues in the immediate vicinity. That it has for the period of about seven years maintained and operated in certain streets in The City of New York mains and pipes for the supply of mechanical refrigeration, and has supplied all acceptable customers along the said lines at reasonable rates.

2. The said Manhattan Refrigerating Company, by assignment, duly made to it by the Greenwich Refrigerating Company, is the sole owner of a certain franchise granted by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of The City of New York, approved by the Mayor April 8, 1890, and respectfully petitions your Honorable Board to grant a license to lay a conduit not more than twelve inches in diameter, to contain refrigerating pipes, extending from the intersection of Fourteenth Street and Tenth Avenue to Hudson Street; thence southerly along Hudson Street to Gansevoort Street, and thence westerly along Gansevoort Street to West Street, the said pipes to be laid under the surface of the streets, and branches in the intersecting streets west of Hudson Street.

3. That said pipes are to be used to convey brine, ammonia, or other refrigerating medium to connect with other pipes of the Manhattan Refrigerating Company at the terminal points. This company has a line of pipes used for said purpose extending along West Street and Tenth Avenue, from Horatio Street to Fourteenth Street, for the purpose of supplying to such customers as may desire the same refrigeration for properly insulated compartments for the preservation of meats and other perishable goods.

4. That the said district through which it is proposed to lay the said pipes is largely devoted to the meat and produce trade, and for the proper carrying on of which it is necessary to have refrigeration, and that this company has been requested by persons engaged in said business along said route to extend its lines and to supply such persons with refrigeration.

5. That should said permit be granted your petitioners will supply to all persons providing proper compartments or boxes and requiring the same, refrigeration at reasonable prices, and will save the City harmless from any loss or damage to any sewer, gas or water pipe, or from any cause that may arise from the exercise of the privilege so obtained by it, and will furnish such indemnity or security as the City may require to insure the faithful compliance with the conditions that it may see fit to impose upon your petitioner conditioned to the license applied for.

6. This company desires that the said franchise may continue for the priod of ten years from the date of granting the same, and the company offers to pay to the City as a reasonable compensation or tax therefor annually a sum equal to 2½ per cent. on the gross amount of receipts derived from the customers supplied by pipes to be laid under the proposed franchise, and also from any and all customers on its present lines, except the standholders of the new market, on which last named business this company is already paying a percentage of its gross receipts. The company further offers that the percentage of its gross receipts to be paid for said franchise after the period of five years shall be increased to 5 per cent. during the remainder of the term.

7. This company further petitions that it may have the right of option at the expiration of the said term of ten years to a further term of ten years upon paying a like tax of 5 per cent. upon the gross receipts from all its lines, as above specified, excepting the standholders in the new market.

8. That said proposed pipe line will not interfere with any fixtures or appurtenances forming part of the water mains, sewers, conduits, subways or sub-pavement fixtures of any kind, or of any sub-structures existing by virtue of any franchise heretofore granted, all of which appears from the map herewith submitted. The company will do all work under the said franchise under the directions of the proper officers and departments of the City Government, and will comply with all requirements thereof.

Wherefore your petitioner prays that such license and franchise be granted as aforesaid.

Dated New York, March 2, 1906.

POOLROOMS GET RACES BY BICYCLE EXPRESS

But Sources of Track News Are Nearly All Closed Up.

JOCKEY CLUB STOPS LEAKS

Race Numbers May Now Be Read Only from Grandstand—Poolrooms Talk of Going to Law.

A bicycle express, between the Aqueduct race track and the nearest available telephone at Ozone Park, was the most spectacular development yesterday in the conflict between the officials of The Jockey Club and the poolroom men. The bicycle express, with two men riding constantly between the track and Ozone Park, proved something of a puzzle to the race track police, who were not able to ascertain how the bicycle men got enough news to keep them so busy. The police were on the alert for signaling, but detected none of the track patrons in the act of wig-wagging. The theory advanced was that information was sent out by means of some secret code, which included combinations of natural gestures by the men stationed inside at the back of the grandstand, on the promenade overlooking the Long Island Railroad tracks. The method, judged by the movements of the bicycle express riders, seemed to be successful. As the messengers were outside the race track inclosure no attempt to interfere with them was made by the race track police.

The race track officials yesterday covered with white paper the right side of the number blocks which designate the official placing of the horses, and which ordinarily show numbers on three sides of a square. This was to prevent persons outside the track at the lower end of the grounds from reading the official placing through telescopes or field glasses. The numbers were still exposed on two sides, but as it was believed that poolroom correspondents outside the track got the official results by reading the numbers on the left side of the board, it was decided that that side, too, which faces the betting ring, shall be covered to-day, making the only display of numbers on the front of the board, where the results may be read from the grandstand only.

The poolrooms made a better show yesterday at furnishing their patrons with a service on the Aqueduct races than since the opening of the season on Monday. They posted what purported to be the track betting and gave the scratches, overweights, and added starters before each race was run, but in every poolroom was a sign which set forth that conditions were still unfavorable, and that the information posted was not reliable. The signs further advised prospective bettors that they might make their wagers subject to newspaper odds if they so desired. Players who did not insist upon newspaper odds were paid off on poolroom figures.

That the poolrooms are getting all the worst of the war which has been declared upon them by The Jockey Club is easily apparent, and is admitted by poolroom proprietors. The poolroom syndicate is as much up in the air as are the wildcat rooms, and there is talk of raising a fund of $500,000 to take The Jockey Club into court.

At the law offices of Howe & Hummel it was said that an application would probably be made within the next day or so for an injunction to compel the race tracks to permit the sending of news. The courts, it was said, would not permit discrimination in the sending out of race news.

ASKS BELMONT TO PAY UP.

Controller Metz Thinks Interborough Company Owes the City $435,000.

Controller Metz has forwarded a letter to August Belmont, as President of the Interborough Company, calling his attention to the Subway contract with the city, which provides that if the operating company shall earn 5 per cent. or more on the money invested during the first five years of operation it shall pay 1 per cent. annually into the Sinking Fund for the redemption of bonds issued for the Subway construction.

This is in addition to the 3½ per cent. which the company is compelled to pay in any event for the interest on the bonds. The Controller says that he has been trying to get a return of its earnings from the company, as he believes there is something like $435,000 due the city on a 1 per cent. basis for the last year. This is in addition to the $334,000 received for rentals for the quarter ended Dec. 31 last, the April 1 rentals not yet being computed.

The Controller looks for litigation before the matter is adjusted.

Woodbury Says Assistant Supt. Wallace Got Proceeds.

MONEY LOANED, HE EXPLAINS

The Commissioner Under Fire—Department Spent $27,000,000 Under His Four-Year Regime—Investigation Begun.

The Aldermanic investigation of the Department of Street Cleaning was begun in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall yesterday, with Commissioner Woodbury on the stand nearly all day. During the examination by William M. Ivins, counsel for the committee, it was brought out that some of the transactions in the department's purchase and condemnation of horses were under serious investigation by Commissioner Woodbury within the last fortnight, or several weeks after the investigation was projected.

The Commissioner testified that after the animals were condemned by the department they were sold at public auction. He said that within the last fortnight he had discovered some transactions connected with the hiring of horses that had looked so peculiar to him that he had held a conference on Monday of this week with an Assistant Corporation Counsel. It appears that there were many pay warrants for horses rented drawn to John C. O'Connor, a son of John J. O'Connor, chief hostler at Stable A. Several of the warrants had been indorsed by the younger O'Connor to Dr. John C. Wallace, as Assistant Superintendent of the department. The warrants ranged from $250 to $579.

Commissioner Woodbury said that as soon as he heard of the warrants he had called on Dr. Wallace for an explanation. The latter had told the Commissioner he had lent over $3,000 to O'Connor, and had received the warrants in part payment. O'Connor had paid back $2,830. The inquiry had been conducted by an Assistant Corporation Counsel, who said that there was no ground for the charges. Wallace and O'Connor were not sworn at this inquiry, the Commissioner said. The money was lent in cash. The horses hired from O'Connor were used in Stable H, two blocks west of O'Connor's stable in East Forty-seventh Street.

Discussing the affairs of the department generally Commissioner Woodbury said Capt. Gibson has been a deputy in the department for eleven years, first being named by Col. Waring. He admitted that Mayor McClellan and he had discussed Gibson's retirement in 1904 as a move that might be advisable. He also said that the Mayor frequently gave him suggestions about Gibson's department, but never instructions. Furthermore, he said the Mayor had expressed satisfaction with the manner in which he had conducted the department.

Mr. Ivins had the Commissioner indicate the figures that showed the cost of running the department. The Commissioner admitted that this was the first report of the kind he ever had made. He gave his department expenditures as $27,468,961.50 for the four years he had been in office. He said he did not know who started the present bookkeeping system in the department, but he had followed it as he had found it.

Among other details of his department's work the Commissioner said that the sweepers in some districts picked up from sixteen to eighteen tons of garbage a day, which is thrown into the streets from windows. The Commissioner said he thought the ashes should be removed from the houses proper instead of from the stoop lines, but it would cost about $200,000 a year extra, and the department never had the money. He said the only adequate way of cleaning the asphalt pavements was by water flushing.

The ashes were used to make land at Riker's Island, the Commissioner said, eighty-three acres having thus been made. Only during emergencies, he said, were ashes taken out to sea. Joseph Maron, an Italian, he said, had the contract for scow trimming.

Alderman Downing asked the Commissioner why snow was allowed to remain in the streets in Brooklyn for weeks at a time. The Commissioner replied that the first care of his department was to clear the streets necessary for the distribution of the perishable food supply.

The inquiry will be resumed to-day.

PARSONS, BEATEN, TO APPEAL.

Will Take Apportionment Fight to Higgins and the Legislature.

Chairman Parsons of the Republican County Committee practically admitted last night that he and his friends were hopelessly beaten in the apportionment fight which will come to a head in the Executive Committee late this afternoon and in the County Committee to-night. They did declare, however, that if swamped by the Odell forces in the Executive Committee, as they expect to be, they will carry their fight to the Legislature in the expectation that Gov. Higgins and Speaker Wadsworth will back up their plan and put it through.

"There is not so much difference between my plan and the Odell plan, after all," said Chairman Parsons last night. "I expected to be taken out of my present Assembly district and put into William C. Wilson's district, because our present Senate district falls materially below the required figure. My plans for the lower east side, however, did not wipe out the Eighth Assembly District, as is the case with the Odell plan."

ALDINE CLUB LUNCHEON WITHOUT MAXIM GORKY

The Russian Author Sent His Regrets Several Days Ago.

STILL HIDING IN THIS CITY

Statement of a Champion of the Writer Who Seeks to Justify His Marital Relations.

Maxim Gorky was to have been the guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon at the Aldine Club, 111 Fifth Avenue. The luncheon was held without the Russian author. He sent his regrets five days ago. Gorky is said to be living at the Hotel Albert, Twelfth Street and University Place. This the hotel proprietor denies.

Leroy Scott yesterday made a long statement, attempting to vindicate the Russian writer's marital relations. Mr. Scott said:

"Maxim Gorky has been so outraged by the treatment accorded him and his wife that he has refused absolutely to make any statement whatever. But I believe the ill Mr. and Mrs. Gorky have suffered is greatly due to the public's ignorance of their relations and of Russian conditions, and so, as a friend who is acquainted with the facts, and with Mr. Gorky's consent, I make the following statement:

"Mr. Gorky was first married in 1896. The marriage was not a happy one, and three years ago he and his wife separated by mutual consent.

"The difficulty of securing a divorce, with the disreputable means that must be employed, has had the natural result of making a large part of the people of Russia revolt against divorce. If a man publicly accepts and acknowledges a woman as his wife, or vice versa, the couple are socially recognized as man and wife, and are socially received as such. The first Mrs. Gorky has herself remarried according to this custom.

"Since Mrs. Gorky has suffered so much detraction in the last few days, it is justice to her that the public should know more of her than the mere fact that she is an actress. She is of the Yurkobsky family, one of the oldest in Russia. Her father is a baron, one of her uncles was Admiral Yurkobsky, who was killed at Sebastopol. At 16 she was forced by her parents into marriage with Gen. Dgeliabujsky, a high Government official, belonging to a family of nobles that has been powerful in Russian affairs for over 1,000 years.

"But her husband was a conservative, was in favor of Russia's oppressive Government; her sympathies were with the people. Five years ago she secured a legal divorce, which was possible for her, since she had wealth and high position.

"Last year she abandoned the stage and threw her whole energy into the struggle for freedom. The result was that her arrest was ordered. A friend gave her thirty minutes' warning, and she escaped. Had she been captured it is certain she would have been executed."

TELEPHONE FIGHT IS ON.

New Company to Sue City to Obtain Permit to Lay Wires.

Corporation Counsel Delany's decision that the Great Eastern Telephone Company's claim to a franchise is worthless is not going to end the fight. The concern, which wishes to compete with the New York Telephone Company, announced yesterday that it will try to force the city to permit it to lay wires. This statement was given out at the Great Eastern Company's offices:

> The officials of the Great Eastern Telephone Company do not admit that the adverse opinion of Corporation Counsel Delany rendered yesterday is a death blow to an independent telephone service in Greater New York. They say that they expected that the influence of the Bell monopoly would be such as to prevent a favorable decision from the Tammany Corporation Counsel. They made the application for a permit to open the streets merely to comply with the law, and to show the customary courtesy to the city officials.
>
> Attorney General Mayer last January upheld the validity of the franchise, which is an inviolable contract between the City of New York and the New York Electric Lines Company, a subsidiary company, the rights of which no Commissioner has the power to revoke.
>
> Papers are now being drawn in mandamus proceedings to force Commissioner Ellison to grant the necessary permit to open the streets. The eminent counsel of the Great Eastern Telephone Company say that there is no doubt of the success of these proceedings.

President D. A. Reynolds also made this statement:

"We were not taken by surprise, as we knew something of the pressure brought to bear on the Commissioner and Corporation Counsel's office, but we do marvel at the similarity of the language used to that appearing in the brief furnished by the telephone monopoly. As to the value of that opinion, when tested in the courts, we have no fear. We have not gone into this matter without competent advice. Eminent lawyers have passed upon this franchise and pronounced it legal.

"No one has ever contemplated the establishment of an opposition telephone system in New York City without the adjudication of its rights, and the action of the Corporation Counsel is to be welcomed as a speedy means to that end.

It has never been contended that the contract between the city and the company was invalid or revocable, but that the charter of the company issued by the State was assailable on account of its failure to build subways. This question, however, was settled by the Attorney General last January, from whose decision no appeal can be taken. It was shown at that hearing that the telephone monopoly had found a very live corpse. No time will be lost in establishing our rights. The action ought to be finally determined before the close of June."

To Insure City Ferry Property.

At the meeting of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund yesterday it was practically decided to insure all the boats, terminals, and other property of the municipal ferry system against fire and accident of all kinds. No vote was taken because President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen asked time to look into the question of rates. An offer to take the risk for [illegible] the Controller by a [illegible] company.

LAWYER IS CONVICTED.

Jury Finds That L. P. Mingey Uttered a Forged Check.

Lawrence P. Mingey, a lawyer, with offices at 96 Wall Street and living at 390 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, was convicted of uttering a forged check, in General Sessions yesterday. He has for years been a conspicuous figure in the Tenth Municipal Court, over which Judge Thomas C. Murray presides, and Judge Murray himself went on the stand yesterday before Judge Cowing to testify to the excellent character of the defendant.

The transaction concerned a check for $277 in favor of the Ross Lumber Company for a claim which that company had had against the David J. Menton Company. It was testified that David J. Menton signed the name of the Ross Lumber Company on the check in the presence of Mingey, who then indorsed it and cashed it through his own bank. Menton is still in the Tombs awaiting trial.

BOMBARDMENT A MILE LONG FAILS TO SAVE SAN FRANCISCO

Mansions Wrecked by Cannon in Last Stand on Nob Hill.

NEW YORK RAISES $500,000. CONGRESS VOTES $1,000,000.

Whole Country Aids in Rushing Relief—Law of Pistol and Gun Keeps Order—Estimates of Loss of Life Vary From 250 to 3,000—Property Loss Uncertain.

The flames were still sweeping earthquake-ruined San Francisco early this morning. No accurate estimate of the destruction to life or property was obtainable. Gen. Funston thought the dead might be anywhere from 1,000 to 3,000. The property loss was estimated at above $200,000,000. Chief of Police Dinan believes only 250 lives were lost.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, (San Francisco time,) cannon were put in service to destroy the beautiful stone homes east of Van Ness Avenue in the hope of checking the flames, but in vain.

Yesterday morning the wind changed to the west and carried the flames to Nob Hill, where were the homes of wealthy citizens. A mile of buildings were then blown up along Van Ness Avenue, but the flames crossed that avenue and swept westward. The city's most costly residence were in the path and the flames threatened to sweep everything until they reached the sea.

To the southwest everything is in ruins for nearly three miles from the bay. Every building of importance is gone, save the mint—hotels, theatres, skyscrapers—everything. To the north Chinatown is a heap of ashes.

Two hundred thousand persons, or about one-half of the population of San Francisco, spent last night under the open sky in the parks and other open spaces of the city. Thousands fled by such ferries as still ran across the bay to Oakland, where the hospitals and churches and theatres were filled with the dead, the dying, and the injured.

The threat of famine is already hanging over the city. The troops and police have seized every unburned grocery and bakery in the city, and are husbanding all these resources. The troops under Gen. Funston are in command of the city and have thus far been able to prevent much looting, though a number of thieves have been shot dead.

The entire country is rallying to the relief of the devastated city. Congress passed a joint resolution yesterday appropriating $1,000,000 for the benefit of the sufferers, and President Roosevelt signed it before dark. The money will be sent at once.

The President, in behalf of the National Red Cross Society, also issued a proclamation to the country at large urging immediate relief. In Albany Gov. Higgins issued a similar proclamation, as did Mayor McClellan in this city. The Mayor also appointed a committee of about 200, who will manage the raising and forwarding of New York's contributions.

The Red Cross Organization named Dr. Edward T. Devine to take charge of its relief work in San Francisco. He started west at once.

In the financial district of New York nearly $500,000 was subscribed. Of this sum John D. Rockefeller pledged $100,000. Nearly every theatrical manager in the city offered a benefit.

From other cities, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago, and many others, came dispatches that told of similar efforts there. Within three days a flood of money will be on the way to San Francisco.

Reports of damage to towns outside San Francisco were meagre yesterday. But from the little town of Frawley, 120 miles south of Los Angeles, came word that practically the entire business section had been wiped out by earthquake shock and a fire that followed. No lives were lost.

From Los Angeles yesterday afternoon came word that another earthquake shock had been experienced there. It came at 12:53 P. M., but was slight and no damage resulted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, April 20.—At midnight the flames were slowly but steadily moving on portions of San Francisco still untouched.

The strongest fire seemed to be in the western end of the city, while the volume of flame in the Mission district would indicate that the conflagration was less severe than during the day.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—San Francisco to-night is the city desolate. It seems that the acme of its misery was reached at dusk, when flames burst from all sides of the beautiful Hotel Fairmount, the structure above every other which was apparently most strongly protected from the oncoming fire.

This has been another day of an uneven struggle of man against the elements. Acre after acre has been reduced to dust and ashes, despite the heroic perseverance of the firemen to limit the conflagration.

To-night there is a hope that the worst has been nearly reached, and that when to-morrow dawns the end will have come, but the hope is faint. If the flames can be barred from the western addition then the end will be written to the great disaster.

To-night three distinct fires were burning. One was in the territory that extends from Nob Hill easterly toward the water front. It was traveling slowly northerly toward the Telegraph Hill section, and may die out from lack of material, or may sweep toward the extreme water front.

The second centre was in the Mission district. Here the fire had reached Eighteenth Street, but was making little headway toward the hillsides to the west, where thousands of people are camped.

The third and most dangerous fire is that threatening the western part of the city. This is really a continuation of the Nob Hill fire. It is wedge-shaped, with the apex pulling forward. This is the point against which the firemen are bending their greatest efforts. Dynamite was used for backfiring purposes, with only fair success. To-night many blocks may be blown up.

Chief of Police Dinan to-night said 250 would fully cover the number of dead. About fifty bodies have thus far been found. There was considerable shooting of looters to-day, but the offenders escaped with wounds.

Measures for Relief.

San Francisco is not discouraged. Its best and highest class has already begun to plan for restoration and to care for the stricken ones, and the relief will be immediate and effective. Total subscriptions of $180,000 were announced to-night.

Arrangements were made for the immediate relief of the needy. The baking of 50,000 loaves of bread daily will begin to-morrow. Free transportation will be provided by the Southern Pacific Railroad to destitute persons desiring to go to interior points.

Although worn by a day and night of fighting the flames, almost exhausted for want of food and water, citizens, firemen, policemen, soldiers, and sailors have made a desperate all-day fight to save some of San Francisco from fire. With even the wind turning to help along the destruction that the earth and flame had begun, without water, with dynamite run out, with only the artillery left to batter down houses, it was a hopeless struggle, but the heroic men kept on.

Daybreak found Mayor Schmitz and Chief of Police Dinan directing the Municipal Council, which is a safety committee, from the Fairmont Hotel, the beautiful structure on the top of Nob Hill.

Daylight Reveals Devastation.

During the night the flames had consumed many of the city's finest structures and skipped in a dozen directions to the residence portions. They had made their way over into the North Beach section, and, springing anew to the south, had reached out along the shipping section down the bay shore, over hills and across toward Third and Townsend Streets. Warehouses, houses, and manufacturers' concerns fell in their path. This completed the destruction of the entire district known as the "south of Market Street."

Looking eastward from the heights in the central portion of the city, everything attested to the awful havoc wrought. Where once rose noble buildings stood nothing but frail walls, tottering chimneys, heaps of twisted iron, and huge piles of brick and mortar. Great clouds of smoke in several sections showed the fire was still raging with unabated vigor.

Wind Turns the Fire Back.

It was hoped by the Mayor and his counselors that the flames might burn themselves out against the east water front. The wind had been blowing them toward the east all during the night, and had it kept its direction the bay would have done what dynamite had failed to do.

But the elements were all against the city. Just when hope was rising, the wind changed, and the flames started on a devastating march westward. By 8 o'clock the flames were working up to the California Street hill, known as Nob Hill.

This eminence had been chosen years ago by the multimillionaires of the "Bonanza days" upon which to erect their mansions. It was surmounted by the Hotel Fairmont, just erected by Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs at a cost of more than $2,000,000. It was a beautiful structure of white stone, visible from almost every point of the city, and the horror was universal when its destruction seemed inevitable.

Stand at the Fairmont Hotel.

Steadily but surely, the fire ate its way up the slope, consuming the homes of the late Mrs. Jane Stanford and the Hopkins Art Institute, built by Mark Hopkins of Central Pacific fame. The hotel could be seen from a distance, occasionally, standing in the centre of huge clouds of smoke.

Here a great fight was made with what water could be had and what dynamite could be used. The hotel was a model fire-proof structure, and it was hoped that the flames would beat against it in vain.

A detachment of sailors from one of the warships assisted the firemen. Officers with drawn pistols forced citizens to take part in the fight. Every man who ventured near was impressed for duty by Lieut. McMillan of the revenue cutter Bear. This young officer had a cool eye and a wicked looking pistol, and the way the men jumped when his gun was pointed was interesting. McMillan was everywhere directing operations, and his energy earned the admiration of even those whom he forced to work.

Decision to Use Artillery.

The brave defenders were finally driven back before noon and the hotel caught fire. Mayor Schmitz and his Council retreated from place to place, finally taking refuge in the North End Police Station in Sacramento Street. The firemen, soldiers, and sailors gave way sullenly. They were powerless, however, as what water supply they had been using had failed and the supply of dynamite was almost exhausted.

In the police station, the Council, composed of the financial leaders of the city, decided to resort to the most heroic measure yet undertaken.

This decision was to bombard the entire section of the city lying along the east side of Van Ness Avenue, from Golden Gate Avenue to Pacific Avenue, sixteen blocks in all, containing the homes of many millionaires and fine apartment houses.

There was not a sound water main east of Van Ness Avenue, and west of that street the supply had been made scanty by numerous breaks in the continuity of the pipes, due to the earthquake. At Van Ness Avenue it was determined to make the desperate stand.

Should the fire cross Van Ness Avenue and the wind continue its earlier direction toward the west, it was agreed, the destruction of San Francisco would practically be complete. West of Van Ness and north of McAlister constituted the finest part of the city. Here were all of the finer homes of the well-to-do and wealthier classes, and if it should fall there would be little left of the city except a few scattered suburbs.

Wealthy People Driven Out.

The military was notified of the action of the Council and barrels of gunpowder, the only remaining explosive in the city, were taken from the Presidio, Fort McDowell, Alcatraz, and other near-by posts, and field guns were got ready.

The police, regiments of soldiers, and scores of volunteers were sent into the district to warn the people to flee. These heroically responded to the demand of law, and went bravely on their way, trudging painfully over the pavements with the little they could get together. Every available wagon was taken by the military to carry the powder.

Van Ness Avenue crosses the city from north to south, where the residences begin. This avenue is ninety feet wide, and the possibilities of checking the march of the flames looked hopeful. Orders were given to concentrate every fire engine in the city at the avenue, to marshal soldiers, police, and all workers, and make one last stand to save the remainder of he city.

Cannon Tear Down Mansions.

Huge cannon were drawn to the avenue to aid the dynamiters in blowing up the mansions of the millionaires on the east side of the thoroughfare. Every available pound of dynamite was hauled to this point, and the sight was one of stupendous and appalling havoc, as the cannons were trained on the palaces and the shot tore into the walls and toppled the buildings in ruins.

At other points dynamite was used, and house after house, the dwellings of millionaires, were lifted into the air by the power of the blast and dropped to the earth a mass of dust and débris. The work was dangerous, and many of the men who had been working for forty-eight hours without sleep and scarcely any food may have been killed while making this last desperate stand.

The fire line at 6 o'clock extended a mile along the east side of Van Nest Avenue, from Pacific Street to Ellis. All behind this, excepting the Russian Hill region, and a small district lying along the North Beach, had been swept clean by the flames.

The steady booming of the artillery and the roar of the dynamite above the howl and cracking of the flames continued for hours with monotonous regularity.

All efforts to check the spread of the flames at Van Ness Avenue by blowing up a mile of buildings proved fruitless. The fire spread across the broad thoroughfare, and the entire western addition, which contains the homes of San Francisco's wealthier class, seemed doomed. The destruction of the western addition of the city would complete the work of the ravaging flames, and mark the devastation of the entire city.

Spread of Flames Elsewhere.

From the upward slope the fire also took a direction northwesterly into the district that had been left untouched last night. This portion of the town embraced the Latin quarter, populated by people of various nationalities, and the houses are all of flimsy construction. Once getting foothold there, the fire cut its way as though going through a forest in the dryest time of Summer.

In the Mission district to the south of Market Street, the zone of ruin was extended further westward, toward the extreme southern portion, but was temporarily checked at Fourteenth and Mission by the wholesale use of dynamite. At this point were located the Southern Pacific Hospital, the St. Francis Hospital, and the College of Physicians and Surgeons. In order to save these institutions buildings were blown up all around them, and the danger threatening them was supposed to have been averted at noon.

Later the Southern Pacific Hospital was blown up, the patients having been removed to places of safety. The Linda Vista and the Pleasonton, two large family hotels on Jones Street, in the better part of the city, were also blown up to stay the progress of the conflagration.

THE SCENE OF DEVASTATION.

Stretches of Smoking Ruins Where the Beautiful City Stood.

SAN FRANCISCO, via Oakland, April 19.—Great stretches of blackened and smoking ruins to-day mark the place where business houses and beautiful residences of a great city stood two days ago.

From the water front the burned city can be seen to-day in all its smoky nakedness. From the Pacific Mail dock to Vallejo Street, on the West Side, a distance of two miles, wreckage and ruin are the rule. Although the fire did not jump east, the damage has been enormous.

The land facing the ferry building is a succession of little valleys, some four, others six feet deep. The ferry tower itself is out of plumb, and the big building is much twisted by the earthquake.

Looking up Market Street from the ferry building the city is a smoldering mass of ruins. Great manufactories, mercantile houses, banks, and office buildings are nowhere to be seen, and only in spots is there so much as a tower, the monument of a burned structure.

A Journey in the Ruins.

In the Hayes Valley district, south of McAllister and north of Market Street, the fire was confined on the west by Octavia Street and on the north by McAllister Street. In these confines the destruction was complete. Therein were located St. Ignatius's School and Church, of which only the side walls remain.

Of the Mechanics' Pavilion, the scene of hundreds of great political, social, and sporting events, not a timber remains. Opposite it was the St. Nicholas Hotel, and it is now simply a pile of ruined bricks.

From this point down to the Oakland Ferry a correspondent made his way through the menacing wall frontages, and climbed over hillocks of masonry and junk of all sorts in the middle of the city's greatest thoroughfare.

The journey was heartrending, the scene appalling. On either side was ruin, nothing but ruin. To the south, in hundreds of blocks, hardly a building remained whole.

Mint Almost Unscathed.

The United States Mint escaped almost unscathed on account of its isolated environment and its peculiar fireproof construction, but the force of rending power of the earthquake could be seen in the cracked walls of the new Post Office Building.

In front of the Post Office on Seventh and Mission Streets the ground had sunk for several feet. The building itself was ruined.

Across an alley from the Post Office stood the Grant Building, one of the headquarters of the army. Only the walls stand. Opposite the Grant Building on Market Street the ruins of the Hibernian Savings Bank loomed up, its former beautiful frontage transformed into hideous aspect. This was the great bank of the middle and poorer classes, and its loss will cause possibly greater sorrow south of Market Street than perhaps the loss of any one institution.

Ruin All Down Market Street.

From this point down to the ferry the same story could be told of each successive block. Last night at 11 o'clock the north side of the street had been untouched and hope had been expressed that the great Flood, Crocker, Phelan, and other buildings would be spared, but to-day they are included in the list of destroyed property.

The Palace Hotel still stands, a huge monument to the awful disaster of yesterday, its blackened walls and empty interior bearing little resemblance to the huge hostelry of a day ago.

The handsome, gigantic St. Francis Hotel on Powell Street, fronting on Union Square, is a ruined shell. This was one of the high steel structures that had defied the trembles of yesterday, but this morning it was another contribution to the disaster.

Among the other skyscrapers north of Market that fell prey to the flames were the fourteen-story Merchants' Exchange and the Mills Building, occupying almost an entire block.

Chinatown at noon was a furnace, and the denizens of that quarter earlier in the day had their simple possessions bundled for departure.

Beautiful Nob Hill Homes Gone.

The district on California Street, from Powell to Jones Street, known as Nob Hill, which was swept, contained the most beautiful homes of the city. The summit of the hill is about 500 feet above the sea level and gives a magnificent view of San Francisco Bay and the country for many miles around.

At the southwest corner of California and Powell Streets, just on the brink of the hill, was the Stanford residence. At the death of Mrs. Stanford about a year ago in Honolulu, the mansion became the property of Leland Stanford University. It contained many treasures of great value.

On the southeastern corner of the same block stood the home of the late Mark Hopkins, who amassed many millions along with Stanford, C. P. Huntington, and others in the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad. The Hopkins home was presented to the University of California by his heirs, and it was known as the Hopkins Art Institute.

Across California Street from the Stanford and Hopkins homes was the Fairmount Hotel, which had been under construction for more than two years, and was almost ready for occupancy. It was a handsome white stone structure, seven stories high and occupied an entire block.

One block west of the Fairmount was the Flood home, a huge brownstone mansion, said to have cost more than $1,000,000.

The Huntington home occupied the block on California Street just west of the Flood house. The Crocker residence, with its huge lawns and magnificent stables, was on the west of the Huntington home. Many other beautiful and costly homes are situated on the hill.

A mile further west, on Pacific Heights, were many costly homes of recent construction.

ARMY OF HOMELESS FLEEING FROM THE DEVASTATED CITY

Oakland Overrun with Refugees—Multitudes Unable to Leave.

200,000 WITHOUT SHELTER AND FACING A FAMINE

Police Seize Groceries and Bakeries—Mayor Appeals for Food and Tents—All Possible Efforts Made to Open Railways and Give Relief to Sufferers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Probably 200,000 refugees are struggling to get out of the city. Hourly the task is becoming more difficult, as the fire and heat cut off avenue after avenue of escape.

The streets are filled with struggling people, some crying and weeping and calling for missing loved ones. Crowding all sidewalks in the threatened area are hundreds upon hundreds of householders attempting to drag their effects to places of safety.

In some instances men with ropes are dragging trunks, tandem style, others have sewing machines strapped to the trunks. Again, women are rushing for the hills carrying on their arms only the family cat or a bird cage.

There is no aid for any one from outside sources. In the awful scramble for safety the half-crazed survivors disregard anything but thought of themselves and their property.

In every excavation and hole throughout, the north beach householders are burying household effects, throwing them into ditches and covering the holes.

Wild Search for Food.

Sufferers are invading the few buildings that remain in the hope of finding something to eat. They only desist when warned or shot by the soldiers. At the ferry building a crowd of thousands gathered begging for food and transportation across the bay.

Bread is arriving from Berkely and Oakland, and is being distributed in the north end of the town by the relief parties organized by Mayor Schmitz.

Thousands are sleeping in the hills to-night. Women and children and little babies in arms are huddled together with the injured.

In Golden Gate Park the people are camping. This crowd is constantly increasing, and the relief committee are doing all in their power to get bedding and food for the homeless.

Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda are short of food, and in a few days will themselves be facing a serious shortage unless relief comes from the outside.

Expressmen are charging from $10 to $50 to haul a load of baggage or give any aid to refugees.

Liquor stores in the north end were broken into by thieves and hundreds of men were carrying away bottled liquors when soldiers arrived. The men had to be clubbed by the military before they would drop the bottles. Soldiers smashed the bottles on the stones and drove the mob at the point of the bayonet.

Residents of the hillsides in the central portion of the city were seemingly safe from the roaring furnace that was consuming the business section. They watched the towering flames and speculated as to the extent of the territory that was doomed.

Fleeing to the Parks.

Last night an army of men, women, and children walked the streets, headed to the westward. Most of them were bound to the Presidio or Golden Gate Park. To-night their numbers are trebled. Golden Gate Park and the surrounding hills resemble one vast camping ground. From the Government reservation have been sent all the available tents that could be spared. Improvised tents have been put up in all the open spaces.

To-night fireplaces have been built in the streets; beds and mattresses dragged from burning houses are scattered about in the open. Not that anybody is sleeping much, but there is a limit to the time that human beings can remain on their feet.

Dead Lying in the Streets.

To-day was bright and warm. The sun beat down on the tired workers and rescuers. There is scarcely any water to relieve the thirst of the suffering. The dead, in many instances, are lying in the streets and the ruins, but the authorities are doing all in their power to remove the bodies in order that a pestilence may be prevented.

It has been necessary repeatedly to move the injured from places where they had sought refuge, for the fire kept increasing with alarming rapidity. Water is the incessant cry of the firemen and the people, but there is only a scant drinking supply.

Already the threat of famine is heard. The following appeal for aid has been sent out by Mayor Schmitz to Gov. Pardee, and shows the destitute condition of the people and their dire need of food and shelter:

"Send all supplies and tents possible to Golden Gate Park. Have bakeries in small towns bake all the bread they can. We want bedding, food, and tents."

The Committee of Safety, consisting of fifty prominent citizens, met with Mayor Schmitz this morning, and organized a finance committee, composed of James N. Phelan, F. W. Hellman, Claus Spreckels, J. Downey Harvey, Thomas Magee, J. L. Flood, William Babcock, W. F. Herrin, M. H. De Young, and Robert J. Tobin.

Before the meeting had organized, Claus Spreckels gave $25,000, Rudolph Spreckels $10,000, Harry Tevis $10,000, Gordon Blanding $10,000, Eleanor Martin $5,000, J. L. Flood $5,000, with a promise of more.

Mayor Schmitz announced that the water company promised a supply of water in the western addition and in the Mission to-morrow. Committees were appointed to take charge of the relief of the destitute, and the work has already begun and assumed some system.

Famine is Feared.

Unless supplies are rushed and arrangements made for their distribution trouble is feared within a few days. Even men of wealth cannot obtain food with all their money. Gens. Funston and Sumner, in command of the Federal troops, are rendering great service. Refugees who go to the Presidio are being taken care of, but the number that can be accommodated is limited.

Except for an occasional accident, there has been no additional loss of life reported since yesterday. People have had time to leave the burning districts, though most of them have lost all their belongings.

Every unburned grocery in San Francisco has been taken in charge by the authorities, and each family is allowed to buy only a limited supply of food. In many places the police and the troops stand by to prohibit overcharging. Gen. Funston announced this morning that he hoped rations would soon reach the city and the people be supplied from the Presidio.

Bakeries have already been built within the reservation, and the bread supply therefore has not failed completely.

At best the city has never carried more than three days' supply of provisions and food, and now, with the wholesale districts and warehouses wiped out, there is a shortage already. Despite the police and the troops, prices to-day were in many instances more than trebled. A correspondent was obliged to pay 25 cents for a small glass of mineral water in the Hayes Valley district. That part of the city has been laid waste, and not a drop of water is to be had there except bottled mineral water.

Oakland Houses 50,000 Refugees.

Oakland to-night housed and fed probably 50,000 refugees of the stricken city. All day the stream of humanity poured from the ferries, every one carrying personal baggage and articles saved from the conflagration. Thousands of Chinese men, women, and children, all carrying luggage to the limit of their strength, poured into the limited Chinatown of Oakland.

Thousands of persons besieged the telegraph offices, and the crush became so great that soldiers were stationed at the doors to keep them in line and allow as many as possible to find standing room at the counters. Every boat from San Francisco took hundreds of refugees carrying luggage and bedding in large quantities. Many women are bareheaded, and all of them are weak from sleeplessness and exposure to the chill air of last night.

Hundreds of these people line the streets of Oakland, waiting for some one to provide them with shelter. Early this morning representatives of the Oakland relief committee appeared on the streets and at the railroad stations. Restaurant prices have increased 25 to 100 per cent.

The realty syndicate at once offered Idora Park for the use of those left without shelter by the earthquake. The offer has been gratefully accepted by the Police and Fire Departments, and 200 cots have been placed in the theatre for the use of the refugees.

Relief stations have also been established at the City Hall and at the various public parks throughout Oakland. Other relief stations have been established in such of the churches throughout the city as are considered safe for use.

An Early Morning Scene.

The flight of such residents as can leave the city grows in volume every hour, a slight earthquake at 5 o'clock this morning accentuating their terrors. The ferryboats to adjacent counties have been crowded to the utmost all day.

All traffic toward the city has been stopped by the military authorities, and every means of travel has been made available to the distressed and homeless people. In many cases wagons carry wounded, sick, and dying.

Employes of the Santa Fé Road have taken a great many people from San Francisco across the bay in barges, landing them at Port Richmond.

Trains Still Running.

The Southern Pacific trains are still running from San Francisco south down the peninsula toward San José. Refugees are being handled as speedily as possible. The company's station at Third and Townsend Street, while damaged, has not been destroyed and can still be used as a terminus.

The ferry building at the foot of Market Street and all the slips are still in use. Southern Pacific trains are running between Oakland and Fruitvale to the north. Trains over the Coast Division are going north via Fresno. It is expected that ferry service to Alameda (across San Francisco Bay) will soon be resumed; the local ferry service between Oakland and San Francisco is regular. The signal system outside of Oakland is not much damaged. The Southern Pacific expects to be able to handle freight and passenger service at terminals when the excitement subsides.

E. E. Calvin, general manager of the Southern Pacific, this afternoon wired Superintendent Ingram at Los Angeles to get a special train, buy five carloads of canned goods and send them here at the earliest possible moment. He sent word that conditions are so appalling as to be beyond belief or comprehension.

Rations for 200,000 are being sent from Seattle and Vancouver. Tents and medicinal supplies are coming from the military posts at Monterey.

Mayor Schmitz to-day appealed to Oakland for immediate supplies of bread and food of all kinds, tents, and bedding. He also issued an appeal for help to all California cities.

There is still much confusion concerning the loss of life. This forenoon there were twenty-seven corpses lying in Portsmouth Square, gathered from various sections. It is said that elsewhere bodies are lying in the streets, there being no means available to remove them. In his travels down Market Street a correspondent saw three bodies lying in the débris, some rude covering having been thrown over them.

Yesterday some sort of systematic communication could be had by means of automobiles, but to-day every street is piled high with ruins, and to add to this trouble, there is constant danger from falling walls. On miles of streets the front walls of ruined buildings still stand, swaying with the concussions of distant dynamite explosions and the rising winds.

The three morning newspapers of San Francisco, The Call, Chronicle, and Examiner, will combine in an issue to-morrow morning from the plant of The Oakland Tribune.

President Harriman of the Southern Pacific Company has wired orders to place the company's freight depots at the disposal of the San Francisco municipal authorities.

REFUGEE'S TALE OF TERROR.

Stood with Thousands, Expecting to Die—Dire Straits of People.

SALINAS, Cal., April 19.—J. P. Anthony, a business man of Pacific Grove, arrived in this city this morning, having made the trip from San Francisco by automobile.

Mr. Anthony says that he was sleeping in his room at the Ramona Hotel on Ellis Street, near Macon, and was suddenly awakened at 5:23 yesterday morning. The first shock that brought him out of bed was appalling in its force. The whole earth seemed to heave and fall. The building where he was housed, which is six stories high, was lifted from its foundation and the roof caved in. A score or more of men and women immediately made their way to the street, which was soon filled with people. Débris showered from every side.

Mr. Anthony says he saw a score or more persons killed. Women became hysterical and prayed in the streets, while men sat on the curbing, appearing to be dazed. It was twenty minutes before those in the vicinity seemed able to realize the extent of the catastrophe.

The crowds became larger, and in the public squares of the city and in empty lots thousands gathered. It was 9 o'clock before the police were in control of the situation. When they finally resumed charge the officers directed their energy toward warning the people in the streets away from danger, many buildings being on the point of toppling over.

Mr. Anthony was walking on Market Street, near the Emporium, about 9 A. M., when a severe shock was felt. At once the street filled again with excited persons, and thousands were soon gathered in the vicinity, almost paralyzed with fear. Before the spectators could realize what had happened the walls of the building swayed a distance of three feet.

The thousands of bystanders stood still, expecting every moment that they would be crushed, but another tremor seemed to restore the big building to its natural position. Mr. Anthony said that he momentarily expected that with thousands of others who were in the neighborhood he would be crushed to death, but he could not move.

He made his way down Market Street as far as the Call Building, from which flames were issuing at every window, with the blaze shooting out from the roof. A similar condition prevailed in the Examiner Building across the street.

He then started for the station, at Third and Townsend Streets, determined to leave the city. He found several thousand other persons headed in the same direction. All south of Market Street about that time was a mass of flames. He made his way to Eighth and Market, thence down Eighth to Townsend and to Third Street, and the entire section which he traversed was afire, making it impossible for him to reach his destination. He attempted to make his way back, but found that retreat had been cut off by the flames.

He then went to Twelfth Street, and reached Market Street again by the City Hall. San Francisco's magnificent municipal building had in the meantime caved in like an eggshell. The steel dome was still standing, but the rest of the three-million-dollar structure was a charred ruin.

It was not yet noon, but the city's hospitals were filled with dead and injured and all available storerooms were being pressed into service. Dead bodies were being carried from the streets in garbage wagons. In every direction hysterical women were seen. Men walked through the streets, many of them weeping and all with white, drawn faces.

Transfer men were offered fabulous sums to remove household goods, even for a block distant. Horses had been turned loose, and were running at large, to prevent their being incinerated in the burning buildings. Women had loaded their personal belongings on carts and were pulling them through the city, the property being huddled in the public squares.

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED.

Mayor Gives Warning That Troops Will Shoot Without Mercy.

SAN FRANCISCO, via Oakland, April 19.—Acting under a dispatch from President Roosevelt the city was placed under martial law to-day.

Mayor Schmitz this afternoon issued the following proclamation:

"The Federal troops, the members of the regular police force, and all special police officers have been authorized to kill any and all persons engaged in looting or in the commission of any other crime.

"I have directed all the gas and electric-lighting companies not to turn on gas or electricity until I order them to do so. You may therefore expect the city to remain in darkness for an indefinite time.

"I request all citizens to remain at home from darkness until daylight every night until order is restored.

"I warn all citizens of the danger of fire from damaged or destroyed chimneys, broken or leaking gas pipes or fixtures, or any like causes."

Gen. Funston is co-operating with Mayor Schmitz. When men have been needed to carry out any plans, they have been pressed into service. In a few instances it was necessary to resort to the cocked revolver and drawn sword, after which there was no hesitancy.

Thousands of troops patrolled the streets and drove the crowds back, while hundreds more were set at work assisting the Fire and Police Departments. The strictest orders were issued; and in true military spirit the soldiers obeyed. The curious were driven back at the breasts of the horses that the cavalrymen rode, and all the crowds were forced from the level district to the hilly section beyond to the north.

Reports are received that numerous men caught in the act of looting have been shot. One man on Market Street who was found digging in the ruins of a jewelry shop was discovered by a Naval Reserve man and fired upon three times. The fellow sought safety in flight, but the Reserve man brought him down by running a bayonet through him. The bodies of three thieves were found lying in the streets on the south side this forenoon.

MAYOR'S HOPEFUL MESSAGE.

Thinks Flames Under Control—Fire Marshal Is Pessimistic.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The President has received the following from Mayor Schmits of San Francisco:

"Earthquake has done great damage, but fire has done more. Half of city in flames, but believe under control. Thanks for offer of assistance. We at present need no outside assistance, but will call on you if necessary."

CHICAGO, April 19.—The Postal Telegraph Company to-night received the following message from its Oakland, Cal., office:

"The Fire Marshal of San Francisco advises that more than two-thirds of the area of the city of San Francisco has been destroyed, and there is no probability of saving the rest of the city.

"Following is the district of Market Street now devastated: Sansome to Market Street, to Sacramento, to Buchanan, thence to California, to Hyde, to Eddy, to Larkin, to Gough, and to Market. On the south side of Market Street, the fire extends along Market Street to Fourteenth and below the Southern Pacific tracks to the boundary."

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The War Department has received the following from Gen. Funston:

"Fire crossed Van Ness Avenue to the west at 6:30 P. M. Almost certain now that entire city will be destroyed. Have ordered troops from Monterey, and everything is going as well as could be expected."

WIRE INTO SAN FRANCISCO.

Train Service Is Also Resumed by Two Railroads.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—To-night direct telegraphic communication was re-established between San Francisco and the outside world, and this message has the honor of being the first to be sent.

By most energetic efforts in the face of great obstacles, the Postal Telegraph Company succeeded in restoring one of its shattered lines, and its managers are hopeful of bringing back its service to normal in a day or two. The Postal office to-night is in a little wooden structure constructed on piles at the water front.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Railroad and mail service out of San Francisco has been resumed on the Santa Fé from Point Richmond and on the main line of the Southern Pacific from its terminal at Oakland.

So far as known, the first passenger train to leave for the East was the Santa Fé Train No. 8, which left the terminal at Point Richmond at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. It is due to arrive in Chicago at 8:45 Sunday night, but will probably be delayed. It was not known how many passengers the train carried.

The first Southern Pacific train to leave Oakland was the Atlantic Express. It left at 9 o'clock this morning, and is due here over the Northwestern Railroad at 8:50 o'clock Sunday evening. According to schedule, two other trains left Oakland during the day.

BERKELEY AIDS HUNDREDS.

BERKELEY, Cal., April 19.—The work of providing meals and sleeping accommodations for the large number of refugees that are pouring into Berkeley by every train from San Francisco was heartily carried on to-day and to-night by the university and town people alike.

President Wheeler has thrown open the grounds of the University of California to the refugees from the burning city across the bay, and the churches are supplying food.

Meals will be served from a great tent, which has been erected under the campus oaks, while crude sleeping accommodations will be provided by strewing the baseball grounds with a deep layer of straw. The Harmon Gymnasium will also be filled. Tents will also be placed on the campus. Churches and houses will accommodate many more.

The women of Berkeley are baking all the bread they possibly can for the sufferers in San Francisco, where the bakeries that remain standing are not allowed to build fires under their ovens on account of the danger of starting other fires through damaged chimneys.

Native Sons and Daughters and the Elks kept open houses last night for the poor.

Medical aid for a large number of persons injured in the earthquake and fire is provided here. The local hospitals have been thrown open, and medical men of the university are lending every effort to alleviate suffering.

To provide protection all the student cadets of the University of California to-night were detailed for guard duty on the campus.

ALABAMA CAVE IS SMOKING.

Countryside Panic Stricken, Expecting an Earthquake There.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, April 19.—For thirty hours dense smoke has been pouring from the mouth of Fennell Cave in North Alabama, sometimes in furious but steady volume, and at others in great puffs, as though from the stack of a titanic locomotive.

The cave, which is four miles southwest of Decatur, began to emit smoke soon after the first seismic disturbance in San Francisco, early yesterday morning, and the eruptions have increase in density and volume ever since.

Fennell Cave is very large, and has never been fully explored, although several miles of its windings have been traced back under its mountain base. The oldest resident cannot recall such a phenomenon before yesterday, and the countryside is in a state of panic.

The Men Who Sent the News.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The Associated Press force, while naturally exhausted, is still on duty, awaiting relief men from Los Angeles and Portland, who are due at Oakland this morning. The Associated Press force at San Francisco, which has done such good work, includes Paul Cowles, Superintendent; R. S. Johnson, E. E. Curtis, J. M. Carroll, John Finlay, and H. H. McDonald, editors; R. L. Creighton and R. J. Waters, stenographers, and R. E. Geistlich, B. F. McInerney, W. F. Lynch, J. K. Brown, and Harry Collins, operators.

Brawley Has Been Wiped Out.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 19.—Reports from Brawley, a small town on the Southern Pacific, 120 miles south of Los Angeles, state that the town was practically wiped out by the earthquake.

This is the only town in Southern California known to have suffered from the shock. So far as known, there were no fatalities. Brawley was about two years old and had a population of 500.

LOS ANGELES FEELS A SHOCK.

Panic in the City, but No Damage from Slight Quake.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Los Angeles experienced a distinct earthquake shock of short duration at 12:33 o'clock this afternoon.

No damage was done, but thousands of people were frightened. Occupants of office buildings, especially of tall structures, ran out into the streets hatless. Many stores were deserted in like manner by customers and clerks. The shock passed soon, and most of those who had fled returned to the buildings.

The San Francisco horror has strung the populace here to a high tension, and a spell of sultry weather serves to increase the general nervousness.

G. E. Franklin, head of the United States Weather Bureau in this city, in his report of the earthquake, ten minutes after it occurred, said:

"There was nothing dangerous in the shock. It was hardly of sufficient strength to move the pendulum of the large clock in my office, and consisted of a single undulation. The quake seemed to be moving from north to south."

SARAYEVO, Bosnia, April 19.—At 11 o'clock this morning a short, sharp earthquake shock was felt. It was undulatory in character, and moved from west to east.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 19.—A special telephone message from Salinas, Cal., states that that town suffered from two distinct earthquake shocks shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

As the message was coming over the wire still another shock was felt in the city. Although to-day's earthquakes have done very little damage in Salinas, the inhabitants are greatly disturbed and fear a repetition of Wednesday's disaster, which did so much damage to property.

TREMOR FELT IN MICHIGAN.

Loosens Rock in a Mine—One Man Killed, Four Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

CALUMET, Mich., April 19.—An earth tremor was plainly felt over a wide area here yesterday, and caused the death of one man and injury of four others in the Quincy Mine. The men were caught by falling rock, loosened by the trembling of the earth.

What had happened in San Francisco served to heighten the alarm, and crowds gathered at the mine fearing a worse accident. There have been numerous earthquake tremors in Northern Michigan in the last two years. One, a year ago, was very pronounced, and was felt over a district 100 miles long.

LIKE THE GUARD AT WATERLOO.

Reply of the Fire Engineer at the Critical Post.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 19.—The reply of a grizzled fire engineer, standing at O'Farrell Street and Van Ness Avenue, beside a blackened engine, may not have been as terse as that of Hugo's guard at Waterloo, but the pathos of it could have been no greater.

In answer to the question of what he proposed to do, he said:

"We are waiting for it to come. When it gets here we will make one more stand. If it crosses Van Ness Avenue the city is gone.

Annual sale Kneipp linen mesh underwear.

BY far the greatest sale of Spring and Summer underwear we have ever held. Messrs. C. Commichau & Co., manufacturers of the Kneipp linen mesh underwear, have recently installed an entire set of new machinery, and this famous linen mesh underwear that has so many thousands of friends the world over must undergo a slight change of weave. As a result the stock on hand, amounting to 15,000 garments, came to us at less than half regular wholesale prices. Main Floor.

$1.50 Regularly 3.25 and 3.50.

There's no underwear that has so many friends in the medical profession as Kneipp linen mesh—none so much worn by athletes and men devoted to physical culture—none that safeguards so well against colds, chills and pneumonia.

This is because of the wonderful absorbent and porous qualities of linen yarn. It is the first linen mesh underwear to come into general use, and amid the many imitations that have arisen, Kneipp linen mesh underwear still leads. Expert examination shows that it is absolutely free from mixture of any kind.

A leading Fifth Avenue haberdasher declares that he sells more of this underwear than of all others combined. After this lot is sold the garments turned out by new machinery will cost you 3.25 per garment, but those who take time by the forelock will secure a year's supply at less than half price. APRIL 1906

ENORMOUS LOSSES OF FIRE COMPANIES

108 Concerns Carried $238,000,000 of Insurance.

AGENTS NOT HEARD FROM

Not One Underwriter Has Sent a Message to His Home Office—List of Losing Companies.

Fire underwriters were utterly at a loss yesterday in regard to the extent of the California earthquake disaster. While on Wednesday they were estimating roughly the amount of their outstanding liability within a comparatively restricted business area of San Francisco they began with the spread of the fire to figure what were their total amounts of insurance in the entire city.

From the hour when the wires went down on Wednesday morning until the close of business yesterday not one New York underwriter had received a direct communication from a San Francisco underwriter. With the aid of now and then a short message from Chicago and the news dispatches, which lacked details as to property destroyed, underwriters tried to form an idea of what percentage of the insured value of the city was destroyed by fire or by fire and earthquake jointly.

The City of San Francisco covers about forty-six square miles. The estimated assessed value of real and personal property on June 1 of last year was about $524,250,000 on a valuation of 70 per cent. In the State of California 108 concerns, including companies and underwriting agencies guaranteed by companies, are licensed to do business. Their total outstanding insurance upon property within the city limits of San Francisco aggregated about $238,880,000. As to the ratio of loss, underwriters are waiting to learn two things—what part of the city was ruined by earthquake alone before fire set in and what salvage remains in the wasted areas and in districts which may suffer a comparatively slight damage.

The Hartford Fire Insurance Company, which alone carries nearly $6,000,000 of insurance in the wrecked city, figured its probable loss yesterday at not less than $2,000,000. This is about 36 to 40 per cent. of its outstanding liability. The Aetna Insurance Company of Hartford, which had written about $3,576,000 last year in San Francisco, is believed to have lost a considerably larger percentage than the Hartford. Some of the other companies have reason to believe that their insurance policies are more largely confined to the less-damaged areas.

In no quarter was any disposition shown yesterday to raise technicalities where the property destroyed was wrecked partly by earthquake and partly by fire. As to the effect of the disaster upon the companies, no underwriter of prominence was ready to hazard an opinion. That the losses to the companies would be a serious tax on their resources was freely admitted.

The list of the 108 underwriting concerns doing business in San Francisco and the approximately estimated amounts of their outstanding insurance in that city follow:

London Assurance	$7,016,000

With $238,880,000 of insurance at stake in the city and the fire not under control, underwriters admitted that the Chicago fire of 1871, with its damage of $170,000,000, had been exceeded, while it was considered that the aggregate damage in Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, and other places was sufficiently great to be momentous, had there been not a dollar of loss in San Francisco itself.

Great Britain will pay a considerable part of the losses, because on the Pacific Coast the foreign companies have for years written nearly half the outstanding insurance. Some of the companies, which have the largest California lines, are hardly known in New York. The Rhine and Moselle Insurance Company of Strasburg, with its approximate outstanding San Francisco total of $4,768,000 insurance, is an instance of this.

Abroad the weight of the blow has begun to be appreciated already. For example, in Liverpool the shares of the Royal Insurance Company fell yesterday from £56 5s. to £53 15s., while Liverpool and London and Globe shares fell from £52 12s. 6d to £49 15s.

So many were the inquiries as to whether the insurance companies would contest all but perfectly clear losses that Willis O. Robb, Secretary of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, made the following statement yesterday:

> There may be a few exceptions in some of the policies of the many companies doing business in California, but the standard policy excepts payment only in the case of damage by earthquake. If a building were completely demolished by earthquake and the ruins were subsequently burned, of course, the owner could recover no insurance.
>
> But if the building withstood the shock and was subsequently destroyed by fire, then the insurance company would have to pay for the loss by fire, less any theoretical loss which testimony might establish the building suffered by reason of the earthquake. In such cases there would always be some grounds for a compromise.
>
> But in the great majority of cases, according to the news dispatches thus far, the fire in the buildings which withstood the shock seems to have spread after the earthquake. Some of the buildings may have been slightly cracked, but that would be difficult for the companies to establish.
>
> Where the company could not clearly show that the building which was burned was previously materially damaged by the earthquake, it would have to pay the entire value of the fire policy.
>
> In the majority of cases of frame buildings which took fire subsequently to the shock there would be no dispute whatever. The companies would have to pay for the loss, no matter in what way the fire originated.
>
> Another serious item in the case of the fire in San Francisco is the loss of buildings by dynamite used in the effort to prevent greater damage. By one of the California statutes, whenever a building has to be blown up by dynamite by the firemen to prevent the spread of fire, the insuring company has to stand the loss.
> It does not make any difference whether or not it is in the policy of the company. The California law is supreme in such cases, and all companies doing business in the State have to abide by the law.

Some of the officials of the larger companies declared freely yesterday that a company which would be disposed to quibble with its policy holders would be practically forced into line by the joint action of the others. A company which would quibble would have to find testimony as to exact conditions after the earthquake and before the fire, and would have to prove its case to a California jury. Such a course, several underwriters asserted, even if successful, would have a very serious effect upon the efforts of such a company to do business in the future in California.

San Francisco had been so thoroughly free from fire for years that nearly all the large companies carried unusually extensive amounts of insurance there. The very freedom from severe fire losses had left it, in the main, a frame city. The conflagration, however, started in newly built business blocks.

But six months ago an expert committee of the National Board of Fire Underwriters reported that San Francisco had "violated all precedent by not burning up." In this report the following summary was presented:

> Conflagration Hazard—Potential Hazard.—In view of the exceptionally large areas, great heights, numerous unprotected openings, general absence of firebreaks or stops, highly combustible nature of the buildings, many of which have sheathed walls and ceilings, frequency of light wells, and the presence of interspersed frame buildings, the potential hazard is very severe.
>
> Probability Feature.—The above features, combined with the almost total lack of sprinklers, and absence of modern protective devices generally, numerous and mutually aggravating conflagration breeders, high winds and comparatively narrow streets, make the probability feature alarmingly severe.
>
> Summary.—While two of the five sections, into which the congested value district is divided involve only a mild conflagration hazard within their own limits, they are badly exposed by the others, in which all the elements of the conflagration hazard are present to a marked degree. Not only is the hazard extreme within the congested value district, but it is augmented by the presence of a compact, surrounding, great-height, large-area frame residence district, itself unmanageable from a fire-fighting standpoint by reason of adverse conditions introduced by topography.
>
> In fact, San Francisco has violated all underwriting traditions and precedent by not burning up. That it has not done so is largely due to the vigilance of the Fire Department, which cannot be relied upon indefinitely to stave off the inevitable.

This report also stated that "about 90 per cent. of the entire city and 80 per cent. of the business section is of frame construction, brick buildings being confined almost entirely to the fire limits, and San Francisco can be justly termed a 'wooden city.'"

While the number of fires in the city has been moderate in past years, the loss per fire has been larger than in other cities because of the large number of frame buildings, which, according to this report, were erected as a precaution against damage from earthquake.

UNDERWRITERS HARD PRESSED.

Chicago Officials Fearful for Some of the Smaller Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—It was declared to-night by Chicago insurance men that some of the smaller accident and fire companies may be forced to suspend business, because of their enormous liabilities in San Francisco. Even some of the big companies will be hard pressed by their obligations. The total amount of liabilities involved now is reported here at more than $150,000,000 already in San Francisco alone. Added to the amount at stake in San Francisco will be at least $50,000,000 in other cities.

Insurance men here are worried to a degree bordering on a panic. They believe the losses to the companies will ultimately be far greater in this disaster than in the Chicago and Baltimore fires. The situation is aggravated by the fact that no accurate information as to the full extent of the destruction has been received by any of the local insurance companies or agents.

In many La Salle Street offices to-day, the managers of the insurance concerns were restless with anxiety as to the status of their business. Efforts to reach agents in San Francisco were repeatedly made, with futile results. Late estimates of the losses make the insurance men fearful as to the final results.

S. A. Rothermel, Secretary of the Traders' Insurance Company, which has risks amounting to nearly $5,000,000 in San Francisco, left to-night for that city to find out what the exact losses from fire are. Other representatives of various companies will follow him to-morrow. Other local companies to be affected by the disaster are the German National, with $1,250,000 in San Francisco risks; the Calumet Insurance Company, with $1,116,000 in San Francisco risks; and others of minor importance.

For Men Who Are Intent Upon The Main Chance:

Distinctive Suits at $20.00 to $25.00.

Build your tower as high as you will, but be certain that your foundation is strong enough to support it.

The graceful lines and cleverest innovations promise little for the garment, unless the tailoring be good enough to support them when the garment is in service.

That is what we would prove with our suits at twenty to twenty-five dollars. They are the product of the one organization that has the might and skill to tailor a ready-for-service garment at forty dollars that will justify the cost.

Now then, reason it out on your own account. Does that not incline you to believe that such tailormen can give an inexpensive garment, benefits that are wholly beyond the man whose capacity is limited to suits at a modest price?

Will you not believe that the operation of our tailoring system, devised to fashion garments of the very highest grade, must insure the benefits of expressive tailoring, such as distinctiveness and character, be the price of the suit what it may?

For the man with a "show me" disposition we have an easy chair—he will need it if he go through our stock of models and fabrics:

A series of eight new and altogether different models with straight, round or angular edges; side, centre or false vents; flap or welted pockets; French cuffs, false cuffs, or without cuffs; half lined with mohair or serge. The fabrics include a big collection of worsteds and velour finished weaves in overplaids, stripes, herringbone and mixtures, together with plain gray, black and blue.

THE OPERA SINGERS LOST ALL THEY HAD

Franko Has Lost Track of Eames, Sembrich, and Caruso.

THINKS FRIENDS HAVE THEM

Had to Leave San Francisco Hotels in a Great Hurry — Will Be Brought Back Here.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—By the burning of the St. Francis Hotel, $4,000,000 went up in smoke. This magnificent hotel, which at the time of its destruction was being enlarged at great expense, was filled with guests.

Among those stopping at the hotel when the building was destroyed were James Ryley and wife of the Hotel Wolcott, New York City, several members of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, and many other Eastern visitors.

It was reported that no one was injured at the St. Francis. Adolphus Busch and party left the hotel when it was apparent that the building was doomed, and they are now housed with relatives at the Presidio.

The opera singers who were at the St. Francis, as well as those at the Palace Hotel, lost their all, except several violins valued at $12,000, which were saved from the flames at the eleventh hour by Nahan Franko, the musical director. Costumes, scenery, personal belongings, and musical instruments—everything, went into the flames. It is reported that several members of the opera company are without money or belongings.

Director Franko is now endeavoring to arrange for passage to New York for his people, and it is expected they will be rushed to New York at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Franko, who is now in Oakland, says that many of the stars have been lost sight of, including Mmes. Eames and Sembrich and Mr. Caruso, but he is of the opinion that they have been taken in charge by friends.

FRANKO TELEGRAPHS CONRIED.

Asks the Director to Tell Friends of "Our Safety."

Friends of the stagehands of the Conried Metropolitan Grand Opera Company heard on Wednesday night that the stagehands had escaped injury in the San Francisco disaster. The news came in a message from one of the stage carpenters.

Mr. Conried, however, did not hear directly about the members of his company, until at noon yesterday he received this message from Nahan Franko, one of the conductors of the orchestra:

"Inform friends of musicians through the Musical Union of our safety."

Mr. Conried also received another telegram, addressed to Mrs. Fred Hoslie. It read: "Had an earthquake. All well." This telegram was signed "Fred Hoslie," who is Mrs. Hoslie's husband, and one of the stagehands attached to the opera company.

Mr. Conried learned yesterday morning that his secretary, Mr. Meltzer, who was supposed to have been in Los Angeles, was in San Francisco at the Palace Hotel when the earthquake occurred

Mr. Conried said he could place no damage on the scenery used in the operatic productions, but that it was very valuable. Out of the six performances which were to have been given, but two had been presented, on Monday and Tuesday evenings. The Director said that as soon as he could get into communication with the members of his company he would order them all back to New York.

PANIC IN THE PALACE HOTEL.

Chicago Man Tells of Experiences After the Earthquake.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—Albert H. Gould of Chicago was one of three persons to arrive in Los Angeles on the first train from San Francisco, which reached here at 11 o'clock to-day.

"I was asleep on the seventh floor of the Palace Hotel," he said, "at the time of the first quake. I was thrown out of bed and half way across the room. I made my way down six flights of stairs and into the main corridor. I was the first guest to appear.

"Clerks and hotel employes were running about like madmen. Within two minutes other guests began to flock into the court. Most all wore night clothing only. Men, women, and children stood as though fixed. Children and women cried. The men were hardly less affected.

"I returned to my room and got my clothing, then walked to the offices of the Western Union in my bare feet to telegraph my wife in Los Angeles. I found the telegraphers on duty, but all the wires were down. I sat down on the sidewalk, picked the broken glass out of the soles of my feet, and put on my clothes.

"All this, I suppose, took twenty minutes. Within that time below the Palace Hotel buildings for more than three blocks were a mass of flames, which quickly spread to other buildings. The scene was terrible. Billows of fire seemed to roll from half-consumed blocks to other blocks. The Spreckels Building, at Third and Market Streets, looked out of plumb.

"I remained in San Francisco until 8 o'clock, and then took a ferry for Oakland, but returned to the burning city an hour and a half later. I remained a few minutes, then made my way back to the ferry station. People by thousands were crowded around. They clawed at the iron gates like so many maniacs. They sought to break the bars, and failing in that turned on each other. After a maddening delay we got aboard the boat and crossed the bay."

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOR.

Made Yesterday a Holiday to Permit Order to be Restored.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 19.—Gov. Pardee yesterday issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas, A disastrous earthquake has this day visited a large portion of the State of California, resulting in appalling loss of life, in great fire loss, and disturbing the business affairs of many communities;

"Whereas, The City of San Francisco, in particular, has not only suffered great loss of life and property from earthquake, but, in addition, has been devastated by a terrible conflagration, by which double calamity the whole State is injuriously affected; now,

"Therefore, In order that the citizens of the State may set aside their ordinary daily concerns to address themselves to the catastrophe which has befallen them, in order that they may render aid to those in distress, that quiet may be restored, confidence regained, and financial panic averted, I, George C. Pardee, Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Legislature and laws of the State, do hereby appoint, designate, and proclaim Thursday, the 19th day of April, 1906, as a public holiday. "GEORGE C. PARDEE."

BRAVE MEN SAVED THE MINT.

Flames Were All About, but They Were Fought Back.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Word was received to-day that the United States Mint at San Francisco escaped serious damage from the earthquake and the conflagration, and its stock of gold and silver coin and bullion, amounting to about $39,000,000, is safe.

Mr. Roberts, the Director of the Mint, received a telegram from Supt. Leach:

"Mint buildings not damaged much by shock, but the big smokestacks were badly shaken and may have to come down; but not sure about it now. Every building around the entire mint burned to the ground.

"It is only building not destroyed for blocks. I reached building before worst of the fire came, finding a lot of our men, then stationed them at points of vantage from roof to basement, and with our fire apparatus and help from Fire Department we successfully [illegible] fire away, although the windows on Mint Avenue and back side, third story, were burned out."

AID BY LOS ANGELES.

Train of Supplies Started—Thousands Pledged for Relief.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—A special train of sixteen cars loaded with supplies was started out over the Southern Pacific line this evening, and the steamer Roanoke is being loaded at San Pedro with clothing and provisions for San Francisco.

The Relief Committee of business men has pledged $100,000, the County of Los Angeles donated to-day $20,000. The Times's fund now amounts to more than $30,000, the Order of Native Sons has sent $5,000, and contributions from all sources are pouring in to the relief of the homeless and starving.

This message was sent to Gov. Pardee this afternoon by the Relief Committee:

"All supplies needed can be forwarded as promptly as transportation facilities can be afforded. FEAR FOR THE ACTORS CAUGHT BY THE DISASTER

The William Collier Company Should Have Been There.

WAS TO SAIL YESTERDAY

No Word from Belasco's Family or David Warfield's Mother and Sister.

There is great anxiety among theatrical men over the fate of the hundreds of players who are supposed to have been in San Francisco at the time of the catastrophe. Only in one or two cases were there any replies to the hundreds of telegrams, and these were of the vaguest nature.

Alf Hayman, who manages the William Collier company, which was due to sail yesterday from San Francisco for Australia, had heard no word from the company. Mr. Collier left New York a week ago with a company of fifteen players, including Mabel Taliaferro, John Saville, and James Nash.

The company was due to reach San Francisco late on Tuesday evening or early on Wednesday morning and could have hardly been lodged in a hotel before the earthquake. Neither Mr. Hayman nor any friend of the members of the company in this city has heard from them since they left New York.

Last evening Florence Roberts, now playing at the Liberty in "The Strength of the Weak," received a telegram stating that her relatives were safe.

The other principal figures in the theatrical world who are natives of San Francisco have heard nothing from their relatives and friends. David Belasco's entire family are residents of the stricken city. David Warfield's mother and sister also reside there.

Ada Lewis of "The Social Whirl" company, has also a mother and sister there. Among others who have relatives and friends are Miss Bates and Mr. Benrimo of "The Girl of the Golden West" company, W. H. Northrup of "The Strength of the Weak" company, Irene Hobson, a chorus girl, and Edward Price, theatrical manager.

In addition to the Metropolitan Opera Company, which opened at the Grand Opera House in San Francisco on Monday night, there were there the "Babes in Toyland" company, with Ignacio Martinetti, at the Columbia Theatre; Walter Perkins in "Who Goes There?" at the Majestic; the Cherry Blossom Burlesquers at the California, and stock companies at the Alcazar, Alhambra, New Central, and Tivoli Theatres. Vaudeville was at the Orpheum, Chute's, Fisher's, and other houses.

Although the Western "Lion and the Mouse" company had concluded its engagement at the Columbia in San Francisco, it is believed that several members of the company were still in the city at the time of the earthquake. They were playing in Oakland on Monday and Tuesday nights.

Some of the principal members of the company are Arthur Byron, Gertrude Coghlan, George Parsons, Joseph Kilgour, Lillian Dix, and Edith Shayne.

Edwin Stevens, late of the "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" company, was appearing in vaudeville this week at San Francisco.

THEATRE INTERESTS SUFFER.

Losers Will Wait Before Rebuilding in San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The destruction of the theatres of San Francisco means a direct loss to many Chicago interests. The Majestic Theatre, which was owned by the Shubert Brothers, owners of the Garrick Theatre in Chicago, is a total loss. It cost $85,000.

Manager Gerson of the Garrick said to-day that it was doubtful whether the playhouse would be rebuilt.

"We are going to wait until we see how the city recovers, for it would be folly to talk of rebuilding a theatre before other interests are taken care of," he said. "I believe Seattle will take on added life as a result of San Francisco's misfortune. I look for a boom up there. In that case it may be that we will look to Seattle as the place for a Western theatre."

NEWS SOUGHT OF NEW YORKERS

Anxiety of Concerns Here Having Branches in San Francisco.

There was increased alarm yesterday among those in this city having large interests in San Francisco when the news showed that conditions had not improved in the California metropolis. The anxiety was increased by the fact that no direct communication could be had with the stricken city.

Col. W. Evans of Wells, Fargo & Co. sent a wire asking what had happened to the express company's new million-dollar building at Second and Mission Streets. The only news received was on Wednesday, when the San Francisco cashier wired that there was an earthquake and that the building had been damaged. As no news has been received since, the worst is feared for the building.

The Southern Pacific had a wire working until 2 o'clock yesterday morning, but no news was sent over it from San Francisco since Wednesday afternoon, which indicated that the instrument had been abandoned. The Southern Pacific's offices in San Francisco are on California Street, between Montgomery and Sansome Streets. The last dispatch received over the wire said that the building had been deserted by all but the operator, who was on the point of leaving.

Considerable anxiety was manifested at the Maritime Exchange as to the shipping in San Francisco Bay at the time of the earthquake. No marine dispatch has been received since Wednesday morning, and that had been filed on Tuesday evening. Dearborn & Latham of 10 Bridge Street, who operate the American Hawaiian Steamship Company, have received no word from their agents. William Diamond & Co., whose offices are at Pine and Market Streets, San Francisco, in a fine building, which it is feared has been burned with the others in that district.

E. E. Olcott, General Manager of the Hudson River Day Line, received the following telegram yesterday morning from his partner, Christopher R. Corning, who arrived in San Francisco a few days before the earthquake:

"Bad earthquake. Entirely safe. Telephone relatives. This catastrophe is certainly apalling."

Ruhlman & Co., San Francisco fruit dealers, who have offices in this city, at 261 Washington Street, received this:

"Fire still raging. City under militia, who are doing police duty."

B. K. Denbigh, New York agent of the American and Australian Steamship Company, up to 10 o'clock yesterday had received no reply to numerous telegrams of inquiry sent to the main offices at San Francisco. The company owns large docks at the foot of Pacific Street, which is in the heart of the burned district.

RUSH TO STRICKEN CITY.

Thousands Leave Chicago—5,000 Telegrams There Waiting to be Sent.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Passenger Traffic Manager Black of the Santa Fé system announced late to-day that all passenger trains are now running through by way of Albuqurque and Mojave to the Santa Fé terminus on San Francisco Bay at Point Richmond. All the damage done to the track by the earthquake has been repaired. The ferryboat of the Santa Fé Road, the San Pablo, is in regular service between Point Richmond and the Market Street landing in San Francisco.

Mr. Black also announced that, while outside travelers are not allowed at present to enter the city of San Francisco, it is probable that within the next two or three days the embargo will be removed. There has been no interruption of through train service on the Santa Fé to Los Angeles, San Diego and other points in Southern California.

The Southern Pacific Railway, it is announced, has repaired its tracks and telegraph lines and resumed passenger and freight traffic between Sacramento and Oakland to-night.

Every train leaving Chicago for California to-day was crowded with half frantic residents of San Francisco. After a sleepless night of vain endeavor to get some word from relatives and friends in the ruined city the California guests at all the Chicago hotels rushed to the railway stations to take trains for the West. A number of San Francisco people who reached Chicago to-day started back at once.

In addition to the people from California who are hastening home, there are hundreds of people from the East and from Chicago and vicinity, members of whose families are in San Francisco, and all of them are trying to start West at once.

The Western Union Telegraph Company to-day sent to San Francisco ten miles of aerial cable and wire necessary to equip a new office. The consignment went by special train, following a carload of telegraph instruments which went with the Overland Limited. Chief Electrician McKissick and assistants left here for San Francisco last night. Salt Lake City and Portland have been drawn on for additional operators to man the extra wires, as soon as connections are made.

Telegraph and telephone offices are deluged with thousands of messages from friends and relatives in this city, inquiring for information of the fate of loved ones in devastated San Francisco. Hundreds of Chicagoans are in that city, either on business or on pleasure trips, while many residents here have relatives who make San Francisco their home.

One telegraph company reports that it has 5,000 messages on file, waiting to be dispatched to the Pacific Coast. Frantic men and women who feared for friends or relatives tried to bribe clerks of the company and to bring the influence of business to bear to have their messages rushed ahead of the others, but the rule of "first come, first served" was strictly enforced.

SYMPATHY HEADED OFF.

A Resolution of Regret Suppressed in the Illinois Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 19.—Great indignation was expressed on all sides to-day at an exhibition of cheap politics at the special legislative session by which a resolution of sympathy for San Francisco was choked off.

E. J. Glackin of Chicago was the Democratic member who had the resolution. He attempted to get the ear of the Speaker at the opening of the session, but Chester W. Church of Chicago, Chairman of the House Republican steering committee, insisted that the document should go to his committee. The Speaker, who did not want it to go there contrary to the wishes of the Chairman of the steering committee, gave way, and refused to recognize Mr. Glackin.

Few of the members knew what was contained in Mr. Glackin's resolution, but when the nature of it became known members like Charles A. Allen, Cicero J. Lindley, and others who have served in the Legislature for years were indignant.

Speaker Shurtleff said after the House had adjourned that he felt he should have let the resolution through, despite the objection raised by the Chairman of the Steering Committee.

Mr. Church explained that he only followed the rules when he insisted that the subject should be referred to the Steering Committee. There is a rule which provides that all resolutions be submitted to the dominant party leaders.

SCHWAB SUPPORTS MARKET.

Helps Mining Brokers—Sympathy for the Coast Exchange.

The Wall Street Mining and Stock Exchange sent this telegram to the two mining Exchanges in San Francisco and the Mining Exchange at Goldfield, Nav., yesterday:

> The members of the Mining Exchange in New York, in special meeting, by resolution, extend sympathy to the members of the San Francisco Exchanges. The market here has been strengthened by the announcement that Mr. Schwab will lend, through New York brokers, 50 per cent. of the market value of approved Nevada stocks. Brokers here doing everything possible to discourage bearish activity. Supporting orders coming into this market.
> F. C. STAFFORD, Secretary.

There has been considerable activity recently in the stocks of the Tonopah, Goldfield, Bullfrog, and Manhattan properties in Navada, and the San Francisco Exchanges have transacted much of the business in these stocks. The San Francisco disaster will leave the market to be handled by New York, Philadelphia, and Goldfield until the San Francisco Exchange begins to operate again.

OFFICER MORTALLY INJURED.

Lieut. Pulis Blown Up by Dynamite in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19, (via Oakland.)—Lieut. Charles C. Pulis, commanding the Twenty-fourth Company of light artillery, was blown up by a charge of dynamite at Sixth and Jesse Streets yesterday and is probably mortally injured. He was taken to the Military Hospital at the Presidio. He has a fractured skull, several bones are broken, and he has internal injuries.

He had just placed a heavy charge of dynamite in a building in Sixth Street. The fuse was imperfect and did not ignite the charge as soon as was expected. Pulis went into the building to relight the fuse and the charge exploded while he was there.

Lieut. Pulis was born in Wisconsin July 6, 1874, and was graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1896. He was a Second Lieutenant in the Third Nebraska Infantry in July, 1898, a Colonel July 24, 1899, a First Lieutenant of Volunteers Aug. 17, 1899, and a Captain Jan. 15, 1901.

LOSSES OF THE PACKERS.

Chicago Firms Believe Their Plants Have Been Destroyed.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Chicago packers may suffer a property loss of approximately $200,000 in the San Francisco fire. The Armour, Swift, and Morris firms have branch houses there, from which the export trade in the Orient is managed.

Arthur Meeker, General Manager of the Armour Packing Company, said last night that his firm had about $50,000 invested in its branch house. The building is a leased one and is within the fire zone.

The Morris house also maintained a branch establishment in San Francisco with an investment of approximately $60,000. No word was received in Chicago from their San Francisco manager up to a late hour last night.

ONLY 10 KILLED IN SAN JOSE.

Public Buildings Destroyed—Lick Observatory Untouched.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 19.—The latest reports to-day show that ten persons were killed by the earthquake in San Jose. The Hall of Records is destroyed, as well as the Hall of Justice.

R. H. Tucker, in charge of the Lick Observatory, says: "No damage was done to the instruments or the buildings of the observatory by the earthquake."

MANILA, April 20—2:30 A. M.—Honolulu reports that there is no communication with San Francisco.

CITY QUICKLY GIVES $500,000

Generous Aid Promised for San Francisco.

THE PRESIDENT APPEALS

Mayor Asks Prominent Men to Form An Aid Committee.

FINANCIERS ARE EAGER

Exchanges Start Relief Funds—Theatres to Hold Benefits—Whole Country Follows the Example.

President Roosevelt, aside from approving the action taken by Congress, issued an official appeal yesterday for funds to aid the earthquake sufferers in California. Long before the Presidential appeal was issued, however, cities and towns in every part of the United States had been stirred into practical sympathy for San Francisco, and had begun to send in contributions to relieve its stricken people.

New York led in these efforts to extend practical sympathy. At the close of business hours yesterday nearly $500,000 had either been contributed or pledged from this city for the relief of the earthquake victims. The individual contributions to the New York relief fund so far exceed anything ever contributed to a similar cause.

Mayor McClellan, immediately after arriving at his office in the City Hall yesterday morning, presided at a meeting to consider ways and means to aid the stricken people of San Francisco. The Mayor had already sent a telegram to Mayor Schmitz offering help on behalf of this city.

Those attending the meeting were Cleveland H. Dodge, representing the National Red Cross Society; Robert W. De Forest, representing the United Charities Organization; Thomas M. Mulry, representing the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and Nathan Bijur, representing the United Hebrew Charities.

Didn't Wait.

At the time of this meeting no word had been received from San Francisco intimating that aid was needed. Later, upon receipt of information that his message offering help had been held up in Chicago, the Mayor decided to waive this formality, and at once went ahead with his work of uniting all the charitable organizations in the city to relieve San Francisco.

From names submitted to him the Mayor last night succeeded in appointing a committee of about two hundred, who will undertake the work of gathering and forwarding contributions on behalf of the city. The membership of the committee was announced in this proclamation, issued last night from the Mayor's office:

"PROCLAMATION TO THE PEOPLE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK:

"The appalling disaster that has befallen the City of San Francisco calls for immediate action from you.

"Enough is known of the calamity to show that San Francisco must have quick relief to provide food and shelter for the unfortunate.

"I have appointed a committee of citizens to receive contributions of money. The following gentlemen have been asked to serve:

"Morris K. Jesup, President Chamber of Commerce; H. K. Pomroy, President New York Stock Exchange; G. Perrin, President New York Produce Exchange; Cleveland H. Dodge, President New York State Branch American National Red Cross; Robert W. De Forest, President Charity Organization Society; Thomas M. Mulry, President Superior Council Society of St. Vincent de Paul; Henry Rice, President United Hebrew Charities; R. "Until the committee has had an opportunity to organize I shall be glad to receive contributions at the Mayor's office.

"GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor."

A meeting of the Mayor's committee has been called for this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the audience room at City Hall, and the Mayor probably will call it to order. It is expected that Robert W. De Forest will be appointed permanent Chairman, and that J. P. Morgan & Co. or Jacob H. Schiff will be appointed Treasurer. Vice Presidents will be appointed from the different boroughs to supervise the work of collecting funds there. The Mayor announced last night that before the official appeal had been issued contributions of more than $5,000 had been received at his office for the earthquake sufferers.

Wall Street Eager.

In the Wall Street district, organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce, the New York Stock Exchange, and other Exchanges vied with individual business concerns in extending practical sympathy to the stricken people of San Francisco. There has never been an occasion when generosity has been so open-handed among the financiers of the city.

The Chamber of Commerce, before its relief work had been officially begun, announced last evening the receipt of $65,000 in contributions. The biggest amount was $25,000, contributed by the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. J. & W. Seligman gave $10,000, and N. M. Rothschild & Son of London $5,000 through August Belmont & Co. The Vice Presidents and Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce held an executive meeting at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and plans were made for a meeting of the entire body, which has been called for 12:30 o'clock to-day, when a formal appeal on behalf of the earthquake sufferers will be issued to the public.

The New York Stock Exchange reported contributions amounting to $85,000 up to the close of the market yesterday. This amount was collected in less than ten minutes. It is expected that this sum will be swelled to more than double that amount by contributions which will come in to-day.

There was an impressive scene on the Stock Exchange floor just after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the movement to aid the earthquake sufferers was formally started. Prices were tumbling by the wholesale on account of the California calamity, the roar of the market was rising to the arched ceiling, while brokers were unloading their securities and the bears were having things their own way. Then President H. K. Pomroy of the Stock Exchange mounted the rostrum, Chairman Talbert let his heavy gavel fall three times, and in a moment all the noises of the market day were hushed.

Brokers Quit Work.

To the brokers who silently crowded about the place where the Chairman sits, and who already knew what had occasioned Mr. Pomeroy's appearance, he announced that there would be a temporary suspension of business on the floor. Then, addressing the members, he called attention to the sad plight of the people of San Francisco, and called upon the brokers to come to their aid speedily. These resolutions were then introduced and adopted:

"Resolved that the members of the New York Stock Exchange extend their deepest sympathy to the people of San Francisco in their grave misfortune.

"Resolved, that subscriptions be received and forwarded without delay to the Mayor of the stricken city to be used to alleviate the suffering of the distressed."

A committee consisting of Ernest Thalmann, C. W. Maury, Vice President of the New York Stock Exchange; F. W. Gilley, its Treasurer, and B. N. Baruch, was then appointed. Mr. Thalmann, a member of the firm of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., which has extensive interests in San Francisco, was appointed Chairman of the committee.

Secretary Ely of the Stock Exchange said last evening that contributions amounting to $85,000 had been subscribed within ten minutes of the appointment of the committee. Mr. Thalmann when asked for a list of the contributors said he could not give out the names until he had consulted his colleagues.

"It would hardly be fair to give out names and amounts," said Mr. Thalmann, "but when we are through you may practically take a list of the members of the Stock Exchange and print that as the list of the contributors."

The Consolidated Exchange and the Cotton Exchange also adopted plans to relieve the sufferers from the earthquake, but the taking of contributions in their cases will not begin until to-day. The Produce Exchange has a standing relief committee. This committee got into action following a meeting of the Board of Managers yesterday afternoon, at which resolutions of sympathy with the City of San Francisco were adopted. Notices that a subscription had been started were posted on the floor at once, and individual members were notified by letter of the urgent need of aid. The amount of contributions received was not made public last night.

Out of individual contributions the largest were from John D. Rockefeller, who authorized his agents in San Francisco to spend $100,000 for the relief of the destitute and homeless of that city. A similar amount was offered by Clarence H. Mackay to President Wheeler of the University of California.

"This is the time for all of us to pull together and to show the world what California can do in adversity," telegraphed Mr. Mackay.

When Mr. Mackey's gift was announced it was stated that it was to replace buildings of the university that were destroyed. Associated Press dispatches from Berkeley, however, said later in the day that the university buildings there were damaged very little, despite early reports to the contrary.

M. Guggenheim Sons gave $50,000, and $75,000 was transmitted to Mayor Schmitz through Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. on behalf of that firm, the United Railways Investment Company, Patrick Calhoun, C. Sidney Shephard, and Ford, Bacon & Davis.

The Red Cross organization yesterday nominated Dr. Edward T. Devine, Secretary of the New York City Charity Organization and Professor of Sociology at Columbia University, to assume control of all the Red Cross relief work in California. The nomination was communicated to Secretary of War Taft over the long-distance telephone. Secretary Taft at once appointed Dr. Devine, who left for the West on the Twentieth Century Limited yesterday afternoon.

Red Cross Designated.

President Roosevelt yesterday designated the Red Cross organization as the medium of distribution of all the funds sent in in response to his appeal. Dr. Devine in California will work in co-operation with Brig. Gen. Funston to relieve the earthquake and fire sufferers.

After an emergency meeting held late yesterday afternoon, the New York State Executive Committee of the Red Cross organization sent out an appeal of which this is a part:

"The American people are united in the desire to do all that is possible and all that may be necessary to relieve the horrible conditions that have overwhelmed the victims of the San Francisco earthquake. The American National Red Cross, as the official agency of the American people for doing this work, are ready to serve the American people in every way; to receive contributions from individuals, from firms, from organizations, or from special relief committees; and to forward them to San Francisco and other afflicted places in California for use. The matter of forwarding supplies will be considered at a later meeting. Owing to the great length of time required to transport supplies, these things are not practicable as immediate relief for the western part of the United States. In another day or two we shall know whether assistance of this kind is desired.

"The New York State Red Cross therefore calls upon all the people of the State and all its subdivisions to do their utmost to collect money to relieve their fellow-countrymen who are at the mercy of earthquake and unchecked fire, and to forward it promptly to the State headquarters. Checks should be made out to Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, Room 509, 500 Fifth Avenue."

This was signed by Cleveland H. Dodge, Chairman; William Cary Sanger, Elihu Root, Mrs. W. K. Draper, Jacob H. Schiff, Howard Townsend, Douglas Robinson, John D. Crimmins, George C. Boldt, Oscar S. Straus, Alfred T. White, F. C. Gratwick, T. R. Proctor, W. S. Andrews, and W. C. Langdon, Secretary.

Among those who attended the meeting were Robert C. Ogden, Douglas Robinson, Alfred T. White, Cleveland H. Dodge, John D. Crimmins, Schuyler M. Warren, Mrs. Catherine Leverich, Mrs. E. F. Britton, and Mrs. T. S. Bergen. George C. Boldt, who is a member of the Executive Committee, tendered the Red Cross Society the use of the Waldorf-Astoria for its deliberations.

Merchants' Association.

The Board of Directors of the Merchants' Association, after a meeting held yesterday afternoon, at which resolutions of sympathy were adopted, sent telegrams to Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco and the Merchants' Association of that city, extending their sympathy and offering their aid. Later, in pursuance of the resolutions adopted, a committee was appointed to collect subscriptions.

The committee is composed of Clarence Whitman, Chairman; Gustav H. Schwab, Treasurer; Controller Metz, David Willcox, H. H. Westinghouse, Edward D. Page, Harry R. Towne, Horace J. Morse, William F. King, W. R. H. Martin, Arthur Iselin, John C. Eames, James Oliphant, George L. Duval, George A. Hearn, J. Hampton Dougherty, T. W. Ormiston, P. A. S. Franklin, John C. Fehring, and Dr. E. G. Janeway.

The committee immediately framed an address to the people of this city, containing an appeal for funds, of which 30,000 copies will be sent out to-day. The checks sent to the Merchants' Association should be made payable to Gustav H. Schwab, Treasurer.

Theatre Benefits.

Several theatrical benefits will be given for the earthquake sufferers. One of the largest will be at the Hippodrome. According to announcement made by the Hippodrome management, the house has been turned over for both performances on Saturday to a relief committee consisting of prominent New York women. Among those who, according to the management, have consented to act as patronesses are:

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Harry Lehr, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mrs. Charles Childs, Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, Mrs. Henry Clews, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mrs. George Gould, Mrs. Francis Carolan, Mrs. Raoul-Duval, Mrs. James Speers, Mrs. Stanford White, and Mrs. Clarence Mackay.

The announcement of the benefit was read from the Hippodrome stage last night. Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs has already taken all the boxes. Of the other sittings Howard Fielding paid $1,000 for 100 seats for the employes of the United States Express Company. Several seats have been disposed of at from $10 to $50. The usual gross receipts for a Saturday performance are $10,000, and it is expected that the receipts for the benefits will far exceed double that sum.

Actors Volunteer.

Henry B. Harris and Daniel Frohman will give Monday night's receipts of "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum Theatre to the California sufferers. The members of the company will volunteer their services, and, in addition, will make up a purse to buy one seat which will be turned back to the box office to be resold.

A representative of Charles Frohman announced last night that Mr. Frohman and Maude Adams will give the entire receipts of the Empire Theatre to-night to the San Francisco relief fund. It will be the two hundredth performance of "Peter Pan," in which Miss Adams is appearing. Mr. Barrie, the author, cabled from London yesterday to Mr. Frohman's office the sum of $250 to be applied to the relief fund.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., conferred yesterday with Henry Miller as to the possibility of having a special benefit performance under their patronage at the Princess. It will probably be arranged very soon, and Miss Margaret Anglin will come in from her tour to participate. Mr. Miller and Miss Anglin are very popular on the Pacific Coast.

Joe Weber has arranged a special benefit matinée in his theatre for next Tuesday. He has leased a store in Broadway, which he will stock with shoe laces, penknives, and other useful things, and there he will install Miss Marie Dressler, Bonnie Maginn, and the other members of his company as saleswomen. They hope to raise a large sum on the matinée and their novel shop enterprise.

Manager Sire of the Bijou will announce a benefit matinée, probably to-day, for next week.

Manager Fiske of the Manhattan has arranged for a special matinée of "Charley's Aunt" for next week.

Frank McKee, at the Savoy, will give a special benefit matinée of "It's All Your Fault."

The Shuberts will give benefit matinées in several of their theatres next week.

George M. Cohan, the comedian, bought a wagon load of evening papers in Times Square last night and resold them for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers. He announced that he would repeat the performance to-night.

P. T. Powers, President of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, has sent out an appeal to the members of the association for financial aid for the California baseball clubs. Mr. Powers headed the fund with a subscription of $200.

James P. Silo, a Fifth Avenue art dealer and auctioneer, announced the receipt of a letter yesterday from Mrs. Emma F. Sully, wife of Daniel J. Sully, the cotton broker, authorizing him to set aside for the San Francisco sufferers 2 per cent. of the proceeds of the forthcoming sale of her pictures. Mr. Silo said he expected the sale to net $200,000.

HERO FUND GIVES $25,000.

Members of Carnegie Body Give $50,000 More—Pittsburg's Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 19.—Pittsburg hastened to-day to aid San Francisco. The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, whose members are in Philadelphia attending the Franklin celebration to-day, donated $25,000. About $50,000 more was given for the stricken Pacific Coast metropolis by the members as individuals.

A joint meeting of the Pittsburg City Councils, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association was held this afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting had been called by Mayor George W. Guthrie, and was presided over by him. Within 45 minutes $22,426 was raised. A committee of twenty-one members was appointed, which will solicit further funds. Almost $25,000 was raised by the newspapers. All will be turned into the general fund.

A Pittsburg business man this afternoon chartered a special train of fifty cars, which will be filled with clothing and provisions by the people of Pittsburg and hurried through to the stricken city. It will leave here on Saturday for the coast. Three of the local theatres have already offered the total receipts of one performance to the committee.

F. M. Wilmot, manager of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, said this afternoon that the $25,000 donated by that organization was for the immediate use of the stricken people, and that more would be forthcoming if it was needed. All of the members of the commission are deeply interested in California. Particularly so is President Taylor, who spends every Summer automobile riding in that State.

San Francisco was one of the first cities in the country to offer relief to Johnstown when that city was destroyed. A meeting of the citiezns of that city was held this afternoon and a relief fund was started which has already reached several thousand dollars.

This telegram was received to-night at the office of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission:

San Francisco, April 19.

Charles L. Taylor, President Carnegie Hero Fund:

Your offer of $25,000 accepted with sincere appreciation. T. E. SCHMITZ.

GREAT BENEFIT PLANNED.

All-Day Performance at the Metropolitan Arranged.

A great benefit performance in aid of the sufferers at San Francisco is to be given by the joint managers of the Theatrical Managers' Association at the Metropolitan Opera House on May 4. The performance is to start at 11 A. M. and last until midnight. Every prominent actor in the city has already been asked to help.

Twenty-five thousand tickets will be issued at $1 each. The society has already bought the first seat for $1,000. Some tickets will be distributed through the Police and Fire Departments. Others will be put on sale at the hotels and big department stores.

The committee in charge is F. F. Proctor and Percy Williams, vaudeville; Heinrich Conried, Daniel Frohman and Charles Burnham, opera and drama; John S. Springer, Treasurer. The Musical Protective Union will supply the musicians free.

RAILROADS WILL HELP.

Will Carry Relief Supplies Free—Telegraph Companies Volunteer.

Railroad, express, and telegraph companies came forward yesterday offering to transmit free of charge to the stricken people of San Francisco and vicinity supplies and messages directed to the properly constituted authorities or organizations in charge of relief work.

Both the Pennsylvania and the Erie Railroad Companies announced that they would ship free of charge from any point on their own lines to any other point all merchandise sent for the relief of the sufferers from the San Francisco earthquake. While these Eastern roads do not carry much further West than Chicago, similar offers were made by various roads there with terminals in the stricken city.

President Clowry of the Western Union Telegraph Company made this announcement:

"The Western Union Telegraph Company will transmit free domestic messages relating to the relief of sufferers at San Francisco when offered by duly constituted relief organizations or public officers in their official capacity.

"When destined to San Francisco such messages will be subject to such delay as the conditions at that point impose."

WHAT CALIFORNIA NEEDS.

Governor Also Says Only a Fifteenth of the State Was Affected.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. April 19.—Gov. Pardee sent this dispatch to-day to Gov. Folk of Missouri in reply to an offer of aid:

"Thanks for your offer of help. There are thousands of homeless people in San Francisco and other towns, and food and shelter must be furnished. At the same time the people of the East should understand that the area affected by the earthquake is only about one-fifteenth of the whole State. The great Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys and all the northern and southern portions of the State escaped the disaster. In San Francisco most of the ruin was wrought by fire and not by earthquake.

"GEORGE C. PARDEE."

$1,000,000 FOR RELIEF VOTED BY CONGRESS

Washington Is Acting with the Energy of War Time.

NO STOPS FOR RED TAPE

Shelter, Supplies, Food, and Medicines Ordered Forward from All Points—Army Handles Expenditures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The whole power of the Government has been called into play for the relief of stricken San Francisco. The strong military arm of the Nation is at work to-night with all its tremendous energy, and army, navy, revenue marine, and even the Fish Commission are hurrying forward the needed measures for helping the earthquake-ruined city.

It is exactly as if the country had been plunged suddenly into war with a terrible enemy, a war that focused about the California metropolis. To every part of the country where are stored military or naval supplies that can be of the slightest use to any of the people in the earthquake zone orders have been telegraphed to-day to have everything in readiness for immediate shipment. Rations, clothing, tentage, and medical supplies in unlimited quantities are already under way or about to start, and the army purchasing officers all over the country are preparing to gather what more may be required, buying in the open market without waiting to go through the usual slow process of red-tape methods.

Taft on Duty All Night.

Secretary Taft and Gen. Bell, the new Chief of the General Staff, were on duty practically all of last night, Gen. Bell spending the night at the White House to be ready for instant work. To-day there have been constant conferences between the President and the heads of the executive departments. Early in the day Attorney General Moody was summoned to the White House to give the President advice as to the authority for immediate action, without waiting for the special act of Congress.

Secretaries Root and Taft also advised with the President on the subject of the law. They found that all precedent was for proceeding at once to do all in the power of the Government, and the President promptly gave such instructions. As a matter of fact, that came in the nature of a formal authorization of what had already been begun, for last night Secretary Taft and Gen. Bell had sent out orders which started the work in the military districts outside of San Francisco.

Funston Did Not Wait.

The telegrams from Gen. Funston received last night and to-day show that he waited for no orders from any one. Gen. A. W. Greely, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Division, is on his way to Washington, to be present at the wedding of his daughter here next week. In his absence Gen. Funston acted with a promptness that has already received high commendation from the War Department officials. Several officers commented to-day on the fact that Funston had been busy for several hours before he had time even to notify the department that he was at work.

Funston's promptness in San Francisco is only an illustration of the readiness of the army all over the country. It wanted only the order to get to work at once, and to-night it is mobilizing supplies for San Francisco as if to meet the emergency of a sudden great war.

Orders to Send Rations.

This morning orders were sent to Gen. Williams, in command at Vancouver Barracks, Portland, Oregon, to ship 200,000 rations to San Francisco at once. The revenue cutter Perry happened to be lying in Portland Harbor, and orders were issued to her to carry the rations to San Francisco. In this way the valuable time was saved that it would take for a vessel to get up from California. This afternoon, on the receipt of further information from Gen. Funston, the order to Vancouver Barracks for rations was doubled.

At the same time general orders were issued to all naval commanders everywhere within reach of the stricken district to exert themselves to the utmost of their ability to be of assistance in any way possible, and all naval supplies are held in readiness for use at once. The steamers of the Fish Commission are to co-operate wherever possible.

Congress Acts Promptly.

Congress was no less busy than the Administration forces. Immediately after the opening of the session, without waiting for the reading of the journal, the Senate passed a resolution appropriating $500,000 and giving the same general authority to the War, Navy, and Treasury Departments to act as was given by the House resolution of yesterday. This resolution went over to the House at once. Speaker Cannon announced his opinion that the appropriation was not sufficient, and the House doubled it.

Back the resolution went to the Senate, which promptly accepted the amendment, and the President had the authority of Congress for the action he had been taking.

It was decided by the President that the army should have the handling of the Federal expenditures. He also issued a call to the country for subscriptions of money to be handled by the Red Cross Society.

Flood of Condolences.

During the day the President received dispatches from the rulers of nearly every civilized government on earth, expressing sympathy for the terrible calamity. The State Department was also in receipt of messages from American colonists all over the globe, asking for news, and saying they could not believe the terrible reports they had received. All of them offered to contribute funds for relief at once if the news should be confirmed.

Secretaries Taft and Bonaparte have been in frequent conference to-day regarding the work to be done by their respective forces. To-night 45,000 tents have been ordered shipped to San Francisco, and all the reserve tentage of both army and navy will be sent if necessary.

Surgeon General O'Reilly of the army has issued orders to the great army medical supply depot at St. Louis to start three car loads of medical supplies immediately, and to be prepared to ship further unlimited quantities at a moment's notice.

Work as in War Time.

In a word the Government is working as it would in war time. Its whole power and energy are exerted to give all the relief possible to the homeless destitute victims of the earthquake. Gen. Funston has been officially commended for his promptness and energy, and full authority given him to do everything that he considers necessary. He has about 4,000 troops now at his disposal. It has not yet appeared necessary to send more to San Francisco, but if it does the orders will be issued at once.

Within three days several thousand additional men could be on hand, and it may be that they will be sent without waiting for a request from Funston. The men now with him are under great strain, and army officers in Washington expect to hear of the depletion of the force from exhaustion.

Capt. Powell of the Marine Corps, who has charge of the books and property of the corps at the headquarters in San Francisco, to-night telegraphed Gen. Elliott, Commandant of the Marine Corps, that the books, supplies, and all effects have been destroyed by fire. In the Marine Quartermaster's storehouse about $100,000 worth of uniforms and clothing were destroyed.

The following telegram has been sent by Gen. Bell, Chief of Staff to Gen. Funston, by direction of Secretary Taft, after a conference between Secretary Taft and Secretary Bonaparte:

"The Secretary of War directs me to inform you that the Quartermaster General has been directed to forward to San Francisco all available canvas in the possession of the army. The Commissary General has been directed to ship 200,000 rations from nearest shipping points. Admiral McCalla at Mare Island will be instructed to confer with you and to furnish all food supplies that can be spared from the stores at Mare Island; also to furnish any available canvas suitable for making improvised shelter."

Secretary Taft early this morning sent the following dispatch to Gen. Funston:

"All available hospital, wall, and conical tents will be sent at once by express from Vancouver, Douglass, Logan, Russell, San Antonio, Monterey, Snelling, and Sheridan. Remainder will be sent from Philadelphia depot. Little definite information thus far received as to limits of burned district or conditions. Wire details as comprehensively as possible."

A telegram received at the Navy Department this morning from the commander of the Pacific Squadron, sent since the earthquake, reports that all is well with the squadron. The Chicago and Marblehead are en route from Long Beach to San Francisco, and will probably reach there some time to-morrow. The Boston and Princeton are at Long Beach.

A subscription of $10,000 for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers was made to-day by Mr. Robert Lebaudy, the French philanthropist, through the French Ambassador in Washington. This sum will be immediately available through the French Consul in San Francisco.

The War Department officials have been making estimates of the losses sustained by the Government. The Quartermaster's stores in San Francisco were in rented buildings, and the loss in goods stored there by the Quartermaster's Department is roughly estimated at about $3,500,000. The loss on the commissary supplies is estimated at $200,000.

DETAILS OF THE RELIEF.

Funston Says 200,000 Are Homeless—The Government's Losses.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The War Department received the following telegram from Gen. Funston dated San Francisco, April 19:

"Your four dispatches received. Have already filed several for you. Impossible now to inform you as to full extent of disaster. City practically destroyed. Troops have been aiding police patrolling and maintaining order. Martial law has not been declared. Working in conjunction with civil authorities. Have not interfered with the sending of any dispatches. You cannot send too many tents or rations. About 200,000 people homeless. Food very scarce. Provision houses all destroyed. All Government buildings in city gone."

The following telegram was received at the War Department this afternoon from Gen. Funston, at San Francisco:

"At this time—9:15 A. M.—nothing new. The city is still burning, and it could not be worse. Lieut. Pulis (Coast Artillery) mortally wounded. No other casualties."

The War Department at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon received a telegram from Gen. Funston, at San Francisco, saying that the "fire situation progressing same as reported in telegram of 10:30."

Secretary Bonaparte this afternoon sent the following cablegram to Admiral McCalla, commanding the Mare Island Navy Yard:

"Confer with Gen. Funston at San Francisco, and if deemed desirable you are authorized to transfer to him any stores and provisions at the navy yard, keeping in view the necessities of the fleet. Wire daily quantities transferred."

The Navy Department received the following dispatch from Capt. Perkins, in command of the Naval Training Station in San Francisco Bay:

"Severe earthquake in San Francisco. City in flames. Have sent medical assistance. Am in readiness to furnish other assistance when needed. Mare Island can also furnish assistance. Training station not seriously damaged."

A Western Union dispatch, timed 7:45 P. M., New York time, was received at the War Department to-night. It says everything not on Mission Street in San Francisco is entirely gone, and that Chinatown is wiped out. Also Nob Hill.

The War Department to-night directed the shipment of 300 stewards' tents from Fort Sheridan, Chicago, to San Francisco. This followed a report from Gen. Carter at Fort Sheridan that these tents were on hand.

President Roosevelt has issued instructions to the heads of the several departments that all possible assistance be rendered to the people of San Francisco.

In response to his telegram of yesterday President Roosevelt to-day received the following dispatch from Gov. George C. Pardee of California:

"The Mayor of San Francisco tells me he needs tentage, rations, bedding, and supplies for nundred thousand people. Can you order such supplies in from Government stations? Wire me Oakland."

The President replied:

"Telegram received. All available tents have already been ordered to San Francisco. Also rations. I have directed the Secretary of War to take at once the matter of bedding and supplies, and to do everything that you direct that it is in our power to do.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The President immediately transmitted Gov. Pardee's telegram and his reply thereto to Secretary of War Taft with the following instruction:

"Strain every effort to get the tentage, rations, bedding, and supplies asked for."

Commissary General Sharpe to-night received the following from Col. Davis, Commissary at Vancouver Barracks, Washington:

"Am shipping this afternoon 200,000 rations special train. Railroad promises to deliver early Saturday morning. Will ship 200,000 more rations special train to-morrow.

"Can purchase ample supplies here, Seattle and Tacoma, but will have to import rations, as some articles cannot be supplied at short notice. Railroad at present offers more expeditious way of sending than revenue cutter. Am gathering on request of Gen. Funston all rations that can be spared from posts, all to be shipped to-day."

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL.

Asks That Funds for San Francisco Be Sent to the Red Cross.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Here is President Roosevelt's proclamation to the American people for aid for the people of San Francisco:

"In the face of so terrible and appalling a National calamity as that which has befallen San Francisco, the outpouring of the Nation's aid should, as far as possible, be intrusted to the American Red Cross, the National organization best fitted to undertake such relief work. A specially appointed Red Cross agent, Dr. Edward Devine, starts to-day from New York for California to co-operate there with the Red Cross branch in the work of relief.

"In order that this work may be well systematized, and in order that the contributions which I am sure will flow in with lavish generosity may be wisely administered, I appeal to the people of the United States, to all cities, Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, relief committees, and individuals to express their sympathy and render their aid by contributions to the American National Red Cross. They can be sent to the Hon. Jacob H. Schiff, New York Red Cross Treasurer, or other local Red Cross Treasurers, to be forwarded by telegraph from Washington to the Red Cross agents and officers in California.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The Telegraphers Help.

New York Local No. 16 of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America sent to the President of the San Francisco local of that organization yesterday afternoon a telegram of sympathy for the stricken telegraphers of that city and an order for $100. The New York local will hold a tournament and smoker at the Manhattan Lyceum to-morrow night, at which more subscriptions will be taken.

GOV. HIGGINS ASKS THE STATE TO HELP

Recommends the Red Cross as a Good Agent for the Task.

PROMPT GIFTS REQUESTED

"He Gives Twice Who Gives Quickly," Says Higgins, Asking Aid for San Francisco.

ALBANY, April 19.—Gov. Higgins issued this proclamation to-night to the people of the State:

"To the People of the State of New York:

"A calamity unprecedented has fallen upon the State of California. The City of San Francisco, but yesterday the ninth city in point of population in the United States, has been practically destroyed. It is reported that about 200,000 people are homeless. The news of this disaster brings a prompt and spontaneous desire to the hearts of our citizens to aid in the relief of the thousands who must, temporarily at least, accept the assistance of their fellow-men.

"I urge upon you to give prompt effect to your generous feelings by sending without delay such subscriptions as you may desire to make, remembering that he gives twice who gives quickly.

"The American National Red Cross, of which the Secretary of War, the Hon. William H. Taft, is the President, through Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York City, who is the Treasurer of the New York Branch, or through Mr. Charles Hallam Keep, the Treasurer of the National Association, at Washington, D. C., will receive contributions of money, which will be telegraphed to the local Red Cross branch in San Francisco as they are received.

"The Red Cross has the advantage of being a powerful and permanent organization for the relief of the sick and wounded on the battlefield, the famine-stricken, and the afflicted throughout the world, and I recommend it as a thoroughly reliable and well organized agency for the transmission and distribution of relief funds. "FRANK W. HIGGINS."

OUTSIDE CITIES AID.

Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, and Others Give Thousands.

From cities outside New York generous aid was forthcoming yesterday for the San Francisco earthquake sufferers. Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia led in their tributes to the relief fund.

Offers of aid poured into Chicago from cities and States of the Middle West. Money was offered from all directions, and railroads agreed to carry all supplies free to the coast.

Chicago got $75,000 with the work barely begun. The Chicago Commercial Association gave $25,000 in five minutes. The Chicago Clearing House Association subscribed $50,000. The publis has had no chance to give yet.

Adolf Kraus, President of the B'nai B'rith of Chicago, issued a general order to the Jewish organizations to give freely for the relief of San Francisco. Many other fraternal organizations, the police, and the fire force were raising money.

Among the Governors who offered aid yesterday are Gov. Mickey of Nebraska, Gov. Johnson of Minnesota, and Gov. Deneen of Illinois.

Mayors of nearly all cities in the Middle West have offered aid, and even the smaller cities already have raised $1,000 or more each to give to sufferers in San Francisco.

Boston has contributed at least $100,000. Kidder, Peabody & Co., the treasurers of the fund, wired their representatives in San Francisco authorizing them to place the entire amount at the disposal of Gov. Pardee and Mayor Schmitz. Another meeting of citizens will be held to-day at the Boston City Hall to raise additional funds.

The Executive Committee of the Chicago Vesuvius Relief Association met and decided to change the name to the 'Frisco-Vesuvius Relief Association, and to divide all funds equally between the sufferers in Italy and those in the Pacific Coast city.

The Citizens' Permanent Relief Association of Philadelphia have decided to send $25,000 to San Francisco for the immediate relief of the earthquake sufferers. The money will be sent to California to-day through Drexel & Co. That firm and Brown Brothers & Co. of Philadelphia contributed $10,000 each for the relief of the earthquake sufferers.

In addition to the $25,000 given by the Citizens' Association, the City Council authorized the Finance Committee to present a bill appropriating $25,000 to the San Francisco sufferers. Many responded to a call of Mayor Weaver for funds.

In Sacramento an impromptu meeting was held on the City Hall steps yesterday morning, and $50,000 was raised in twenty minutes for the earthquake sufferers, and a resolution was adopted to start steamers with supplies to the stricken city immediately.

Mayor Bookwalter of Indianapolis sent a dispatch to Mayor Schmitz, authorizing him to draw on him for $10,000 at once, and offering further aid.

The Detroit Board of Commerce held a special meeting, and started to raise a $10,000 fund. In Omaha $10,000 was raised, and more money was pledged. Several carloads of provisions will be started for San Francisco from Omaha to-day. In Denver a relief committee was appointed yesterday.

In Cincinnati the Chamber of Commerce took comprehensive steps yesterday for the relief of San Francisco. Calls were issued to every organization of the city, civic, social, religious, and industrial, for co-operation.

A special meeting of the City Council in Atlanta, Ga., authorized the appropriation of $5,000 for the relief of sufferers by the disaster at San Francisco. The amount was immediately telegraphed.

Mobile, Ala., has raised $1,200, and expects to increase this amount to $5,000.

Syracuse has sent $2,000 to Mayor Schmitz, and promised further aid.

At Trenton, N. J., Gov. Stokes issued an appeal for the earthquake sufferers. Mayor Gulchtel of Trenton wired Mayor Schmitz last night authorizing him to draw on Trenton for $5,000 at once. The Relief Committee in that city expects to raise $15,000 immediately.

Dispatches from Seattle show that $21,000 has been raised for the earthquake sufferers in that city. Tacoma sent 100 tons of supplies and $10,000 cash.

Portland, Ore., went to the assistance of San Francisco quickly. Scarcely had a call for relief been made by the committee composed of members of the different commercial bodies, than it was decided to send $100,000 to San Francisco to-day.

BELIEVES SHOCKS CAN BE PREDICTED

Dr. Hayes Says It Is Merely a Question of Observation.

MANY PREMONITORY SIGNS

Expert of the Geological Survey Suggests the Establishing of Well Equipped Stations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Dr. C. Willard, Geologist of the United States Geological Survey, expressed the opinion this afternoon that the time would come when the scientists would be able to predict an earthquake sufficiently in advance of its occurrence to give warning to persons likely to be caught by it.

"Of course, I do not say that it will come soon," said Dr. Hayes, "but I see nothing improbable in the idea at all. I think it is largely a matter of having a sufficient number of properly equipped observation stations, with prompt and thorough exchange of observations. Earthquakes are almost invariably preceded by premonitory signs and symptoms. These are now recognized and recorded. But there are not enough observers engaged in the work to make their records and observations of practical benefit in the way I have indicated.

"Fifty years ago the idea that it would be possible to predict a storm would have been regarded as preposterous. But with the increase of the number of weather observers, and the development of their instruments they have reached the stage of practical certainty, and the service has become of immense value throughout the world. Of course they have had a great deal more weather to observe than the geologists have had earthquakes, and the scope and thoroughness of their observations have developed more rapidly than in the case of seismic disturbances. But I see no reason why, with a proper extension of the field of observations, and the proper equipment of the observers, there should not result, in a comparatively few years, substantially the ability to foretell, for an appreciable period of time, the occurrence of serious earthquakes."

In discussing the shocks which devastated San Francisco yesterday, Dr. Hayes said that the ultimate cause was undoubtedly "a deep readjustment" of the earth, manifesting itself upon the surface by a slip along the line of a fault. These faults occur at various places upon the earth's crust, and are similar to those found in ore or coal veins, except that their scale is thousands of feet compared to inches in the mine scale. When, for any cause, a deep readjustment takes place the surface effect usually follows the line of a fault.

When somebody asked what caused this deep readjustment Dr. Hayes smiled and replied:

"That is just what the geologists are asking. 'Why' is what we want to know. That is the great problem, or one of the great problems that we are studying all the time. We know that certain parts of the earth are slowly going down and other parts are rising. That has been going on in California. Only yesterday, speaking geologically, the coast line of California was lifted up to a considerable extent. The traces of the old beach line are easy to follow, and the fact that the line has been lifted to different heights at different places, and that in places it lies at an angle, and not horizontally, shows that it was lifted, and that it was not the receding of the water which left it there.

"There are several clearly defined faults which run near and even through San Francisco," continued Dr. Hayes. He then took a geological map and pointed out four or five. The more extensive run just south of the city, but there are two or three which cross the ground on which the city stood. They all trend northwest and southeast, in the direction in which the earthquake wave is reported to have traveled. The most pronounced of them passes through Palo Alto, where a violent shock was felt.

"It may be," said Dr. Hayes, "that a slip occurred somewhere at the upper, or northern, end of one of these faults, and, following down to the southeast, produced the shock that destroyed San Francisco and wrecked Palo Alto buildings."

EXPECTED THE EARTHQUAKE.

President Van Hise Says Geologists Watched San Francisco.

MADISON, Wis., April 19.—President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, formerly of the United States Geological Survey, says a disaster at San Francisco had long been expected by scientists. He says:

"Scientists have known for many years that San Francisco is dangerously located, and would probably sooner or later be subject to severe shocks.

"The fear has been repeatedly expressed that San Francisco would be the first to show the effect of an earthquake upon steel structures, for it has been well understood that San Francisco has the most dangerous location with reference to earthquakes of any large city in the United States."

TWO SMALL AFTER-SHOCKS.

They Were Recorded by the Seismograph at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Weather Bureau issued this bulletin to-day:

"Two small after-shocks of the San Francisco earthquake were recorded on the seismograph at the United States Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., during the night of April 18 and the morning of April 19.

"The first shock was decidedly stronger than the other one, although both were very slight compared to the original disturbance. The principal portion, that is, the strong motion in the first shock, occurred at 8:46 P. M., and in the second shock about 2:03 A. M. The motion in the second shock was especially feeble and ill-defined. WILLIS L. MOORE,

EARTH "SWUNG" ONE SECOND.

Vibration Very Slow, Says the Observatory Head at Berkeley.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 19.—A. O. Leuschner, Director of the students' observatory of the University of California, gave out to-day this record of the earthquake:

"The principal part of the earthquake came in two sections, the first series of vibrations lasting for about forty seconds. The vibrations diminished gradually during the following ten seconds, and then recurred with renewed vigor for about twenty-five seconds more. But even at noon the disturbance had not subsided, as slight shocks are recorded at frequent intervals on the seismograph. The motion was from south-southeast to north-northwest. The remarkable feature of this earthquake, aside from its intensity, was its rocking motion. As seen from the print the sum total of all displacements represents a very regular ellipse, and some of the lines representing the earthquake's motion can be traced along the whole circumference. The three severest earthquakes on record in this vicinity are those of Oct. 21, 1868; March 30, 1898, and that of Wednesday.

"The result of observation indicates that our heaviest shocks are in the direction south-southeast to north-northwest. In that respect the records of the three heaviest earthquakes agree entirely. But they have several other features in common. One of these is that, while the displacements are very large, the vibration period is comparatively slow, amounting to about one second in the last two big earthquakes."

SEVERE 7,000 MILES OFF.

California Shocks Injured the Seismographs in Florence.

ROME, April 19.—The seismographs in the observatories throughout Italy yesterday recorded distant earthshocks. Those of the Observatory at Florence, which has the best instruments, indicated that an earthquake had been felt at a distance of more than 7,000 miles. The shocks were so severe that they injured the instruments.

The Director of the Florence Observatory thinks that the earthquake in California, viewed in connection with the outbreak of Mount Vesuvius and the earthquake in Calabria last September, indicates the approach of further terrestrial convulsions.

King Victor Emmanuel was much impressed with the news from California, following so soon after the Calabria disaster and the eruption of Vesuvius. The news was communicated to the Pope by Cardinal Merry del Val. The Pontiff gave orders that he be kept informed of all developments, especially in regard to the safety of Archbishop Riordan and of the clergy of San Francisco.

CHICAGO MIGHT HAVE ONE.

Prof. Goode Says an Earthquake There Is Not Impossible.

CHICAGO, April 19.—There are slight indications that Chicago may experience an earthquake within a few years, according to Prof. J. Paul Goode of the Geology Faculty of the University of Chicago. The presence of certain species of rock in the earth inside or near the city limits, he believes, is an indication of a condition that might result in the injury of a part of the city.

"There is no absolute geological proof that Chicago may not have an earthquake in the next few years," Prof. Goode declared.

"One can detect slight symptoms, however. Certain formations of certain kinds of rock underneath Chicago might be taken as an indication. An earthquake is as simple as the breaking of a timber.

"I believe that the seat of the disturbance at San Francisco was about seven miles below the surface of the earth."

GERMAN SCIENTISTS' VIEWS.

Doesn't Believe San Francisco and Vesuvius Had Any Connection.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, April 19.—There are many students from California in this country, and their anxiety is pitiable. None of them is able to obtain an answer to cablegrams to relatives in the stricken district.

Leading German scientific authorities discuss the earthquake. Prof. Archenhold, Director of the Treptow Observatory, is skeptical in regard to any connection between the eruption of Vesuvius and the earthquake in California. This is also the view of Prof. Felix Wahnschaffe. He say that as San Francisco was built on volcanic ground the earthquake was not surprising. It was a "tectoic" earthquake, and, although not connected with the eruption of Vesuvius, was possibly connected with the seismic disturbances in Formosa.

The newspapers all express deep sympathy with the sufferers in California and appeal to the Germans to aid them. The National Zeitung refers to the frequent occasions in the past when the United States has helped victims of disasters in Germany.

The Tageblatt declares that American enterprise will rebuild San Francisco, and that before long a "new Queen City of the West will arise in full splendor."

Sympathetic Waves at Manila.

MANILA, April 19.—Twenty minutes after the earthquake in San Francisco on April 18 sympathetic seismic waves were felt at Manila. The oscillations were chiefly horizontal, the vertical vibrations, which are usually disastrous, being slight. No damage was done.

Registered in Germany.

CARLSRUHE, Germany, April 19.—At Heidelberg Observatory the seismographic instruments registered a vibration lasting an hour yesterday afternoon. The strongest quiver was at 2:26 P. M.

DYNAMITE OF NO USE.

Explosives Just Help Conflagrations, Bonner and Croker Say.

Deputy Fire Commissioner Hugh Bonner, who organized the Fire Department in Manila, P. I., and who knows San Francisco well, said yesterday of the use of dynamite in fighting the San Francisco conflagration:

"I never saw dynamite used to fight fires, and I never want to. It has been useless in all the instances in which it was ever tried, particularly in the big fires in Boston and Chicago in the early seventies.

"If an open space could be created in the path of a conflagration by using dynamite, then it might be of some avail, but instead of razing buildings completely it only splinters them, and makes them better food for the flames than if the buildings were allowed to stand."

Fire Chief Croker also said he did not put much faith in dynamite for fighting conflagrations.

HEAVY SALES OF STOCKS, ENTIRE LIST AFFECTED

San Francisco Railway Issues Again Break Violently.

LARGE TRANSFERS OF MONEY

Gold Must Be Imported to Meet Demands—Insurance Companies Must Unload Stocks.

Bewilderment pervaded Wall Street yesterday morning. Every one went to the Street wondering what would be the effect upon the stock market of the morning's news on the extent of the disaster at San Francisco.

Brokers and their clients had gone home Wednesday afternoon thinking that the stock market had already discounted to a large extent the effects of the disaster, and hoping that later news would show that the first account of the calamity had been exaggerated. The accounts contained in the morning papers necessarily dispelled these hopes, and the further dispatches during the day showed that the catastrophe was growing from hour to hour.

For a while early in the day the stock market was relatively firm, but as the Street realized more fully the extent of the losses prices yielded throughout the entire list, and in some cases broke violently. Heavy selling of stocks persisted all through the day, and the final trading was practically at the lowest prices. United Railways Investment, which owns the street railway lines in San Francisco, was again the heaviest loser in the day's liquidation, but many other stocks suffered losses varying from 2 to 9 points.

All the while the collection of funds for the relief of the sufferers by the San Francisco catastrophe proceeded apace. On the Stock Exchange itself the execution of selling orders was interrupted long enough to enable the members of the Exchange to contribute generously for the relief of the sufferers from earthquake and conflagration, and outside of the Exchange, among banking houses large subscriptions were added hourly.

Millions for Stricken City.

Even in advance of the forwarding of relief money, the banks in this city were called upon to transfer large amounts of cash to the banks in San Francisco and adjacent towns to enable them to meet all demands which might be made upon them by their depositors. Secretary Shaw authorized the New York Sub-Treasury to transfer by telegraph to San Francisco as much as $10,000,000 if called upon by the banks to send so much. Uncertainty existed, however, in regard to the ability of the Government to make payments in San Francisco against money deposited by the banks at the New York Sub-Treasury.

Early in the day the National Park Bank paid $3,000,000 into the Sub-Treasury here to be paid out by the Government in San Francisco. The Sub-Treasury officials had to accept this money conditionally, inasmuch as they did not know whether the Sub-Treasury or the Mint in San Francisco was still standing. Inquiries were made by many bankers concerning the ability of the Government to assure the actual payment of the money in San Francisco.

It was not until late in the day that the officials here were able to give positive assurance that the Mint in San Francisco had been saved, and that all moneys paid here for transfer to San Francisco could be delivered promptly. The National Park Bank, which sent $3,000,000 to the Pacific Coast yesterday, made preliminary arrangements for the shipment of as much more to-day, and other inquiries made by intending shippers indicated that to-day's transfers through the Sub-Treasury may amount to as much as $5,000,000.

Gold Will Be Imported.

The money market was not perceptibly affected by this movement of money to the Pacific Coast. It was assumed that any demands which might be made upon New York in this way could readily be made up by gold imports. That this view was well-founded was shown by the fact that late in the day foreign exchange rates broke to a point at which gold could profitably be imported from Europe. No engagements were announced, largely for the reason that the decline in demand sterling to 4.8450, a full cent below the previous day's rate, did not occur until after the close of banking hours abroad.

International banking houses, however, said that arrangements for gold imports were under way, and that receipts of gold from Europe were practically certain. The movement will be greatly facilitated by the special deposit of Government funds against the gold imports, according to the plan announced by Secretary Shaw last week. Dispatches from London stated that $400,000 gold had been taken from the bank for shipment to America, but it was not made clear if this was a fresh engagement or a withdrawal on last week's engagements.

One of the chief causes of yesterday's decline in exchange was heavy purchases of securities in this market for London account. It is estimated that about $5,000,000 of bills drawn against shipments of securities were sold during the day. Another factor working to lower exchange, although it was probably not an active influence in yesterday's market, was the drawing of bills on their home offices by agents of foreign fire insurance companies which have suffered heavily by the conflagration.

Accurate estimates of the losses of these companies were not available yesterday, although in banking circles it was thought that $50,000,000 was probably not an excessive estimate of the amount which foreign fire insurance companies will be called upon to pay. These companies hold large amounts of American securities, and it is believed that many of these will be sold to offset part of the loss. In any event, however, it was regarded as certain that the insurance companies will have to draw heavily on Europe to provide the funds which they will have to pay out to their insured.

The liquidation of securities is of course not expected to be confined to the foreign companies. The American insurance companies, which naturally lose even more heavily than the foreign companies, bankers pointed out, will have to sell a large amount of stocks and bonds to make good their losses. In some quarters it was said that selling of this kind was partly responsible for yesterday's decline in the stock market.

Heavy Trading on Exchange.

The dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday totaled 1,543,659 shares, which was about 300,000 shares in excess of the previous day's sales. The stocks most heavily traded in were Reading 243,000 shares; Union Pacific, 238,000 shares; Amalgamated Copper, 217,000 shares; Pennsylvania, 119,000 shares; United States Steel common, 111,000 shares, and Southern Pacific, 63,000 shares.

The heaviest losses of the day were those suffered by the stocks of the United Railways Investment Company. The common, which lost 16½ points on Wednesday, declined 12 points further yesterday, and the preferred added 15 points to its previous day's loss of 10 points. Some of the other large losses were Amalgamated Copper, 2⅝ points; American Smelting, 3¼; American Sugar, 2⅜; Pacific Mail, 4¼; Pennsylvania Railroad, 2⅜; Reading, 9½; Southern Pacific, 2¼; Union Pacific, 4⅝, and Wells Fargo Express, 8.

Bankers gave attention yesterday to the question of the probable effect upon the New York money market of the Pacific Coast calamity. It was pointed out that in all probability the Pacific Coast in the near future will make heavy demands upon New York for money, in addition to the very large amount of currency that is already going forward in the shape of remittances to the California banks and of relief money contributed here in the East.

Besides the $3,000,000 sent yesterday through the Sub-Treasury it is said that large shipments were made by express. It is known that the amounts already forwarded will be largely augmented within the next few days.

After the first needs are supplied in this way it is probable, many bankers think, that the East will be called upon to finance to a large extent the rebuilding of the cities which have been partly or totally destroyed. The influence of these demands upon the money market would of course extend over a long period, but it is believed by bankers that they may prove an important factor in the financial situation at this centre.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 19.—The State Board of Bank Commissioners has opened offices in this city and will meet bankers of the State to devise ways and means to ameliorate the financial stringency.

EFFECT IN CHICAGO MARKET.

Stocks of Concerns Having San Francisco Interests Drop.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—The San Francisco earthquake and fire were a factor to-day in the local Exchange. Many large corporations were reported to be heavy losers, and their securities suffered in consequence. It is believed that the two California railroads, the Santa Fé and the Southern Pacific, have been hit hard, but nothing definite has been reported.

The preferred stock of the United Railways Investment Company dropped from around 90 to 62, due to losses sustained in the San Francisco fire. The company owns the street railroads there.

The American Can Company has in San Francisco two canmaking plants and one machine shop. There was some uncertainty to-day as to what damage had been suffered by the property.

Diamond Match stock continued weak in the local market, falling to 126½. The natural weakness, combined with the San Francisco fire, increased the distrust of investors.

PRINTERS WILL HELP.

The Times Chapel Contributes $100 for Their San Francisco Brothers.

THE NEW YORK TIMES Cmposing Room Chapel met informally last night before starting the work of putting in type the latest news of the San Francisco disaster and passed a set of resolutions expressing their sympathy with all the sufferers on the Pacific Coast, and particularly their brother workmen.

More than $100 was then contributed, and this, together with the warm sympathy that goes with it, will be forwarded to the San Francisco branch of the Typographical Union as soon as connections are re-established.

SEISMOGRAPH RECORD HERE.

Instrument in the Subway Told of the Pacific Disturbance.

Evidence that the earthquake was felt here in New York was shown to the members of the Rapid Transit Commission yesterday, when Chief Engineer George S. Rice laid before the board a seismograph record taken by the instrument which had been placed at the Thirty-third Street Subway station to see if the blasts for the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel, directly underneath, were of sufficient force to do any damage to the Subway.

The instrument was placed at the station some time ago by E. H. Clark, the assistant engineer in charge of the first division. The record of the instrument, as Mr. Clark found several hours later on, showed that the shock was felt at 8:32 o'clock on Wednesday morning, exactly the time recorded by the instruments at Albany and at Washington. The duration of the shock here, however, was fourteen minutes, stopping at 8:46, while the instruments at Washington and at Albany recorded shocks for slightly longer periods.

The record of the instrument, the "autograph of the earthquake," was shown at the meeting. It revealed a very slight wave in the otherwise regular line.

Just before 8:32 there was the slightest of movements of the needle, but at the minute recorded both in Washington and Albany there was a distinct quiver, which continued until 8:33 o'clock, when there was a dip of almost a sixteenth of an inch in the line, which had been straight before the disturbance, plainly indicating the first great shock felt in San Francisco.

Another series of quivers followed for two minutes, and then there came two sharply defined curves, but not of the depth of the first decided shock. Still one further dip occurred at 8:46, and the line again became straight and remained so.

Until the engineers received word of the disaster they were greatly puzzled by the recorded disturbance, some thinking it was caused by moving Subway trains, although the instrument had not been affected by moving Subway trains ever before since it had been in place. Scientists consulted by Mr. Rice, however, say that the record unquestionably was of the great earthquake.

HOW NEW YORK KEPT IN TOUCH WITH FRISCO

Telegraph Operators Dared Death to Stick to Duty.

SOLDIERS HARD TO DEAL WITH

Secretary Taft Appealed to by Local Superintendent—A Better Wire Service Promised for To-day.

The Western Union Company was in touch with San Francisco yesterday without interruption. At this end of the line Assistant General Manager Barclay remained on duty all day, receiving messages from the little group of operators, headed by Chief Willman of the San Francisco bureau, who were working the keys in the Oakland Ferry building at the foot of Market Street, San Francisco. From Chief Willman the reassuring information was received in the afternoon that four cables, with fifty-four wires in all, were intact between that vantage point and Oakland, insuring uninterrupted communication.

Later in the day the Signal Corps men of the troops under Gen. Funston built a military telegraph between the commanding General's headquarters at the Presidio and the ferry building, thus insuring the delivery of Government messages without delay. Sergt. Bincklay of the United States Signal Corps, who was in charge of the ferry end of that wire, and who was anxious to let his wife in the East know that he was still alive, placed himself in direct communication with Mr. Barclay at 7:50 o'clock last night for the purpose of transmitting the following message:

"Everything up to Market Street and Twenty-third Street burning fiercely. All gone but the Mint. The Post Office was partly damaged by the earthquake, but only three or four rooms in it were burned out. Everything north of Mission Street entirely wiped out up to Van Ness Avenue, and past that avenue west of Golden Gate Street up to Octavia Street. Chinatown is gone, and we hear that Nob Hill is quite wiped out.

"The fire has crossed Van Ness Avenue east of Union Street. The entire business district is wiped out, and not a single thing is left. The fire is still raging around Union and Franklin Streets with the prospect of its continuing. It looks as if the whole town would go before it stops.

"About all that is left now is bounded by Union Street, Golden Gate Street, Van Ness Avenue, Octavia, Hayes, and Fillmore Streets. There are a few houses left out in the Mission section, but they will probably go, and the fire will continue until it reaches the scarcely populated outlying districts. All hotels and every business block have been totally destroyed."

This summarized and verified what had previously been received in fragments from Chief Wildman and Operator Le Compte, the man who was thought to have been lost night before last on his way from the regular offices to the ferry station. His silence was due to the fact that he was arrested by a soldier on his way to his new station and locked up over night as a prowler. He reported to Mr. Barclay as soon as explanations had resulted in his liberation yesterday morning.

The trouble of delivering messages in San Francisco was increased by the attitude of the soldiers, who apparently understood that nobody should be let through the military lines. Telegraph operators, messengers, and newspaper reporters suffered arrest whenever they tried to break the cordon until Mr. Barclay placed himself in communication with the War Department at Washington and explained to Secretary Taft that if the Government messages were to be delivered, he would have to furnish soldiers for the purpose.

By the time an order from the Secretary reached San Francisco calling for a moderation of the established cordon, it was found that Gen. Funston had learned of the trouble and had issued orders that telegraph messengers and duly accredited newspaper reporters should be permitted to pass the military lines and move about the streets, except in places where their passing was regarded as accompanied with too great risk.

But even after the raising of the cordon it was found impossible to deliver messages, as the messengers could not make their way through the burning and barricaded streets. The only possible thing for the company to do was to hang up placards at the ferry stations with the names of those for whom messages had been received.

This resulted in such a rush toward that point that the practice had to be stopped. The crowd, consisting exclusively of men, fought like maniacs to get near the lists, and in their eagerness nearly wrecked the office. After that all strangers had to be kept out of the office.

On several occasions when attempts were made to send out messages, the crowd waiting outside would fall on the men carrying them, and in some cases the messengers were so terrified by the sudden onslaught that they dropped the envelopes and ran back into the office for their lives. Speaking of this phase of the situation, Mr. Barclay said last night:

"It is rather a hard proposition, when you are laboring under great disadvantage to relieve great distress and anxiety on the part of the public to run up against a man with a bayonet who does not want to listen to explanations. Wendesday night we brought four men from Oakland to relieve our tired-out men at the Ferry Station. Two crossed in a launch and succeeded in passing the military lines. But the other two were held up and made prisoners by the soldiers. The very same thing happened to us at the time of the Galveston flood until the tin soldiers gave us the password."

At 5:15 yesterday afternoon, or 2:15 according to San Francisco time, Mr. Barclay received a message from Chief Wildman saying that the smoke hanging over the burnt city was turning day into night, so that he would have to "rustle for a light" before he could continue his work at the key.

The Postal Telegraph Company concentrated its force on the Oakland side, but was looking for a chance throughout the day to tap some of its underground wires within San Francisco and to re-establish an office on that side of the bay. During the day Vice President Bradley heard from Supt. Storer of the San Francisco office that all the valuable apparatus had been saved, including the multiplex instruments, and that the loss to the company would not exceed $5,000. It was also learned that the Commercial Cable Company had saved its apparatus and would escape with a nominal loss.

Supt. Storer added that the whole city was doomed without a doubt, and that, though his own home was still standing in a part of the residence district which was not yet burned, he felt sure that it would be destroyed before midnight. He explained that the only district remaining intact was between the Golden Gate Park and Webster Avenue. This district, which adjoins four of the principal cemeteries grouped around a hill, was the only one which had a water supply and was able to fight off the flames.

Late last night Mr. Baker of the Postal Telegraph announced that the company had obtained the desired location for a temporary office in the Southern Pacific Railroad terminal, and that a plant would be installed there to-day.

MR. MACKAY'S SYMPATHY.

Move Heaven and Earth to Open Communication, He Wires.

Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph Company, sent the following message yesterday to L. W. Storer, General Superintendent of the Postal Telegraph Company in San Francisco:

"I cannot adequately express to you my feelings regarding the calamity which has befallen San Francisco. I trust sincerely that all is well with you and yours.

"The men in your division and all our people along the line have done magnificent work, and they may rest assured that the executive not only appreciates this, but that they and all concerned will be fully rewarded. Convey this to staff. I hope you will move heaven and earth to open communication to San Francisco City and thus relieve thousands from anxiety. Do this at any cost within reasonable bounds.

FRANCE EXTENDS SYMPATHY.

President Fallieres Telegraphs Condolences for the Disaster.

PARIS, April 19.—President Fallières has telegraphed to President Roosevelt an expression of France's profound sympathy with the United States in the distress resulting from the earthquake in California.

The Ministerial Council to-day discussed the catastrophe at San Francisco and decided to forward condolences.

M. Morland, Chief of the Protocol of the Foreign Office, called at the American Embassy and personally conveyed to Ambassador McCormick an expression of sorrow for the sister Republic.

The Feeling in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 19.—The calamity at San Francisco has created a profound impression here. FOOD.
NO WORDS WASTED
A Swift Transformation Briefly Described.
About food, the following brief but emphatic letter from a Georgia woman goes straight to the point and is convincing:
"My frequent attacks of indigestion and palpitation of the heart culminated 3 years ago in a sudden and desperate illness, from which I arose enfeebled in mind and body. The doctor advised me to live on cereals, but none of them agreed with me until I tried Grape-Nuts food and Postum Coffee. The more I used of them the more I felt convinced that they were just what I needed, and in a short time they made a different woman of me. My stomach and heart troubles were cured as by magic, and my mind was restored and is as clear as it ever was.
"I gained flesh and strength so rapidly that my friends were astonished. Postum and Grape-Nuts have benefited me so greatly that I am glad to bear this testimony." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
There's a reason.

CHURCH WORKERS ANXIOUS.

Fear Their Missions in San Francisco Were Destroyed.

Through its President, J. Cleveland Cady, and E. B. Sanford, Secretary, of the National Federation of Churches and Christian Workers, an appeal has been sent out to all Christian ministers, churches, and people that next Sunday, April 22, be set apart as far as possible as a day of special prayer because of the California earthquake.

There was great anxiety at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday on the part of Archbishop Farley and Mgr. Lavelle, the rector, over the fate of the Catholic clergy in San Francisco. No word was received from Archbishop Phelan.

At the offices of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this city no word had been received yesterday from San Francisco. The society has a big mission known as the Chinese Mission on the edge of the Chinatown district of San Francisco.

The Methodist Book Concern is also anxiously awaiting news. It was building a house on Market Street. The Board of Presbyterian Missions also had considerable property in San Francisco.

Col. French, in charge of the Salvation Army in San Francisco, sent this message to the headquarters in this city yesterday morning:

"The Salvation Army provincial headquarters, with all records and social institutions and corps halls and properties, are destroyed in the fire. No loss of life."

The message came from Col. French at Oakland, where he has established temporary headquarters.

GREAT BRITAIN'S SYMPATHY.

British Would Gladly Help the San Francisco Sufferers.

LONDON, April 19.—There is a great wave of sympathy in Great Britain for the sufferers from the San Francisco catastrophe. It would take a practical form on the slightest intimation that financial relief is necessary or acceptable. It is the general opinion, however, that the Americans will prefer to take care of the situation themselves without outside aid.

Public meetings of Church, Good Templar, and many other societies to-day adopted expressions of sorrow over the calamity.

The American Society has summoned its members to attend a meeting to-morrow, to discuss steps to assist the sufferers at San Francisco. Ambassador Reid is expected to preside.

There were many callers at Dorchester House, Ambassador Reid's residence, to-day to express sympathy for the earthquake sufferers. Mr. Reid has also received many telegrams, including one from the Lord Mayor of London and another from the Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, which he immediately forwarded to the State Department at Washington.

County Committee's Sorrow.

Resolutions of sympathy with the people of California in their trouble and disaster were adopted by the Republican County Committee at its meeting last evening. The Chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of five to join the movement to aid the sufferers. Tax Commissioner Samuel Strasbourger offered the resolutions.

BEAUTIFUL BUILDINGS THAT LIE IN RUINS

Structures Famous the World Over Destroyed.

THE $7,000,000 PALACE HOTEL

Cliff House That Slid Into the Sea —Massive Mills Building Gone —Churches, Theatres That Were City's Pride.

According to the most authentic reports from San Francisco the earthquake and following fire destroyed the finest buildings as well as the poorest in the city. The flames went marching up the hill from the downtown sections, where huddled the Chinese by the thousands, to Van Ness Avenue, the Fifth Avenue of San Francisco, destroying some of the most palatial homes. Here are brief descriptions of some of the best-known buildings in the city that were destroyed:

PALACE AND GRAND HOTELS.—The Palace Hotel, at Market and New Montgomery Streets, covered two and a half acres of land. It was seven stories high. The building cost $7,000,000, and was projected by the late W. C. Ralston. The Palace was the most famous hotel in the city. It was the rendezvous of many notable men about town, particularly the gourmands of San Francisco.

The building was a huge pile of stone and brick, in the centre of which was a court, 84 by 144 feet. It had a bitumen drive for carriages 50 feet in diameter. The floor of the promenade was paved with marble. The west end of the court was encircled by a series of Doric pillars of classic design. The pillars were surmounted by a coping on which were tropical plants and flowers. Tables and settees were usually scattered about the court, where men might have an afternoon chat and smoke.

The court was covered by a glass roof, and a goodly number of the 850 rooms looked out into this opening, which furnished them with a subdued light. The Palace Hotel was connected by a bridge across New Montgomery Street with the Grand Hotel, which was under the same management, and which was also destroyed.

The Palace Hotel was provided with reading and smoking rooms, social, women's and men's parlors, telegraph offices, billiard rooms, five elevators, a restaurant, and a grill room, which was considered one of the most elegant dining apartments for men in the world.

The outer and inner partitions were of brick from top to bottom. Four artesian wells furnished the hotel with water. From the top of the hotel a fine bird's-eye view of the city could be obtained. The extent of the corridors amounted to some two and a half miles. The style of the building was peculiarly San Franciscan, bay windows abounding.

THE CLIFF HOUSE.—This stood on Point Lobos, at the south head of the Golden Gate, on the extreme western coast of the peninsula upon which San Francisco was built. It slid into the sea. It was a favorite resort in the Summer, attracting thousands from the thickly settled eastern section of San Francisco. One could sit on the veranda and look out over the ocean and watch sea lions playing around the rocks a few hundred yards distant. Out to the south he could see a long line of sea beach upon which the breakers rolled. On a clear day Farallone Islands, twenty-six miles distant, can be seen from the spot where stood the Cliff House.

The huge structure that slid into the sea was designed after a French château of the seventeenth century. Running around it was an inclosed balcony. There were parlors, dining rooms, and halls where photographs of local objects of interest and curios were sold.

The Cliff House has suffered several disasters. It was first built in 1863. It was partly wrecked in July, 1886, when the schooner Parallel drifted in shore with 80,000 pounds of dynamite on board, which exploded. Having been rebuilt, it was burned to the ground on the Christmas night of 1894. Cliff House was seven miles from the Palace Hotel, and several car lines led to it. Its keepers boasted that Presidents Grant, Hayes, and Harrison had stood on its balconies.

MILLS BUILDING.—This was one of the finest buildings in the city, being ten stories high, and made of California marble, light-pressed brick and terra cotta. It cost $1,500,000, and was put up in 1891-2 by D. O. Mills at the northeast corner of Montgomery and Bush Streets. The three entrances from Bush, Pine, and Montgomery Streets led into a great open court in the centre. The entrance from Montgomery Street was through a magnificent marble arch that extended to the top of the second story. The halls were tiled and wainscoted with marble. A complete law library was supplied for the use of the tenants. The United States Weather Bureau had its headquarters on the top floor, with the signal station on the roof. This was another building which the San Franciscan was always proud to point out to the visitor. Built of iron, stone, brick, and marble throughout, it was thought to be proof against both earthquakes and fires.

CITY HALL.—This occupied a large three-cornered tract of land bounded by Larkin and McAllister Streets and City Hall Avenue. It required twenty-five years to erect this building, and San Franciscans learned to designate a long period of time by saying, "As long as it will take to build the City Hall." It cost between $7,000,000 and $9,000,000. Connected with the City Hall was the Hall of Records, which was surmounted by a dome 134 feet high. The building was surrounded by Corinthian pillars forty-eight feet high.

The land upon which the City Hall stood was formerly the Yerba Buena Cemetery, and there once lay the bodies of the early pioneers of the city. The bodies were removed to Laurel Hill and other cemeteries in the early sixties. In the northwest wing of the building was the City Prison. The Receiving Hospital occupied a like position in the southwest wing.

ST. IGNATIUS'S CHURCH.—This was the biggest church in the city. It stood in the fashionable district, on Hayes Street, between Van Ness Avenue and Franklin Street. It cost $2,000,000, and was the finest Jesuitical church in the world. Its spires, 275 feet high, were the tallest in California. Its organ was the second largest in America, and was the only one on the coast operated by electricity. It weighed 100,000 pounds. Its central columns were surmounted by life-sized angels with trumpets, and the outer ones supported huge urns holding burning torches. The organ was presented to the church by Mrs. Welch. The main hall of the church was 200 feet long. Hanging over the altar was a large oil painting representing the reception in heaven of St. Ignatius Loyola.

THE CHRONICLE BUILDING.—This was one of the first high buildings erected in San Francisco. Its skeleton still stood at Market, Geary, and Kearny Streets at last reports. It was nine stories high, surmounted by a bronze clock tower 210 feet high. The building was of pressed brick and a dark brown sandstone that is found in Ventura County. The building was fitted with all modern improvements. It was one of the handsome buildings that made Newspaper Corner a centre of no little architectural beauty. The Chronicle occupied the basement, the first floor, and the top floor, all the other floors being rented as offices.

THE EXAMINER BUILDING.—Before this collapsed it was eight stories high, standing on the southeast corner of Market and Third Streets, the corner near which were all the big newspaper offices. The offices of The Examiner, Mr. Hearst's San Francisco paper, occupied the rotunda of the building, the rest being rented for offices. The building was of the Spanish Renaissance style. The severity of its exterior was broken by the ornamented windows of the second story and the loggias with their decorated columns along the top stories.

THE CALL BUILDING.—This was the tallest building on the Pacific Coast, and was occupied by The San Francisco Call, having in it, besides, 272 offices. It was erected in 1896-7, at the southwest corner of Market and Third Streets. From the basement to the top of the dome was 300 feet. There were sixteen floors. It was constructed entirely of marble, sandstone, and steel, and was considered fireproof. It was of no little architectural beauty. It was one of the first buildings seen when one entered San Francisco.

THE CROCKER BUILDING.—This stood on the gore made by Post, Montgomery, and Market Streets. It was erected in 1891-92, at a cost of $1,000,000. It was eleven stories high, made of Rocklin granite and light-pressed brick, with terra cotta ornamentations. The ground floor was occupied by the Crocker-Woolworth National Bank and Shreve & Co., jewelers. The upper floors were divided into 250 offices. The building was 130 feet in height, and was one which the San Franciscan always pointed out to the visitor.

THE FAIRMOUNT HOTEL.—It was just about ready for occupancy. It was seven stories high and of white stone. It required two years to construct it, and it was one of the very finest structures in the city, situated right across the street from the Mark Hopkins Art Institute, on California Street, between Mason and Powell Streets. Its cost was $2,000,000. Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs had traded it for two buildings downtown, both of which were destroyed.

MARK HOPKINS INSTITUTE.—This was formerly the magnificent private residence of Mark Hopkins, one of California's pioneer citizens, at the southeast corner of California and Mason Streets. It was given to the city in 1893 by E. F. Searles of Methuen, Mass. It had been used for illustration and instruction in the fine arts. It contained many fine specimens of painting and sculpture. A spacious gallery had recently been added to the institute. The interior of the house was finished with rare woods and beautiful frescoes.

THE LICK HOUSE.—This was one of the quiet, family hotels of San Francisco, in Montgomery Street, between Sutter and Post Streets. The building was completed in 1861; it was one of the very old hotels. When it was first completed its dining hall was considered one of the finest in the world. The site of the Lick House was once a sand dune, and the ground sold for $300.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—This stood on the north side of Mission Street, between Third and Fourth Streets, near Market Street, the main thoroughfare. Its stage, which was 100 by 120 feet, was the largest on the other side of the Rockies. It seated nearly 2,000 people, and cost $500,000 when it was opened in 1876 as Wade's Opera House.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE. — This three-story building was on the south side of California Street, between Montgomery and Sansome Streets. It was surmounted by a clock tower 120 feet high. Incorporated in 1868 by the State, the Merchants' Exchange had for its object the acquirement, preservation, and dissemination of information concerning commercial and maritime exchange. The United States Hydrographic office was in the building.

THE OCCIDENTAL HOTEL.—This hotel was a sort of headquarters for army and navy officers in San Francisco and visitors from the Pacific islands. It occupied the entire block on the east side of Montgomery Street, between Sutter and Bush Streets, and was a rather old-style four-story building, with cement facings, though its table was noted in the city.

THE RUSS HOUSE.—This was a merchants' and farmers' hotel. It was one of the old-style, low, rambling buildings, being only three stories high, but covering the entire block on the west side of Montgomery Street, between Bush and Pine Streets. It was erected in 1862 by Christian Russ, who bought the site in 1847.

THE HALL OF JUSTICE.—This was one of the newest, if not the newest, public building in the city. It was situated on the east side of Kearny Street, between Washington and Merchant Streets, opposite Portsmouth Square. The cornerstone was laid in 1896. It contained Police Headquarters, the police courts, and the Criminal Departments of the Superior Court. It stood on notorious ground. It was in that neighborhood that the most famous gambling dens were once located, and there, later on, the Jenny Lind Theatre was burned down and rebuilt.

PARROTT BUILDING.—This big seven-storied building occupied the site of the old Jesuit Church on the south side of Market Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets. The two lower floors were occupied by the Emporium, one of the biggest department stores in the world. This store used nine acres of floor space, maintained sixty departments, and employed 2,000 persons. Its shelves were of mahogny with marble bases. A dome 100 feet high surmounted the building.

PHELAN BUILDING.—Situated at the gore of Market and O'Farrell Streets and Grant Avenue, this large, five-story building was conspicuous in the sight of one walking up the main thoroughfare of Market Street. It was the headquarters for the California Department of the United States Army.

HIBERNIA BANK.—This bank stood at the junction of Market, Jones, and McAllister Streets, and was one of the handsomest buildings in San Francisco. It was constructed of white granite with Corinthian columns. A massive dome surmounted the roof, and the entrance at the corner was ornamented by graceful columns of granite.

CALIFORNIA HOTEL. This hotel was situated on the north side of Bush Street, above Kearny. It was eight stories high, made of carved stone and pressed brick. It was opened in 1890 and was one of the first-class hotels of the city.

GRACE CHURCH.—This was one of the older churches of the city, having been built in 1860, the corner-stone being laid by Bishop W. I. Kipp. It stood at the southeast corner of California and Stockton Streets, on the eastern slope of the hill of California Street, and was a conspicuous object from downtown. It cost $125,000.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.—This theatre presented the best class of varieties in the West. It had the largest seating capacity of any playhouse in San Francisco, seating 2,500 people. It stood on the south side of O'Farrell Streeet, between Powell and Stockton Streets.

THE COLUMBIA THEATRE. — This was a pretty little playhouse, situated on the west side of Powell Street, above Market Street, opposite the Baldwin Hotel. It seated 1,400 people, and was first opened as Stockwell's Theatre.

MECHANICS' PAVILION.—The pavilion stood at Larkin and Grove Streets, and there every year the Mechanics' Institute gave an industrial exhibition.

MRS. OELRICHS'S LOSS.

She and Her Sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Owned Much Property Destroyed.

Two of the heaviest losers in this city in the San Francisco disaster are Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and her sister, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., both of whom inherited much valuable property out there from their father, James G. Fair. Mrs. Vanderbilt owned some 200 houses in the Mission district, which is said to have been swept by the flames.

The property of Mrs. Oelrichs was even more valuable, including the $3,000,000 Rialto Building, a modern office structure, and the old Fair mansion, at Pine and Jones Streets. She also shared with her sister the Nob Hill property, at Powell and California Streets. The Rialto is known to be a complete loss.

Both Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt have regarded San Francisco as their home city and have a large circle of friends there. They were trying vainly yesterday to obtain some definite news concerning some of their more intimate friends.

D. O. MILLS TO REBUILD.

Will Put Up Another Mills Building in San Francisco.

D. O. Mills said yesterday that he would rebuild the Mills Building in San Francisco, but that it was too early yet to make any definite arrangements.

"Before taking any definite steps," said Mr. Mills, "I will have to learn exactly what has happened."

MYERS SAYS THE POLICE CAN CLOSE POOLROOMS

Clergyman Tells Mathot Official Methods Are All Wrong.

THE POOLROOM MEN WARNED

Agent Brinton of the Criminal Law Society Accuses Deputy of Befriending Gamblers.

Joseph B. Britton, chief agent of the New York Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Law, accused Third Deputy Police Commissioner Mathot before Magistrate Finn yesterday afternoon of taking the part of the gamblers. The accusation was made in the course of the inquiry instituted by Mr. Mathot to ascertain how much knowledge the society had in regard to the existence of poolrooms in New York.

Mr. Britton was called as a witness after two private detectives had testified as to the existence of a poolroom in Dey Street.

"You are not going about this thing in the right way," said Mr. Britton. "If you wanted to stop the operation of poolrooms in New York, you could do so in 24 hours. All that you would have to do would be to issue a bona fide order to the policemen and make them understand that they must either close up the poolrooms or be held responsible. Instead, you are conducting a public inquiry in such a manner as to give all the poolrooms warning. From your examination of the witnesses that have been called, it is plain that you are protecting the poolrooms.

Mr. Mathot asked Mr. Britton if he had any evidence of a legal nature on which the Police Department could act, and when Mr. Britton replied that he had reports from secret agents who had visited poolrooms in different parts of the city he wished to know the names of these agents. Mr. Britton refused to give the names except privately, and Magistrate Finn suggested that the Third Deputy and the witness retire to his private room.

"No quarreling," said the Magistrate, as they started for the room.

When they returned Mr. Mathot, who had written the names of the secret agents on a slip of paper, sought to identify the slip. Mr. Britton refused to identify the slip until he had seen the names written upon it, saying that Mr. Mathot might have substituted another slip for it while coming out of the private room. Mr. Mathot was much angered by this statement, but showed Mr. Britton the names, whereupon the slip was marked for identification. After a lot of talk in which the Police Department was accused of all manner of dereliction by Mr. Britton, Mr. Mathot asked the witness if he thought he could suppress poolrooms if he was in the position of the Commissioner of Police.

"I certainly could!" shouted Mr. Britton. "If I was Chief of Police I would send men I could trust to the poolrooms which were on the list furnished the Commissioner of Police by our society, and instruct them to find out whether or not the poolrooms were in existence. If they were in existence it would be an easy matter to close them. The poolrooms wouldn't last five minutes if an earnest order was given," he declared.

The Rev. Cortland Myers, President of the society, was called to the stand. He denied that he had said there was more graft in the Police Department than during the days of Croker and Devery, but he admitted that he had been correctly quoted in the statement that thousands of young men were being ruined by the operation of poolrooms.

"I am guided in this statement," he said, "by letters which tell me of the wrecking of families by the poolroom evil."

Dr. Myers also admitted that he had said that the attitude of Third Deputy Mathot was antagonistic to the forces operating for law and order. He declared that the society of which he is President was not under any obligation to furnish evidence regarding poolrooms, holding that it was the duty of the police to get this evidence. He repeated that he was willing to get evidence if he were paid for the work.

"The Police Department," said Third Deputy Mathot, "is not willing to buy a pig in a poke. When you furnish us with evidence which will bring about the conviction of the proprietors of poolrooms we will pay you what is reasonable, but we do not propose to pay for evidence which will not stand in the courts."

Both Mr. Britton and Dr. Myers said that the evidence which the Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Law had in its possession regarding the existence of poolrooms was in the hands of Attorney Walker, counsel for the society. Mr. Mathot then asked an adjournment until Mr. Walker could be had as a witness.

After the hearing was over Mr. Mathot gave out the entire correspondence between Dr. Myers, Mayor McClellan, Commissioner Bingham, and himself. Under the date of April 4 Dr. Myers wrote to the Mayor giving a list of about thirty-five places suspected of being poolrooms.

Mayor McClellan turned Dr. Myers's letter over to Police Commissioner Bingham.

Commissioner Bingham got Dr. Myers's letter on April 6 and wrote to the clergyman in part as follows:

"The difficulty always is to obtain the necessary evidence which will hold good before the courts. The gambling fraternity are very agile, and jump from place to place, and the judiciary have time and again criticised the Police Department for strong-arm measures. If you yourself would once undertake to close up one of these places through your society you would gain experience as to the difficulty of getting the necessary evidence."

There was the same difficulty about securing racing information from the Aqueduct track yesterday which has marked the poolroom situation since the decision of The Jockey Club to shut off the source of supply. Odds were posted on the different races, and a pretense was made at furnishing the names of the jockeys, but in every room there was a notice to the effect that neither weights, odds, nor jockeys were guaranteed, and that if a bet was registered on a horse which was scratched the money would be refunded. There was a delay of about thirty minutes in securing the results of the races, and when they finally came in there was no accompanying statement of prices.

The messenger service, by bicycle riders, between the agents of poolrooms on the watch outside the Aqueduct race track and the nearest telephones at Ozone Park, which was established Wednesday in an effort to supply the New York poolrooms with racing news, was abandoned yesterday. The service was found to be too slow. In every other respect the conditions at the race track were unchanged.

The Most Magnificently Appointed Pharmacy in the World.

After many months of preparation, we opened our new store to the public on Saturday, April 14th. Many hundreds have called to inspect it. Their unanimous verdict is—"beautiful—the soda fountain alone is worth coming miles to see."

We have given much time, thought and labor to establish a pharmacy here that will satisfactorily supply the needs of the people. Many will be interested in knowing just what we have prepared to do.

Prescriptions.

We compound physicians' prescriptions from fresh drugs of absolute purity. Our chemists are careful, trustworthy, competent men; each is a qualified pharmacist. We have a system whereby each detail in the preparation of a medicine is doubly checked before the mixture is handed to a customer. This insures accuracy in the reading and copying of a prescription, as well as in the weighing, measuring and mixing of the ingredients. When a medicine with our label leaves this store it is exactly what the doctor prescribed. Substitution in any shape or form is never permitted or practiced in our business.

HIGGINS USES WHIP FOR INSURANCE BILL

Republican Senators Will Restore the Publicity Provision.

MEASURE A PARTY ONE NOW

Compromise Amendment to be Introduced by Armstrong To-day and the Bill Put Through.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 19.—Gov. Higgins put a strenuous hand to the legislative wheel to-day, and as a result of his action the Republican Senators, after a four-hour caucus, decided to make the Insurance bill now on consideration before the Senate, and which was emasculated yesterday by the White amendment, a party measure, to restore it practically to the shape in which it was when originally offered, and to make the rest of it still to be considered a party measure, which is to be passed without the crossing of a t or the dotting of an i.

In the cold gray dawn of the morning after, when the newspapers had put the matter into cold print, the action of yesterday of taking out of the bill its publicity and mutualization features by not making mandatory the publication of the list of policy holders looked fishy to the Governor. By no stretch of imagination could it be made to appear an accident that the two parties had been split exactly in half, seven Democrats on each side and nineteen Republicans on one side and seventeen on the other on the question to amend the bill, thus making it impossible to place the blame on either party for the practical nullification of the insurance investigation.

Gov. Higgins for the first time since he has held office got to work directly to force compliance with his desires as regards the insurance legislation, and to bring matters to a focus he issued the following statement in the morning:

"I learned with regret of the adoption by the Senate yesterday of an amendment to the bill amending the insurance law generally which took out of the bill the provision whereby policy holders were assured of information as to the names and residences of their associates.

"The progress of the insurance legislation reported by the Armstrong Committee is followed by the people with the keenest interest. I feel that the public demands that these bills be enacted into law, substantially as reported, and looks with suspicion upon all efforts to amend them.

"It would, in my judgment, be a matter for serious concern and deep regret if public opinion should hold that the work of this session on insurance was marred by the defeat of any of the cimmittee's bills."

The Governor made it plain that he considered the party as well as his administration on trial as regards the insurance investigation, and so while Senator Armstrong on the floor of the Senate was killing time by talking on another section of the bill, the Governor summoned the Republican members to him and read the riot act. Ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff came in for the same kind of a talking to. He was generally credited with having inspired the White amendment. Mr. Woodruff, who is President of the Provident Life, of which White is counsel, was summoned to Albany, and it is understood that he denied to the Governor quite as strenuously as he did to the correspondents here that he was the author or the real mover of the amendment.

"I did not know anything about it until I saw it in the newspapers," said Woodruff. "It is true that Senator White is my counsel, and I did not know, after a talk I had with him last Fall, that he was opposed to the mutualizing of the companies. He told that to me and to them before the committee finished their session, and I said then that I disagreed with him on that subject. He told the same thing to others, and so he may for that reason have been selected to move the amendment. It will readily be seen that my company, being a stock concern, would benefit by having the lists of its competitors made public."

A peculiar circumstance in connection with the White amendment came to light to-day. It appears that Mr. McIntosh of the New York Life issued a pamphlet some time ago, which he sent around, embodying his suggestions as to how the insurance bills ought to be changed. It did not contain any hard-and-fast recommendations, but asked questions in a diplomatic fashion as to whether the reader did not think that this or that change would improve the situation. As embodying the desires of the New York Life management to give the policy holders some say, the last part of the letter contained a suggestion about making public the policy holder lists, in almost the exact words of the White amendment.

The first hint that Gov. Higgins had taken hold hard and fast came when the Senate took a recess at 1 o'clock and Senator Raines made the announcement that there would be a caucus of the Republicans during the recess. This lasted for an hour and a half, and after adjournment, at 4 o'clock, the caucus straightway went into session again, remaining locked up till 6 o'clock. It was learned then that a compromise amendment had been agreed upon, which will be introduced by Senator Armstrong to-morrow, when a regular session will be held and the big bill finally put through.

Twenty-six Senators pledged themselves to vote for the measure as it will stand with the Armstrong amendment. The others also promised their votes, but asked out of consideration for pledges which they had made to their constituents that they be allowed to speak on a number of features in the bill which they would like to have changed. This is particularly true in the cases of the Erie County Senators, Davis, Fechter, and Hill, who are against the assessment company clause in the bill, which affects the Masonic Life in Buffalo and some similar concerns in other parts of the State.

In the original bill the clause about the publication of the lists of policy holders stated that they should be filed with the Superintendent of Insurance five months before each election for Trustees or Directors, and kept on file in the main and branch offices. The compromise amendment puts it that independent nominations are to me made three months before an election, and two months before that the lists shall be filed, as originally provided. After the election they may be withdrawn until a similar time before the next election. It is believed that this will to a certain extent do away with twisting by agents of other companies.

Another situation confronted the Senate, which might have kept the Legislature in session most of the year. Moreland, the majority leader in the Assembly, stated to Armstrong that when the bill came back in its amended form for concurrent action he would hold it there till December, if necessary, rather than let it go through in its emasculated condition. That would have brought about a dead-lock that could only have been broken by a back-down in the Senate.

An Opinion May Go Wrong

When you match your attorney's opinion against a policy of title insurance, you, yourself, become the insurer. If there has been any error of law or fact, a ten million dollar company would scarcely feel the loss while it might make you penniless.

DENOUNCED BY C. E. HUGHES.

He Says Purpose of Insurance Amendment Is to Intrench Management.

The passage of the White amendment to the general insurance bills drafted by the Armstrong Committee, striking out the requirement that the companies shall file lists of their policy holders with the State Superintendent of Insurance and substituting a provision that the companies shall distribute at policy holders' expense such literature as they may care to address to each other, threatens now to put a different phase on the entire insurance campaign.

It was declared yesterday by representatives of the policy holders' organizations that, unless the Senate reconsidered its position, there would be no course left to them in the approaching contest but to conduct a line of personal attack upon the existing administrations in the Mutual and New York Life Insurance Companies with a view to bringing public opinion to a point where these officers could not possibly remain in power.

Suits for restitution, demands for further investigation with the backing, already assured, of the Insurance Commissioners of various outside States, and individual complaints of a criminal nature in case the actions promised by District Attorney Jerome do not materalize, were some of the measures discussed yesterday.

Charles E. Hughes sounded the keynote of this course yesterday by declaring that, instead of allaying agitation, the newly revealed policy of the companies would only intensify it.

"The amendment which passed the Senate yesterday is a most damaging amendment," said Mr. Hughes. "The claim that it is in the interests of the policy holders is a shallow pretense which will deceive nobody. The interests of the policy holders require that the administration of these companies should be conducted with a proper sense of responsibility which can only be enforced by giving absolute freedom to the policy holders to combine for the purpose of changing the management whenever it is guilty of abuses. In mutual companies the policy holders are the members and the Directors are simply their appointed agents to manage their affairs.

"It is of the first importance that the policy holders should have free opportunity to know each other, to communicate with each other, and to effect whatever combinations may be needed to secure a proper representation. In my judgment, those who have sought this amendment have committed a grave tactical blunder. Instead of allaying agitation and permitting the Fall elections to be held under conditions which would by reason of equal opportunity and fair play aid in the expression of conservative sentiment, they would, by keeping from the policy holders the information to which they are entitled, greatly embitter the controversy.

"I attach little importance to the solicitude that is said to be felt for the policy holders lest they should be induced to 'twist.' It should be clearly understood by the public that the main purpose of the amendments is to intrench the management and make it more difficult for the policy holders to assert their rights."

Rumors have been heard here for several days of a recrudescence of opposition to the Armstrong Committee's bills, and the efforts of Vice President Kingsley and Counsel McIntosh of the New York Life Insurance Company at Albany have been generally known, but they were not taken seriously, in view of the announcements from up-river that all opposition to the programme had been withdrawn—for this session, at least.

Yesterday the name of a lawyer who has represented the companies in many litigations where the rights of the policy holders were concerned was mentioned in connection with the lobby that has been organized, and it was learned that ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff, now President of the Provident Savings Life, had gone to Albany from Syracuse to aid in opposing the principal bill.

It is said that the New York Life, the Mutual Life, and the Equitable Life are all interested in the programme of opposition that now comes into full view, and that Mr. Woodruff's services are availed of, both because of the close connection between the Provident Savings Life and the New York Life in years gone by and because he is more familiar with political conditions than other insurance men in these days when Andrew Fields and Andrew Hamilton are out of the running.

John De Witt Warner, counsel for the committee of Mutual Life policy holders, of which Bernard N. Baker is the head, had this to say:

"The introduction yesterday of the White amendment and its temporarily successful support by the insurance lobby, commanded by discredited officials of the companies concerned and including the so-called agents' organization they have before utilized, will stir the policy holders as has nothing since Hamilton arraigned the same marplots.

"For it shows the management of the companies concerned as cabals of speculators who, having gotten policy holders' money into their hands and somewhat into their pockets, propose to give the policy holders no chance whatever to turn them out, although the act already approved brands them as unfit to remain. In short, in legislative as well as corporate tactics they have shown themselves to be of the class which may be depended upon to carry off anything that isn't too heavy or too hot.

"It may well be that we have not had exposés enough. But if this amendment remains we shall have plenty more. In State after State Insurance Commissioners will not be longer apt to permit either of these companies to do business within its borders until their present control has been torn loose from them. From still other States, now sleeping, demands for further inquiry will be resistless.

"And between investigations, indictments, policy holders' suits, and the growing stench of discredit as many facts come out which are not yet common property, the business of these companies will be paralyzed until their management is changed, or they are wound up.

"This is precisely what we do not want, and which therefore our association hopes may yet be prevented by a reconsideration of the White amendment and the restoration of the bill to its original shape.

"The matter is too large to bother with individuals. The well-meaning Senators who yesterday helped the 'Black Horse Cavalry' are in company they must accept or leave. There is no reputation good enough to remain so if it stays bracketed with that of the long recognized public enemies who are leading in this fight against the policy holders."

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Committee of Policy Holders of the Mutual and New York Life Insurance Company, sent a telegram to Senator Brackett yesterday, in which he said:

"The action of paid officials like Kingsley and McIntosh openly lobbying for days against the interests of those they are paid to prevent is unexampled for audacity and demonstrates anew the lengths to which the companies would go to prevent the attempts at restitution that would follow a change."

Della Fox's Husband Arrested.

Jack Levy, a diamond dealer of 140 West Forty-seventh Street, the husband of Della Fox, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Henry McAleenan, Jr., a pawnbroker, of 1,330 Broadway, who charged Levy with the larceny of a diamond ring valued at $750. The pawnbroker said that the ring was given to Levy last July to sell, but that instead he pawned it and kept the proceeds. Levy was paroled in custody of Lawyer Fred House. Magistrate Finn set the hearing for Monday.

ODELL BEATS PARSONS AT RIOTOUS MEETING

Personal Encounters Near in County Committee.

HISSES AND HIGH WORDS

Parsons's Apportionment Plan Turned Down Decisively — Says He Will Fight It at Albany.

Charges of bad faith, bitter personalities, hisses, and riotous proceedings that threatened at times to the verge of personal encounters filled the session of the Republican County Committee last night when, in the Murray Hill Lyceum, the Odell forces defeated Chairman Herbert Parsons on the apportionment plans for the county. Chairman Parsons gave open warning, as he previously had given in the Executive Committee meeting in the afternoon, that he would fight the plan before the Legislature with every confidence in his ability to defeat it.

There was no roll call at the County Committee meeting in the evening, but in the Executive Committee, at its meeting late in the afternoon at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, the Odell-Halpin forces controlled twenty-three of the thirty-six district leaders, while Chairman Parsons had the support of the three ex-officio members of the committee who were not district leaders, making the vote 23 to 16.

Last night Lemuel E. Quigg gave notice that at the next meeting he would move to amend the rules so that no ex officio members could vote in the Executive Committee meetings, thus leaving that body solely to the district leaders. In the Executive Committee the Odell-Halpin men controlled the votes of District Leaders Hines, Hoeninger, Levison, Van Cott, March, Hackett, Halpin, Windolph, Newstead, Pegnam, Koenig, Quigg, who held the proxy of Gilman, Gruber, Pine, Alexander, Gunner, Lauterbach, with the proxy of Colby, Neal, Newman, Raymond, Ten Eyck, Healey, and Germain.

Chairman Parsons had the support of Leaders Delessando, proxy for Merwin, Rosalsky, proxy for Eidman, Joveshoff, Wanmaker, Page, Henkel, Shea, Lexow, McKee, Parsons, Wilson, Meyers, for Page, and the ex officio members, Second Vice President J. G. Kremer, Treasurer George Bladden, and Chairman Otto T. Bannard of the Finance Committee.

When the Executive Committee met Quigg moved that it indorse the apportionment plan prepared by the Odell subcommittee of the Parsons committee on apportionment. This sub-committee was composed of Messrs. Windolph, Ten Eyck, and Gruber. He said it was better adapted to the needs and wishes of the district leaders than was the Parsons plan. Wilson, who headed the committee named by Parsons, wanted the entire matter to go over a week to see if the two plans could not be brought together. This was lost by the vote of 23 to 16, and the Odell-Halpin plan was put through by the same vote.

Quigg then moved for the appointment of a special committee, with Parsons at the head, to go to Albany and urge the plan. Chairman Parsons declined to serve, and said he would fight the plan later in the County Committee, and still later at Albany.

The resolution was adopted without his name on the list, and then Mr. Levinson raised a row by accusing Chairman Parsons of bad faith in having had Kremer, the Second Vice President, named a member of a Subway appraisal committee without consulting the leader of the district, Levinson's, in which Kremer lived. He said such actions tended to destroy organization. Parsons said he had secured the appointment, but acted in good faith.

The bad blood engendered was carried into the Murray Hill Lyceum in the evening and both sides were on hand full of fight. Halpin took the first opportunity to move the adoption of the Odell-Halpin apportionment plan, saying it had been indorsed by a majority of the district leaders in the Executive Committee meeting. Parsons turned the gavel over to Mr. Wilson and took the floor to oppose the motion. He said the Wilson-Parsons plan was far better for the party, as it would make at least three Republican Senate districts in the county and possibly four. He offered a resolution committing the organization to the 1902 and 1904 Gubernatorial votes as a basis for the apportionment. This resolution was tabled on Halpin's motion.

The debate by this time had taken on much heat. Ex-Judge Rosalsky started in on a bitter attack on the Odell-Halpin plan, which he declared was against the east side Republicans, and which was planned to annihilate the Eighth District.

"The Eighth District used to be 5,500 Democratic," he declared. "We have worked hard, and Adler carried it seven times for Assembly on a straight party vote. Now you want to wipe us out. We don't want sympathy; we are used to caring for ourselves, but if you do this you are inviting trouble on next primary day."

Mr. Halpin replied that the Eighth District could not be kept intact as it now had but 29,000 votes and the apportionment required more than 40,000 votes to an Assembly district. He said that by cutting up the Eighth it would make the Tenth and Twelfth Republican.

"If the other side had given this the attention I have," he said, "they would not speak as they now do through ignorance. The Eighth should not be protected at the expense of several other districts."

Hisses greeted Halpin. Then Mr. Levinson spoke for the Odell-Halpin plan, and said the east side had been fairly trated. Some more bitter speeches were made when Halpin moved the previous question, and a chorus of yeas and of nays greeted the call for a vote. Chairman Parsons apparently did not want a roll call, and he ruled against himself and in favor of the Halpin motion, thus putting the plan through, and not placing his minority under the obligation of being counted.

Halpin then promptly called up the Parsons resolution, which had been tabled, and which urged the use of the 1902 and 1904 votes as a basis. He had the committee vote this down, after which Quigg sprang a resolution naming Messrs. Halpin, Van Cott, Raymond, Koenig, Healey, and Parsons as the committee, to go to Albany to urge the plan. With a bang of his gavel, Parsons charged this was bad faith and in violation of the result of the Executive Committee.

"I decline to serve on the committee, as I do not think the plan the best one," he said. "I shall oppose it at Albany with every confidence that it will be defeated."

"The Chairman ought to be willing to act as the agent of this committee when it instructs him," announced Quigg.

"I move that Quigg's name be substituted for that of Parsons," shouted Mr. Prentice of Parsons's own district. There was a chorus of ayes and a corresponding chorus of noes.

"Carried!" announced the Chairman, with a bang of his gavel.

The Halpin-Odell men were in a quandary for a moment and worried. A motion to adjourn was sprung, and Chairman Parsons wavered and then lost the opportunity that had been presented of adjourning the meeting and leaving the committee with the Quigg tag on, which would have condemned it before the Legislature. He entertained a motion for a roll call, and some stormy incidents followed, during which Halpin shouted at Josiah Newcomb:

"I won't discuss this with you; you don't know anything!"

Friends got between the men and trouble was avoided. Then Quigg offered to withdraw his proposition to name Parsons if Prentice was willing to withdraw the name of Quigg, thus leaving the committee of five. This finally was done, and the meeting, after three hours of bitter strife, adjourned.

THE RELIEF OF SAN FRANCISCO.

The people of the country must by immediate contributions of money provide for the relief of the victims of fire and earthquake in San Francisco. The need is great, the requirements urgent. By extraordinary efforts temporary provision can doubtless be made for providing food, water, and shelter. But for many weeks and months to come help must be given, and with a generous hand.

Some measure of San Francisco's need and of the country's duty will be afforded by a comparison of the extent of this disaster with the havoc wrought by the Chicago fire in 1871. In Chicago the money loss was estimated at $290,000,000. Dispatches from San Francisco put the loss due to the fire and the earthquake at above $200,000,000. In Chicago 250 lives were lost, in San Francisco and environs the present estimate is all the way from 1,000 to 3,000. The Chicago fire left 98,500 persons homeless. Gen. FUNSTON advises the War Department that 200,000 persons have been made homeless in San Francisco. For the relief of suffering in Chicago $3,500,000 was put in the hands of the Relief and Aid Society within one month, and the State of Illinois by legislative action rendered further aid to the extent of nearly $3,000,000.

It will be seen from this comparison that the calamity which has befallen San Francisco is one of the first magnitude. It is appalling, surpassing in horror and destructiveness any calamity of like nature recorded in the annals of the country. The city has been practically destroyed. Moreover, later dispatches indicate that other cities in the State have suffered from the destructive force of the earthquake. Scores of towns are reported to be in ruins. The prompt action of Congress in appropriating a million dollars for the relief of the sufferers, the raising of $85,000 by subscription in a few minutes on the Stock Exchange, the forwarding of funds from Boston and other towns, and the private subscriptions exceeding $500,000 already reported in this city, show that the Nation's heart has been deeply touched, that the people of the United States, always humane and ready to provide relief for the sorrowing and the afflicted, will at once and bountifully respond to an appeal in behalf of San Francisco.

Organization is necessary. There should be a committee in each State of the Union, and a central committee either in this city or in Chicago, as convenience may determine, to carry on the work. In these matters systematic effort is the true method. The people of this city will recall the admirable plan and gratifying success of the movement organized by Gen. HORACE PORTER to raise funds for completing the Grant Monument. Gen. PORTER divided the labor of soliciting subscriptions among a great number of committees, each representing some trade or calling. Thus, without waste or duplication of effort, the entire organization working like a perfected piece of machinery, the fund was accumulated through an immense number of subscriptions readily obtained and in a surprisingly short time. The energy and capacity which Gen. PORTER exhibited in that work would naturally make men turn to him to head the present undertaking for the relief of San Francisco. The initiative in this city has been taken by the Mayor, and action may be expected from the Chamber of Commerce and other similar organizations.

At least $10,000,000 will be needed immediately to relieve the suffering of the homeless people of San Francisco, and it is apparent that ultimately not less than $25,000,000 will be required. The Chicago Committee was extending aid to 60,000 persons many weeks after the fire. In San Francisco barracks and temporary houses must be built, food supplies provided, clothing furnished, and aid and comfort given for a long time to come to those who have lost everything. The men and women of the country will not permit them to suffer if the appeal for help is properly made and the opportunity to give it is made universal. The work should be organized in such a way that every community in the land shall hear the call, that every city, town, and hamlet shall be made to look upon it as a matter of pride as well as of duty to join in the effort. All this can be done by organization, by working from the central committee outward through State and local committees. This is a Nation of newspaper readers, and the press will make the appeal heard in its every corner. And the very essence of such benefaction is its promptness.

SAN FRANCISCO WILL BE RESTORED.

No one would be guilty of minimizing the San Francisco catastrophe before the dead have been extricated from the ruins. From excess of sympathy, rather than a deficiency, comfort and reassurance may be addressed to the country upon grounds which will commend themselves even to San Franciscans when they have time to think about their material losses.

For example, nothing could be more absurd economically than the excessive depreciation in San Franciscan local securities, especially such properties as the traction company, dealt in upon this market. The value of public utilities can be destroyed only by the destruction of the communities they serve, and such communities cannot be destroyed by the destruction of their buildings. If every skyscraper in New York should be leveled they would be rebuilt as certainly as the rivers flow past Manhattan Island to the ocean. The throwing down of blocks of buildings in San Francisco affects but little the value of their sites. While San Francisco Harbor exists, and commerce flows past it to the Orient, the future of San Francisco is assured. No well placed city can be destroyed even by the destruction of its population, much less by the deaths of two or three thousand. Such cities will be rebuilt for the same reasons that they were founded, because of natural advantages instead of artificial enhancement by investment, which contributes but a small proportional part of values.

There are repeated proofs and examples of this. Chicago, Baltimore, Boston, Galveston are cases which illustrate the certainty of better cities arising upon ruins, with a speed remarkable by comparison with the original growth. In our own local experience we have seen that it takes ten years to build a bridge, but a generation does not suffice to bring its communications into proper relation with it. San Francisco's railway communications exist and cannot be destroyed. They and the harbor will cause a new and better San Francisco to spring up with a speed and certainty which ought to comfort and reassure all having intrinsic interests in the afflicted city.

Such considerations should be distinguished from the absurdity of arguing, as was done after the Baltimore fire, that it was an actual advantage. It did indeed stimulate construction, and gave the city a clean slate upon which much was written to the city's advantage in a manner impossible otherwise. There was a demand for labor and building materials, and there was great activity outside the city as well as within it. But it was at somebody's cost, and a mortgage was placed upon the new values which were created. Destruction of capital is never beneficial, not even in a successful war. But there may be offsetting assets. Japan is benefited by her victory as certainly as she is burdened by her war. And San Francisco will experience benefits which will reduce her losses to an endurable burden, although the losses themselves are very real.

TWO WRONGS AND NO RIGHT.

The coal strike controversy has now reached a stage where each of the disputants seems in the wrong to third parties, however they may justify their procedure logically and to themselves. Surely the miners have the right peaceably to lay down their tools, and the disturbances which have occurred, although indefensible, are not enough to destroy the plea that they have done so. But while the right to stop work is admitted, the stoppage is prejudicial to the position of the negotiator responsible for it. The operators are entitled to credit for continuing negotiations, without demanding that work should continue as a condition precedent. But that condition might now very well be imposed upon both parties by that exterior authority of public opinion to which both parties will ultimately appeal in case of final rupture.

The operators themselves have committed a similar fault against impartial judgment in declining arbitration and offering no exit from the deadlock. They are logical and within their rights in standing upon an adjudication, and asking rest from disturbance of settled principles. But the offer was to take the opinion of the same court, not of another court. The court's opinion being registered, there is no risk in taking it again. Upon the contrary, a second decision would place it further beyond attack, and the operators would occupy a better position before the public whose good-will is more valuable than the right to stand upon a position technically correct.

Neither party will do well to carry the controversy too far, for both are vulnerable. The miners deem themselves intrenched behind the law forbidding mining without a license. But the operators ought to be able to tempt a few miners, and a few will be able to earn almost wealth if they work as hard as they can, instead of as hard as the union has allowed. A few hundred miners would keep busy an army of rough labor. And it is possible to repeal the miners' license law. The operators would do well to walk warily when Congress is sitting and Mr. HUGHES is about to ask them questions. The temper of the time is different from that when both sides tempted public toleration before. A policy of revenge or punishment once started would be hard to stop. Prudence is a good watchword. Idle labor, idle mines, idle railways, and a public clamorous for coal make a combination to which the torch of anger ought not to be applied.

"FRAME" BUILDINGS VS. MASONRY.

The frequent and destructive fires which have visited San Francisco before this last and greatest calamity have been invited by the flimsy and combustible character of most of the building. This mode of building is only partly due to the provisional and temporary character of the structures. It is also in great part due to the local belief that a frame building was better adapted to survive seismic shocks than a building of masonry, so that the least fire-proof building might be the most earthquake-proof.

Upon the whole this belief has been vindicated by the results of the earthquake. Only it is now supplemented by the proof that the same type of building which is most earthquake-proof may be the most fire-proof. The invention of the steel frame has wrought this advance. We read that the picturesque and attractive buildings of the Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto collapsed under the shock of the earthquake, although they were low and of massive masonry. We may infer that they collapsed because their structure allowed nothing for "play." It is quite true that in wide-jointed masonry there is, with or without the intention of the builders, often such an allowance, insomuch that certain Gothic vaults have undergone strange and almost incredible distortion, due to unequal settlement, such as an earthquake might induce, without collapsing.

On the other hand, there is only one building in San Francisco entitled to be called a "skyscraper" in the sense in which that term is used in New York or Chicago. That is what is officially known as the "Spreckels," but popularly as the "Call," Building, an extreme skyscraper in San Francisco, in which the need of tall buildings has not become urgent, but a very moderate instance in either of the two more crowded cities. Architecturally the tall parallelopiped, crowned with a dome, is one of the most interesting of its kind. It has evidently had the same advantage over masonry buildings of the same height that the early magnates of "Nob Hill" expected for their timber palaces over palaces of masonry, that it would stand a certain amount of racking with some torsion and deflection, but without collapsing, as a masonry building of like dimensions and proportions might be expected to do. That was the view taken of the steel frame construction by the architect of a New York skyscraper of whom a cautious Director asked what would happen to it in case of an earthquake, and who made answer that the building would be all right, though it might be compelled to "shed" its masonry veneer. Possibly he might have added, though it killed all its inmates. Of loss of life, on any considerable scale, there is in this particular instance happily no question, since the shock of the earthquake was administered at so early an hour in the morning that the building was practically uninhabited.

It is true that it is reported that another steel-frame building in San Francisco "collapsed," though the collapse seems to have consisted merely in the subsidence of the foundations under one of its walls, a result of seismic dislocation, against which, of course, no precautions can guard. Still another steel-frame building, and a very handsome and imposing specimen of its kind, though not distinguished by a disproportion of altitude to area, the Crocker Building, is reported to have passed through the ordeal of the earthquake practically unscathed, while the buildings in its neighborhood compact of masonry were shaken into fragments. As to the fire which followed the earthquake, San Francisco has no new lesson in construction to give. It was known already that a sufficiently fervent heat near a fire-proof building would set fire to whatever in it was inflammable. But the architectural lesson of the entire calamity seems to be that the steel-framed structure comes as near to being both earthquake-proof and fire-proof as any structure yet devised by man.

AS A "TAX ON WEALTH."

The President's proposition to limit accumulations is commonly accepted throughout the country, it appears, as a proposition to "tax wealth." Most of the Gubernatorial and legislative commentators upon it take that view of it. Of course in that construction it is not a novelty but a commonplace. From and before the time of ADAM SMITH it has been accepted that everybody ought to pay the expenses of government "according to his ability." The trouble has been to make him pay. It is almost a commonplace that you must not be too minute and inquisitorial or you will defeat your own purpose. It is like the tariff on diamonds, undoubtedly a proper tariff on mere luxuries. Only, it is accepted that if you put the duty so high as to make it worth while to smuggle them, you will get less revenue than if you make the duty so moderate that the probable gain from smuggling will not compensate, with most importers, the risk of detection and punishment.

A great fortune can be "caught" effectively only at the point of devolution or transmission. Hence what they call in England "legacy and succession duties" have become increasingly popular in this country, and among the States. But if these duties be made too onerous it has been shown that, like a high tariff on diamonds, they defeat their own purpose. Very rich testators fix their legal residences in the States which pursue them with the least animosity.

Nevertheless, the States which have imposed these taxes have found them so productive and convenient as revenue makers that the President's proposition to assume the proceeds of them for Federal purposes will be viewed with apprehension by prudent Governors, although these are not so far as much in evidence as the imprudent Governors who see in it only the suggestion of "sticking the millionaires." The convenience and productiveness for State purposes of the legacy and succession taxes will nevertheless become, as they are more considered, more serious obstacles to the Federal assumption. A "little thing like the Constitution" may not amount to much "between friends" united in their purpose to reduce the bloat of the billionaire. But when the necessary amendment comes up for practical consideration, the argument against it that it forces the States to look elsewhere for a source of revenue which they have hitherto had to themselves will certainly play an important and perhaps a decisive part in the discussion.

Gov. HIGGINS has vetoed the Mortgage Record Tax bill upon the only possible grounds—that is, criticism of details. He has not a word to say in defense of the indefensible system of double taxation imbedded in the tax which was repealed. It is an immense gain that he does not veto this bill because it is wise to revive that system, but because the proposed substitute seems to him obscure in wording, or to have possible loopholes for specific interests. Upon the theory that he has exhausted his objections, and would have no excuse for another veto, it may be better to redraw the bill and send it back to him. Then he can save his face and sign the measure with good grace. Probably this would be the better way, even though there were votes enough to pass the original bill over his veto. There is no object in gratuitous annoyance of the State's chief officer, and if he has indicated defects it will be well to amend them. We should have preferred the original bill to a year's delay, but an amended bill this year would be better yet.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Newspaper Science" Vindicated. Many scientific men have now spoken—or at least have been interviewed—in regard to the earthquake which has produced such frightful results out in California, but we think our readers will agree with us in the opinion that the dispatch from Prof. RALPH STOCKMAN TARR of Cornell, printed by us yesterday, gave a clearer idea of what probably happened than has come from any other source, American or foreign. The dispatch, indeed, despite the fact that it scarcely exceeded a newspaper column in length, was an article or essay in which the whole subject of earthquakes, their causes and methods of action, was set forth in the simplest language, entirely comprehensible to the layman and yet presenting the latest theories and conclusions of science. In denying the probability of any connection between this disturbance and the eruption of Vesuvius, Prof. TARR is in agreement with most of the other authorities, but while they have as yet contented themselves with asserting, he explained, and, as it seems to us, carried something very much like conviction to all who read his words. One curious fact to be noted is that the disturbance of Wednesday morning was not exceptionally violent, as earthquakes go. It did an enormous amount of damage because it acted upon a great city, but Prof. TARR was himself privileged to observe and study a much severer earthquake up in Alaska, no longer ago than 1899. There the ground was not shaken, but actually convulsed, the obtrusion from below in some places amounting to nearly fifty feet. Had anything like that occurred in San Francisco every building in the city would have been instantly shaken to pieces, and we would to-day have been counting, not the many dead, but the few survivors. Yet the Alaskan earthquake was only a highly interesting phenomenon, to be observed and measured by a little party of scientists who were delighted by the opportunity that had come to them. Nothing could better illustrate the truth there is in the proverb that cases are altered by circumstances. We have Prof. TARR's high authority for believing, not only that there is no connection between Vesuvius and the earthquake which started the destruction of San Francisco, but that it is also unnecessary to suspect a relation between the earthquake and Mount Rainier or any other volcano. It was a readjustment of strata, a yielding to strains caused by the slow elevation of the neighboring mountain ranges. Volcanoes and earthquakes are probably connected only as they are both the results of mysterious activities deep within the earth, and when the two come together it seems to be merely a coincidence.

Gorky Viewed at a New Angle. There is some difficulty, it must be confessed, in maintaining all the sternness of outraged propriety toward MAXIM GORKY now that his friend, LEROY SCOTT, has removed from our mental pictures of a too complicated situation the pathetic figure of Mrs. GORKY No. 1, weeping in a deserted home while her two little children harrow up her heart with cruel questions about an absent father. According to the presumably well-informed Mr. SCOTT, the separation of the GORKYS was an amicable agreement to disagree, as much desired on the one side as on the other—which helps things just a little—and not only that, but the wife whom so many good Americans have been pitying as a victim of masculine fickleness, made immediate use of her liberty in exactly the way her husband did. In other words, she bestowed the abandoned title upon another man and is now a Mrs. Somebody-or-other-ending-in-"vitch," as happy as she was before, if not more so. Marital mutations of this particular sort remain highly obnoxious to us—our way of accomplishing the same end being different, and more formal, if not obviously more virtuous—but, as already stated, the rigorist, though an American, does feel his indignation slowly oozing away as he contemplates a situation so unlike the one he has had in mind. We will, however, be no more ready than before to accept GORKY as the preacher of a great cause or as an illustration of the yearnings for freedom we were expected to help along with money and sympathy. It is quite settled that he has done for himself here, and, while Mr. SCOTT is a success as an explainer, his excuses are ineffectual. As for the charge made by one of our correspondents that GORKY has been "outrageously treated" here, that is nonsensical. Suddenly to cool to a man is not to treat him outrageously. He was simply relegated to the obscurity allotted in this country to any man who openly violates what most of us consider a divine law and the rest of us regard as a highly important custom, upon which the stability of society depends. He has been scolded a little, but GORKY has done a good deal of scolding himself, and he should not be seriously disturbed by that.

Dowie in a Decline. All hopes of excitement to be derived from a clash between "Elijah III." and his rebellious followers must apparently be abandoned. On each side there is still some talk about the "leadership of Zion," but it is very half-hearted talk, with all the signs of being merely for effect and the gaining of time, and what really interests both DOWIE and his enemies is "the property." It looks as if the controversy from which so much was expected will turn into a long course of litigation, without a single picturesque feature in it and amusing only to the lawyers. It's a sad outcome of high hopes. DOWIE should have gone straight to Zion City as he promised; he should have trusted to the arguments that have always served him so well. But his faith in the limitless possibilities of human folly seems to have left him, and with it, of course, went his power. Haggling for percentages of what was all his own, explaining the use he made of unbounded discretion, pleading where he once commanded—this is indeed poor work for a "prophet" with a large vocabulary of vituperative epithets.

WEALTH AND DEATH.

Disposition of a Testator's Property Always Subject to Control of State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice the letter of John Sherwin Crosby in your issue of even date discussing Mr. Roosevelt's proposed inheritance tax. It seems to me that the writer totally overlooked the distinction between the active acquisition and possession of wealth on the one hand and the inheritance of it on the other. The right of man to the wealth he himself acquires is based on the theory that either directly or indirectly he has created or made available that wealth and is therefore entitled to the enjoyment of it. There is something—if not very much—to be said in favor of this proposition.

But the question of the inheritance of wealth turns on entirely different considerations. A man's dominion over his possessions, as over all earthly things, ceases with his death. Of himself he can then do no act continuing or resuming his broken possession. He cannot reach his arm out of the grave to deliver his former goods and chattels as he would have wished, nor can he in any way enforce any desired disposition of his one-time property. The State, as a matter of grace or of public policy, may carry out for him any wish of his which it deems fit, but this is a mere privilege extended by the State, capable of indefinite limitation or instant revocation.

In point of fact at the present time a man cannot after his death dispose of his property without the intervention of law. If he leave no will the State disposes of it according to rules laid down by the State. If he do leave a will he must have executed it in a prescribed form; it must not dispose of his property in certain prohibited ways, and it can be of no effect at all until the State has granted letters testamentary. In addition, the whole course of disposal is under the immediate supervision and direction of the State's courts.

In the history of every people the power to dispose of one's property after death has always been a comparatively late development, and has always been granted as the free gift of the State.

While many of us may, and do, disagree with Mr. Roosevelt's views on this and other matters, it would seem probable that a little clear thinking and fair reasoning would be a more effective preparation for their refutation and defeat than hysterical shoutings about the bugaboo of "Socialism," variegated by the pompous utterance of ponderous "deep thoughts," and the flippant deliverance of shallow-pated half-truths. San Francisco Not Alone in Her Sorrow.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, in one of the most beautiful of personal monuments, is an acknowledgment of Francis Scott Key's service to his country. The Star-spangled Banner still waves over dear old 'Frisco, and her sister cities love her with that love born of our glorious Union.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to express my sincere thanks to Mr. Foley for writing and to THE TIMES for publishing in Monday's issue that true masterpiece, "The Secret." I have acquired the habit of looking in the corner for these verses, and would not have missed this poem for the price of a year's subscription to the best paper published. CONSTANT READER.

Maxim Gorky.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The family is the very root of the civilized state. And the family cannot exist without the observance of the marriage tie. It follows, therefore, that Maxim Gorky is a pure Anarchist. Those who believe that Anarchy and liberty are compatible are of course welcome to follow him. But I guess he won't get many followers here. B. W.

The Rage.

From The Chicago Tribune.

The man whose house was next door was scraping an acquaintance with the man who had just moved in.

"I see you have an automobile," he said. "I suppose you will use the barn as a garridge."

"Yes; I expect to use it as a garahzh," responded the new neighbor.

This held him for a minute or two, and then he made another overture.

"The man that lived here last year," he said, "used this back yard as a cabbahzh patch."

THE SAN FRANCISCO DISASTER

Some Observations on Its Presentation as a Matter of News.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think THE TIMES should be complimented upon the way it handled the California disaster. It is in times of such catastrophes that its readers feel justly proud of their paper, knowing its news to be absolutely reliable. The illustrations, too, were excellent, giving those of us who have never been there a comprehensive idea of the ruin wrought in the great City of San Francisco. VERITAS.

SEWARD STATUE AN ORIGINAL.

Denial of the Story That a Body Modeled from Lincoln Was Used.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Again the curious allegation in reference to the statue of Seward in Madison Square is going the rounds. It is asserted that it was originally cast to counterfeit Lincoln. The story goes that the price asked for a new statue was larger than Seward's admirers cared to pay, and that the sculptor, having on hand one of Lincoln, which had been ordered by a defaulting Western city, stated that he could change the head if that would be satisfactory, and this bargain was struck. As a confirmation Harold Stevens of the Savage Club, London, repeated the allegation in The Strand Magazine for January, 1905.

Allow me to inform my friend, Mr. Pumpelly, whose letter appeared in your issue of the 18th, that in the preparation of some historical work it became necessary to run down the quarry. This quotation from a letter dated March 28, 1905, from Frederick W. Seward, the statesman's son, ought to put the story to sleep: "I had not seen the story to which you refer. It is of course unfounded and absurd. D. Appleton & Co., in 1876, published a volume entitled, 'The Seward Memorial.' You will find in it a detailed description and history of the statue, narrating when, where, and how it was made and containing a full account of the ceremonies attending its presentation to the city, together with a list of the chief persons participating therein."

From this volume it is ascertained that the statue was designed by Randolph Rogers at a cost of $25,000, which was raised among 250 individuals, each subscribing $100, and was cast by the Royal Bronze Foundry at Munich. It is, however, doubtful if even these facts will put a quietus on the story.

RANK SOCIALISM OR NOT?

Some Very Contradictory Expressions About the President's Suggestion.

From The Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The President's public expression in favor of a National and progressive inheritance tax raises no political issue and might stand without comment. However, it seems to have caused alarm in some quarters, and an outcry has been raised against it. The chief objections are that such a tax would be unconstitutional and Socialistic.

The President did not speak of an income tax, such as was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, but of an inheritance tax—and a progressive one at that—such as we had over the whole country during the war with Spain.

From The Charleston News and Courier.

A radical of the radicals, a reactionary of the reactionaries, a half-baked student in the science of government, eccentric in his emotions, and unbalanced in the exercise of his political power, it is not surprising that he should have been caught by the first wave of the Socialistic spirit sweeping over this country. Yet he would be the first to fail in any practical recommendation looking to the adjustment of our industrial and political conditions, and the last to admit that he had been in any sense responsible for the dissatisfaction resulting from present methods of protection and taxation.

From The Chicago Chronicle.

Those of President Roosevelt's critics who characterize his suggestion of an inheritance tax as "rank Socialism" go far beyond the bounds of just criticism.

What he feels that we shall ultimately have to consider is a progressive inheritance tax such as will prevent the transmission of enormous fortunes in their entirety to single individuals. This in itself cannot fairly be described as Socialistic at all.

It does not propose to limit the amount of wealth that a man may honestly accumulate or to restrict his liberty to use all he may so acquire in any lawful kinds of business or for the innocent personal enjoyment of himself and others. It proposes only to prevent the perpetuation of great estates in their entirety from generation to generation by bequest. And that is a different thing.

From The Boston Herald.

One of the most fantastic of the President's suggestions in regard to "a progression tax on all fortunes" is that "we should discriminate in the sharpest way between fortunes well-won and fortunes ill-won; between those gained as an incident to performing great service to the community as a whole and those gained in evil fashion by keeping just within the limits of mere law-honesty." "Of course," he adds, "no amount of charity in spending such fortunes in any way compensates for misconduct in making them."

Is the reference here to Carnegie or to Rockefeller?

From The Arkansas Gazette.

In other words, we shall have to have a law under which, if John D. Rockefeller would leave his tremendous millions to his son, a big hunk of the money must first be paid to the National Government. The same thing would be done in less degree with smaller fortunes that are handed down from one person to another. Furthermore, the tax is to be actually so framed as "to put it out of the power of the owner of one of these enormous fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount to any one individual."

From The Independent.

Mr. Roosevelt is right, and his "personal conviction" will be that of many others; and one of these days it will be embodied in National legislation. It is the conclusion which the civilized world is coming to.

MARK TWAIN.

Jester—sage—man! These are the titles, three,
We grant you in pre-eminent degree.
First to awake the drowsy ear of mirth
With joyous call, a-rippling round the earth;
Then dropping in the cup of human tears
A pearl of wisdom—straightway hope appears!
Then last and best to break the chilling ice
Of cold convention, piteous pride's device,
Warming the heart of human brotherhood—
For these, a precious trinity of good,
For these our thanks, and far beyond, above,
Gold, laurel, grant we you the wreath of love.
So wrote I heedless, but forgive me, pray,
You've worn that priceless wreath for many a day!

WOODBURY FLARES UP AT HINTS OF GRAFT

Tells Ivins Man with the Muck-Rake Must Have Made Charges.

MURPHY IN CONTRACTING CO.?

Commissioner Admits District Leaders May Control Some Employes—A Surfeit of Hostlers.

Commissioner John McGaw Woodbury occupied the stand during the whole of yesterday's investigation by the Aldermanic Committee into the Street Cleaning Department in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall. The arrangements for dumping ashes and the price paid by Joseph Morrone for the privilege of trimming scows occupied most of the attention of W. M. Ivins, the counsel for the committee. He brought out the fact that Morrone had obtained the contract on a weekly arrangement without advertising. William Rand represented the Commissioner.

Before the session opened Alderman Greiffenhagen, the Chairman, accused Jerome F. Reilly, Secretary of the Department of Street Cleaning, of signaling to the Commissioner at Wednesday's hearing. He assigned him to a seat in the background.

Mr. Ivins began by asking Commissioner Woodbury if it were not a fact that at some stables there were three men acting as chief hostlers instead of one, but could get no information. The Commissioner stated that he had made several midnight inspections of the stables during the Winter, and had inspected 400 horses an hour. Mr. Ivins seemed skeptical, and Woodbury added:

"I didn't feel their pulses, you know, but made rough examinations, unless I saw they were not clean, when I went over them thoroughly."

The Commissioner then explained the dumping of ashes at West Seventy-ninth Street and West Ninety-sixth Street. By the action of the West Side Protective Asosociation the department is shut off from having dumps of its own from Forty-sixth Street to 134th Street. To avoid the long haul to the east side, it pays 30 cents a load for the privilege of dumping at private dumps.

"Is not the New York Contracting and Trucking Company, which owns the Seventy-ninth Street dump, a Murphy company?"

"I don't know. I have been told he is interested."

Passing on to the question of patronage, Mr. Ivins asked:

"Have you heard that So-and-So is So-and-So's man?"

"Not as a follower of any one in the office, but sometimes of some one outside, as a district leader."

"Is it not a fact that you receive civil service lists with only one name upon them?"

"I don't know, but I'll look it up."

Then the contract which gave Joseph Morrone of the firm of Mollinelli & Morrone the privilege of trimming scows for the payment to the sinking fund of $1,200 a week was taken up. The amount paid for this right in 1902 was $90,996.38, and last year only $62,736.96. This Commissioner Woodbury explained was through the continuous decrease in the value of the refuse.

"The great department stores have discovered the value of their refuse," he said. "One storekeeper sells his for $20,000 a year."

"The 'golden dustman' has his place in literature," remarked Mr. Ivins. "You know your Dickens, Mr. Woodbury?"

"The man with the muck-rake I'd call him," replied Woodbury.

It appeared that Morrone got his contract without it's being advertised and Commissioner Woodbury justified this by his own reading of the charter. He did not think that Mr. Ivins could prove that Morrone made more from paper waste than he paid the city, and denied all knowledge of his political affiliations or that he fomented a strike among the Italian employes of former contractors in order to secure the privilege for himself.

The examination brought out a number of curious facts about the disposal of garbage. Tins have increased greatly in value in the last six months through a new process to separate the tin from the cast iron. The ragpicker has now a horse and cart instead of a hook and a sack. The city dumps are the favorite sleeping places of the idlers of the water front, and the police have to drive them away. From the incineration plants at West Forty-seventh and Delancey Streets, the department provides much electric power for its own use, and will sell 250 horse power an hour to outsiders if the city legal department authorizes it.

Mr. Ivins made a strong point of the rebates of $520 a week to Marrone on account of the work done at the Delancey Street dump. The Commissioner explained it was because Marrone had to hire extra hands to comply with the Health Board regulations. As Mr. Ivins pressed him Alderman Torpey exclaimed: "You needn't answer that question, Commissioner. You needn't answer no questions."

The Chairman suppressed the interruption and Mr. Ivins went on: "I want to know why you make the Sinking Fund pay for your labor. It seems a robbery—"

Commissioner Woodbury seemed to be growing angry and Mr. Ivins stepped up to him and fairly talked him down.

"I don't mean it in any improper sense. I'll use the word deprivation. Of course you're a big man and all that, but you can't frighten me with a look. You're on the witness stand and must answer me."

"When he tries to explain what you ask you always butt in," grumbled Mr. Rand.

"He makes speeches instead of answering," said Mr. Ivins.

"Seems to me it's the counsel who makes speeches instead of asking questions," retorted the Commissioner.

After a few more questions on the detail of the Delancey Street dump the inquiry was adjourned till 10:30 this morning.

Sun Spots and Earthquakes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can any of your readers, I wonder, tell me whether the recent volcanic and seismic disturbances in Italy and California have any connection with the sun spot which is at present visible?

Looking at the setting sun last night, I noticed in its northern hemisphere a spot of considerable magnitude. It had traversed about two-thirds of the surface; that is to say, it must have been visible about a week.

Last year was, I think, the regular eleven-year period of sun spot maxima, when one or two big spots appeared, but this one looks to me an isolated case, as far as I can see through a small glass.

If there is no connection it is at least a curious coincidence and worth noticing.

MARK TWAIN APPEALS FOR THE 'SMITTEN CITY'

Begs the Audience at His Last Public Lecture to be Liberal.

A UNIQUE TALK ON FULTON

Humorist Speaks in His Old Vein for the Benefit of the Fulton Memorial Association.

Mark Twain's last words on the public lecture platform were an appeal for charity to alleviate human suffering. He delivered his public valedictory at Carnegie Hall last night, and in announcing with a tinge of sadness that he appeared in the rôle of a public lecturer for the last time, he begged New York to aid the victims of the disaster in San Francisco.

"Now," he said to the audience which filled the hall, "since I must, I shall say good-bye. I see many faces in this audience well known to me. They are all my friends, and I feel that those I don't know are my friends, too. I wish to consider that you represent the Nation, and that in saying good-bye to you I am saying good-bye to the Nation.

"In the great name of humanity, let me say this final word: I offer an appeal in behalf of that vast, pathetic multitude of fathers, mothers, and helpless little children. They were sheltered and happy two days ago. Now they are wandering, forlorn, hopeless, and homeless, the victims of a great disaster. So I beg of you," he concluded, raising his head and stretching out his arms in appeal, "I beg of you to open your hearts and open your purses and remember San Francisco, the smitten city."

Mr. Clemens later talked to the newspaper reporters about earthquakes on the Pacific coast.

"I haven't been there since 1868," he said, "and that great city of San Francisco has grown up since my day. When I was there she had 118,000 people, and of this number 18,000 were Chinese. I was a reporter on The Virginia City Enterprise in Nevada in 1862, and stayed there, I think, about two years, when I went to San Francisco and got a job as a reporter on The Call. I was there three or four years.

"I remember one day I was walking down Third Street in San Francisco. It was a sleepy, dull Sunday afternoon and no one was stirring. Suddenly as I looked up the street about 300 yards the whole side of a house fell out. The street was full of bricks and mortar. At the same time I was knocked against the side of a house and stood there stunned for a moment.

"I thought it was an earthquake. Nobody else had heard anything about it and no one said earthquake to me afterward, but I saw it and I wrote it. Nobody else wrote it and the house I saw go into the street was the only house in the city that felt it. I've always wondered if it wasn't a little performance gotten up for my especial entertainment by the nether regions."

Mr. Clemens delivered his lecture last night for the benefit of the Robert Fulton Memorial Association, which is to erect a monument in New York to the memory of the man who applied steam to navigation.

"I wish to deliver a historical address," he began. "I've been studying the history of—er-a-let me see-a," then he stopped in confusion and walked over to Gen. Fred D. Grant, who sat at the head of the platform. He leaned over in a whisper and then returned to the front of the stage and continued:

"Oh, yes! I've been studying Robert Fulton. I've been studying a biographical sketch of Robert Fulton, the inventor of—er—a—let's see—oh, yes, the inventor of the electric telegraph. Also, I understand he invented the air—diria—pshaw! I have it at last—the dirigible balloon. Yes, the dirigible—but it is a difficult word, and I don't see why anybody should marry a couple of words like that when they don't want to be married at all and are likely to quarrel with each other all the time. I should put that couple of words under the ban of the United States Supreme Court, under its decision of a few days ago, and then take 'em out and drown 'em.

"And Fulton was born in—er-a-well, it doesn't make much difference where he was born, does it? I remember a man who came to interview me once, to get a sketch of my life. I consulted with a friend—a practical man—before he came, to know how I should treat him.

"'Whenever you give the interviewer a fact,' he said, 'give him another fact that will contradict it. Then he'll go away with a jumble that he can't use at all. Be gentle, be sweet, smile like an idiot—just be natural.' That's what my friend told me to do, and I did it.

"'Where were you born?' asked the interviewer.

"'Well-er-a—,' I began, 'I was born in Alabama or Alaska, or the Sandwich Islands; I don't know where, but right around there somewhere. And you had better put it down before you forget it.'

"'But you weren't born in all those places,' he said.

"'Well, I've offered you three places. Take your choice. They're all at the same price.'

"'How old are you?' he asked.

"'I shall be 19 in June,' I said.

"'Why, there's such a discrepancy between your age and your looks,' he said.

"'Oh, that's nothing,' I said, 'I was born discrepantly.'

"Then we got to talking about my brother Samuel, and he told me my explanations were confusing.

"'I suppose he is dead,' I said. 'Some said that he was dead and some said that he wasn't.'

"'Did you bury him without knowing whether he was dead or not?' asked the reporter.

"'There was a mystery,' said I. 'We were twins, and one day when we were two weeks old—that is, he was one week old, and I was one week old—we got mixed up in the bathtub, and one of us drowned. We never could tell which. One of us had a strawberry birthmark on the back of his hand. There it is on my hand. This is the one that was drowned. There's no doubt about it.'

"'Where's the mystery?' he said.

"'Why, don't you see how stupid it was to bury the wrong twin?' I answered. I didn't explain it any more because he said the explanation confused him. To me it is perfectly plain.

"But," continued Mr. Clemens, "to get back to Fulton; I'm going along like an old man I used to know, who used to start to tell a story about his grandfather. He had an awfully retentive memory, and he never finished the story, because he switched off into something else. He used to tell about how his grandfather one day went into a pasture, where there was a ram. The old man dropped a silver dime in the grass, and stooped over to pick it up. The ram was observing him, and took the old man's action as an invitation. Just as he was going to finish about the ram this friend of mine would recall that his grandfather had a niece who had a glass eye. She used to loan that glass eye to another lady friend, who used it when she received company. The eye didn't fit the friend's face, and it was loose. And whenever she winked it would turn over.

"Then he got on the subject of accidents, and he would tell a story about how he believed accidents never happened.

"There was an Irishman coming down a ladder with a hod of bricks," he said, "and a Dutchman was standing on the ground below. The Irishman fell on the Dutchman and killed him. Accident? Never! If the Dutchman hadn't been there the Irishman would have been killed. Why didn't the Irishman fall on a dog which was next to the Dutchman? Because the dog would have seen him coming. Then he'd get off from the Dutchman to an uncle named Reginald Wilson. Reginald went into a carpet factory one day, and got twisted into the machinery's belt. He went excursioning around the factory until he was properly distributed and was woven into sixty-nine yards of the best three-ply carpet. His wife bought the carpet, and then she erected a monument to his memory. It read:

"Sacred to the memory of sixty-nine yards of the best three-ply carpet, containing the mortal remainders of Reginald Wilson. Go thou and do likewise.

"And so on he would ramble about telling the story of his grandfather until we never were told whether he found the ten-cent piece or whether something else happened."

MUSIC SCHOOL SETTLEMENT.

Concert by Its Pupils Heard by Large Audience in Mendelssohn Hall.

The children of the Music School Settlement have before now given evidence of their delight in music and the progress they have made in studying it. The concert of the school, held yesterday afternoon in Mendelssohn Hall, gave renewed proof of it, and it was the cause of much satisfaction to a large audience that filled every seat in the hall. The programme included a symphony of Haydn's, played by the orchestra class under Mr. Mannes's direction, and with the help of professionals in the parts for wind instruments; a movement from Mozart's G major quartet, played by the "junior orchestra" of strings, an intermezzo from a piano quartet of Mendelssohn's, and Saint Saëns's prelude to "The Deluge" for string orchestra, six solo violins and organ. In addition to this, the orchestra played the accompaniment of Mendelssohn's D minor piano concerto, and there were solos for piano, violin, and 'cello, and Mrs. Francis Wellman sang a group of songs with charming expression and finished art.

The Settlement pupils are all children; most of them very little ones. They play with every evidence of delight in what they are doing, with small trace of affectation or self-consciousness. They show in general musical disposition and the evidences of correct training. There was no thought, apparently, of producing them as prodigies, but rather as healthy and enthusiastic pupils who played for the friends of their school what they had studied and learned there for the love of it. They are in the way of learning, not only technique, as it seems, but knowledge of good music, taste, and appreciation. The work of this school, then, ought to be a supplement to that of the other agencies that are spreading the love and understanding of choral, orchestral, and chamber music among the wage earners of the east side and other sides of the city. It gives an opportunity for hearing and reading music that is prized by the people to whom it is extended, and that ought to have its influence on the taste of the community, as the other opportunities all are.

"COUSIN LOUISA" PUT ON.

Frederick Paulding's New Comedy Produced at Middletown.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., April 19.—Daniel Frohman and Joseph Brooks gave Frederick Paulding's new American comedy, "Cousin Louisa," its first production in this city this evening.

The story of the play concerns Louisa Westover, 18, and trained to a creed of "money before all," who elopes with a poor man only to be divorced a year later because of incapability of income. Both agree to remarry for money, but the husband, after the separation, finds that he loves Louisa; so remains single and amasses a fortune. Louisa marries a California multi-millionaire, and after four years of marital infelicity he dies and Louisa assumes her maiden name and comes East to encounter many companions, and at last to be remarried for love to her first husband.

PROF. CURIE KILLED IN A PARIS STREET

The Discoverer of Radium Run Over by a Wagon.

EXPERIMENTED MANY YEARS

Success Followed Early Hardship—Curie Was Greatly Aided by Mme. Curie.

PARIS, April 19.—Prof. Curie, the discoverer of radium, was run over and killed by a wagon on the Place Dauphine this afternoon.

Ever since the discovery of radium by Prof. Curie and his wife they had devoted their energies to further researches on the same lines and to the manufacture of the wonderful element they had found. It was in 1899 that radium was discovered. Two years afterward the French Academy of Sciences awarded the La Caze Prize of 10,000 francs to Prof. and Mme. Curie, and soon afterward the Curies produced a minute quantity of pure radium. In December, 1903, the Nobel Prize for chemistry was awarded to them, and a few weeks afterward they received 60,000 francs, part of the French Osiris Prize, in recognition of their services to science.

These rewards were the result of a series of efforts entailing the greatest self-sacrifice and the most sustained labor. Pierre Curie was born in Paris on May 15, 1859. He was the son of a physician, and early showed his bent for scientific research. He was educated at the Sorbonne, and when only 20 years old began chemical experimentation on his own account. In his researches he was aided by Marie Sklodowska, a Pole, who was born at Warsaw, in 1868, and who after studying chemistry and physics there went to Paris to continue her work.

Curie became a professor in the School of Physics and Chemistry at Paris in 1895, and about the same time married Mlle. Sklodowska, who had already attracted considerable attention by her contributions to scientific publications.

The couple, both entirely devoted to science, passed through many hardships together. Neither had any fortune, and with the few thousand francs which they earned it was by no means easy to make both ends meet. They took a house in the suburb of Paris called Bourg-la-Reine, a couple of miles from the walls of the city, and it is related of them that, in order to save carfare, they each day made the journey from their home to their laboratory, in the Rue Lhomond, on bicycles.

It was in the little laboratory in the Rue Lhomond that the experiments which resulted in the discovery that has already revolutionized chemistry, and which may revolutionize the practice of medicine, were conducted. The Curies began by studying the magnetic properties of steel, but in a little while the study of the conductivity of air under the influence of the rays of uranium and thorium led them to the path which ended in the finding of radium.

To attempt to outline the experiments which resulted in the discovery would be impossible in limited space, but the upshot of these experiments was a communication to the Academy of Sciences in 1898, in which the Curies positively confirmed what they had previously announced as a probability—the presence of a new and strongly radio-active substance contained in pitchblende. They first found a new element which they called polonium, and afterward discovered an element having the chemical appearance of nearly pure barium, but showing quite different characteristics. This element was radium.

The efforts of the Curies recently had been directed toward cheapening the cost of radium, its expensiveness being at present the chief obstacle to more general experiments with it and its use in medical practice. It takes 5,000 tons of uranium residues to produce 1 kilo (2.2 pounds) of radium, and the cost of handling these residues is $2,000 a ton. It would be impossible to obtain pure radium by chemical analysis, and the far more sensitive electrical method is employed. Prof. Curie said he could detect the presence of a radio-active substance in such a minute quantity that it would require 5,000 times the amount to show it on the spectroscope.

The professor was frequently forced to delay his tests for three or four hours, by reason of the fact that he had been exposed to radium and that his clothes had become so radio-active as to prevent him from going near his instruments. The Curies' laboratory became so thoroughly impregnated with radium that they had to move into another place for their experiments. Both the professor and his wife recently became ill through the effects of radium.

Prof. Curie in 1904 refused the decoration of the Legion of Honor. "I am of the opinion," he said, "that the hope of receiving decorations is not necessary as an inducement to acts of devotion or courage."

Prof. Curie leaves one child, a daughter 9 years old.

VETOES MORTGAGE TAX BILL.

Gov. Higgins Says the Legislature Should Have Perfected It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 19.—Gov. Higgins today vetoed the Mortgage Tax Repeal bill on which Mr. Page made such a hard fight in the Senate. The Governor in his veto message is particularly severe on the proposition of handing a confessedly imperfect bill to the Executive and leaving him to do the work of correcting it instead of having it perfected in the Legislature

Referring to the change in the policy of the Legislature, which last year established an annual tax, and this year reversed itself, the Governor says:

"This abrupt change of policy on the subject of mortgage taxation, which has taken place inside of a single year, is accounted for not by any change in party politics or party management, but rather by the fact that in the independent judgment of two-thirds of the members voting in each House on the bill the present law should no longer remain on the statute books. Such an expression of policy is entitled to conscientious and serious consideration."

The Governor points out that in 1900 both political parties recommended mortgage taxation, and adds:

"Approval of the principle of this bill would indicate no more serious reversal of policy on my part than on the part of the Legislature, nor would pride of opinion lead me to a stubborn and unreasoning refusal to reverse my own policy in response to an enlightened public demand."

"Taxation for taxation's sake," says the Governor, "is not a rule of statecraft, and since the stock transfer tax has been upheld by the Court of Appeals the State does not seem to be dependent for revenue upon the continuance of the annual mortgage tax. Approval of a recording law will tend to increase the direct tax on real property, but it would seem from the reports of the State Tax Commissioners that fully seven-eighths of the assessed personal property of the State is found in those counties which are most united in support of the present bill and in opposition to the annual mortgage tax."

The Governor after denying that it was his duty to point out defects in the bill indicates his technical objections to the measure. He says that it is evasive and ambiguous, that it might permit corporation mortgages to escape taxation, and that it is not clear as to the collection of the tax on mortgages received during the year ending June 30, 1906.

"I seriously question," Mr. Higgins says, "the propriety of the provision for the optional payment of taxes on old mortgages and on bond issues. It is true the substance of these sections is contained in the existing law, but the change from an annual tax to a recording tax changes the principle which should control in this regard. There is a vast difference between securing exemption from taxation on prior mortgages by paying annually a tax of one-half of 1 per cent., which may continue for a lifetime, and securing such exemption by paying a single recording tax of one-half of 1 per cent. When mortgages are exempted from taxation it should be done with regard to the rights of borrowers to whom the rate of interest has been fixed by the rate of taxation prevailing when their mortgages were given and lenders' value should not be unwarrantably enhanced by legislative act."

LA FOLLETTE DEFENDS RAILWAY RATE BILL

Declares Federal Government Is Responsible to States.

MUST SEE RATES ARE FAIR

This in Return for the Surrender by the States of Power Over Inter-State Commerce.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Senator La Follette began his speech on the Railway Rate Regulation bill to-day and will continue to-morrow. His is the most exhaustive and informing contribution to the debate that has yet been presented. His grasp of the facts in the history of rate legislation and of the practical conditions and methods of railroad management lent great interest to all that he had to say. The Senate showed a disposition to visit upon the Wisconsin Senator some manifestation of its displeasure at his temerity in making a set speech before he had served out the customary year of probation. At one time the Republican side of the chamber was empty, but for the presence of Senators Nelson and Kean. La Folette suddenly broke out in an impassionate denunciation of the Senate for not desiring to hear him.

"I am aware," he said, "that Senators desire to show a want of interest in what I am saying, but I wish to say here and now that seats now temporarily vacant will be permanently vacated by Senators who will not listen to the appeals of the American people for justice."

The galleries broke out with a burst of applause. Senator Kean suggested a call of the Senate, to which La Follette objected. Kean then moved that the galleries be cleared, but Senator Long, who was in the Chair, contented himself with administering the customary warning against applause.

Senator La Follette said in part:

"The opponents of the regulation of railway rates and services have skillfully conducted this debate almost from the beginning upon Constitutional grounds. This has prevented the Senate from giving consideration to the provisions of the bill and the abuses which call for correction.

"For many days the discussion has been confined to a consideration of the court procedure to test the orders of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The importance of this branch of the subject will depend entirely upon the character of the orders which the commission is authorized to make. The importance of any order issued will depend upon the power conferred and the duties imposed by law upon the commission. The authority of the commission may be so limited that the procedure for the enforcement of its orders will be relatively of little public importance.

"Taking the construction of the Constitution contended for, is there not an obligation on the part of the Federal Government, under any rational interpretation of the true meaning and spirit of this delegation of power, not only to give no preference, but to see that no preference is given? The States surrender all their commerce and all their power of regulation over it to the General Government, subject to the stipulation that in the exercise of that power no preference should be given to any power. Ought not the Government to protect the commerce of the States which have lost the right to protect it themselves? Ought not the Government to see to it that the transportation companies, over which the States have no control, which the Government alone can regulate, shall not do the very thing which the States expressly stipulated should not be done by the Government?

"If the Federal Government permits a third party, subject to control by no one but the Federal Government, to do the very thing which it was expressly forbidden to do, is it not, in fact, doing the forbidden thing itself? Is it not, in fact, a violation of the spirit of this very provision of the Constitution for the Federal Government to allow the railway companies to give preference to the ports of one State over another by parceling out its commerce to suit themselves?

"Corporate interests have little reason to expect aid and comfort from the Supreme Court. The opinion of Justice White in the coal case, delivered in February, that of Justice Harlan in the Chicago Corporation cases, in March, and the opinion of Justice Brewer in the Michigan tax case, rendered within a few days, are opportune illustrations of the conservation by the Supreme Court of the inherent rights of the people against the encroachment of corporate power. To the great honor of the court and to the preservation of Government, this final tribunal remains as unsullied and ideal to-day as when created by the Constitution. The great interests have not hesitated to corrupt legislation and propose its attorneys for judicial appointment, but its taint has never reached the Supreme Court of the United States.

"The people have no need to fear the final judgment of the Supreme Court. Indeed, they have every reason to seek the final adjudication of questions involving public rights by our highest court. Again and again it has interposed the strong arm of the law between the people and the unlawful encroachment of corporate power.

"The great bulk of commerce is inter-State. The National Government has the exclusive power to regulate inter-State commerce. It has the responsibility that goes with the power. Shall Congress use it freely, courageously, or timidly, cringingly, ineffectively?

"The Supreme Court has decided that the Constitution fixes a limitation upon the power of Congress to establish rates. The fifth amendment provides that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation. The constitutionality of the orders of the commission can always be tested on this ground, regardless of any express provision in the law to that effect.

"The transportation companies having built up the great industrial trusts through transportation agreements, their identification now became more pronounced. They became partners in interest. The railroads acquired ownership in the trusts. The trusts acquired ownership in the railroads. Coal, oil, iron, steel, shipping, telegraph, express, gas, beef, food products, and, indeed, the whole field of industrial production came rapidly into combination and unity of interest.

"They did not stop here. Banking, insurance, in fact the whole commercial system, was centralized. Less than one hundred men officered, controlled, and directed throughout the entire field. The identity of ownership could be seen in the appearance and reappearance of the same names, some in one group, some in another, massing and knitting together its vast organization. This was the inevitable result of turning over the highways to the common carriers unrestrained. Combination is bound to breed its own kind.

"The pending bill will not solve the transportation problem. Unless greatly strengthened, it will not meet the expectations of the country. It will not dispose of the question.

"I shall offer an amendment to the pending bill, drawn with a view of giving the commission full authority and imposing upon it the duty of ascertaining the value of the railway property of the United States, and reporting the progress upon the work at the beginning of each regular session of Congress. If we are desirous of giving the public assurance that Congress has taken hold of this subject with sincerity of purpose, that an intelligent, economic basis is to be established for thoroughly and justly dealing with the great interests involved, we shall embody such a provision in this law.

"If this bill is to have far-reaching results—if it is to protect the consumer as well as the shipper—then the foundation must be laid for ascertaining the reasonable rate, in fact. The structure must not be based on the relatively reasonable rate. The ascertainment of the value of the railroads is the very cornerstone of any great and enduring service which this legislation is to accomplish for the people of this country."

REBATE INDICTMENTS STAND.

Kansas City Court Overrules Motions to Quash Them.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 19.—Judge Smith McPherson, in the United States District Court to-day, overruled the motions to quash the indictments returned last December against George H. Crosby, traffic manager of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway, and against L. B. Taggart and George L. Thomas, freight brokers, charged with conspiracy to violate the Inter-State Commerce laws in the soliciting and giving of rebates on packing house and other products.

In his decision Judge McPherson held that the conspiracy statutes apply to all kinds of offenses against the Federal Government.

Motions relating to the similar indictments which are now pending against other railroads, packing houses, and officials are yet to be argued.

JERSEY AUTOISTS WARNED.

Get Licenses Now or the New Auto Law Will Get You.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 19.—Assistant Secretary of State J. B. R. Smith, who is Motor Commissioner under the new automobile law, is sending out notices that there has been widespread error in the statement that the provisions of the Automobile act does not go into effect until July 1.

He says that the penalties in the act go into effect on July 1, but licenses are now due, and must be renewed. By May 1 the Automobile Department will be organized, and then new licenses under the statute at the rate of $3 for cars up to thirty horse power and $5 for cars beyond that limit will be ready for issuance. Applications for licenses should be sent in now to avoid the expected rush later.

Edward Johnston of Jersey City has been named Deputy Commissioner. The seven Inspectors will not be named until about the time the penalties of the law go into effect.

GIANTS DROP A GAME TO BROOKLYN TEAM

Batting Rally Gives Donovan's Men Their First Victory.

AMERICANS WHIPPED TWICE

Philadelphia and Boston Lead in National League and the Clevelands in American.

For the third time since the National League season opened last week, a change in leadership has appeared. By their victory over the Bostons yesterday the Philadelphia team tied the Eastern team for the premier position, while the world's champions, through their defeat by the Brooklyns, were placed fourth. In the American League the double defeat of the Greater New Yorks was very damaging, deposing them from the lead and placing them on an equal basis with the Athletics, in third place. Lajoie's Cleveland team, without a defeat to its credit, now ranks first, with Detroit second.

BROOKLYNS' FIRST VICTORY.

Defeat New York, 8 to 5, by Lively Rally at Bat in Sixth Inning.

After six straight defeats, Patrick Donovan, successor to Edward Hanlon as manager of the Brooklyn Club, saw his team score a well-merited victory over the champion New Yorks at Washington Park yesterday, the score being 8 to 5. Even with Scanlon in the box, it looked very much like a victory for the New Yorks until the sixth inning, when, by the hardest and cleanest batting, aided in a measure by errors of Bresnahan and Donlin, the Brooklyns clinched the victory by scoring five runs. This ended Taylor's career as pitcher, and he was succeeded by Ferguson, who did very well in the next two innings.

It was not until the third inning that the champions were enabled to make the first runs of the game, and they were due to Devlin's single, three bases in succession on called balls, and Browne's long fly to centre field. In the ninth inning, with the score 8 to 2 against them, Scanlon apparently let down in his pitching. He gave Dahlen a base on balls, and Devlin followed with a single. Gilbert forced out Devlin at second, but Dahlen reached third. Ferguson's first effort at the bat resulted in a strong hit to centre field, on which Dahlen scored. Gilbert tallied on Bresnahan's good single to centre field, and Ferguson scored on Browne's long fly to Lumley.

The Brooklyns earned their run in the fourth inning on Casey's single and Gessler's three-base hit to centre field. Two innings afterward Donovan's men gave a splendid exhibition of batting. Lumley began with a single, Maloney followed with a double, and Casey and Gessler with a one-base hit each. McCarthy, the only Brooklynite who did not make a safe hit throughout the game, struck out. Then Lewis hit safely, and by errors of Bresnahan and Donlin the third and fourth men crossed the plate. Alperman's out gave another man a chance to score. Scanlon opened the seventh inning with a slow hit toward third base, and got second on Lumley's sacrifice. Maloney hit safely and stole second, and by Dahlen's wild throw to first on Gessler's hit two runs were tallied. The score:

BAD DAY FOR AMERICANS.

Defeated Twice by Boston on Patriots Day Before Big Crowds.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 19.—Nearly forty thousand Bostonians celebrated "Patriot Day" by seeing their favorite ball players, the Boston Americans, win two games from the Greater New Yorks. The crowd at the morning game, more than 12,000, was a record for a holiday forenoon, but in the afternoon there was present probably the greatest assemblage by actual count that ever witnessed a baseball match. Thousands also were turned away. The enthusiasm over the good showing made by the local team was uproarious, and the vast assemblage dispersed with prospects of another pennant dancing before their vision.

In the morning Chesbro and Tannehill did the pitching and in the afternoon Newton was pitted against the veteran "Cy" Young. The first game was won by the home team in the first inning, thanks in part to the fumble by Moriarity of Stahl's little fly. Selbach had singled and Collins sacrificed previously, so that the bases were full when Parent pushed a "Texas leaguer" in right field, scoring Selbach. Freeman slashed a line single to right, on which Stahl tried to score, but he was caught on Keeler's fine throw to the plate. Grimshaw laced a single over second base, scoring Parent and putting Freeman on third. Grimshaw stole second and Freeman made for home, but Williams's quick return of the ball nailed him by two yards.

As in the forenoon, the afternoon game was early decided, although so closely matched were the teams that one could not be sure of the result until the final inning. The scores:

WASHINGTON, 11; PHILA., 10.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Washington defeated Philadelphia to-day in a heavy hitting ten-inning game. Each side used up three pitchers, and in all twenty-nine men participated in the contest. A feature was Davis's hitting, he making two home runs and a double. The score:

DETROIT, 3; CHICAGO, 1.

DETROIT, Mich., April 19.—McIntyre stopped Chicago from a possible tie or victory in the ninth inning to-day by a wonderful one-hand juggling catch off Hart, with two men on bases, doubling Vinson before he could get back to second. Donovan became wild and weak toward the finish. Crawford hit the ball over the centre field fence, a feat accomplished but once before in the park's history. The score:

FORDHAM, 8; SYRACUSE, 2.

The Syracuse University team was beaten by the Fordham University boys yesterday afternoon at Fordham Field by the score of 8 to 2. The game was replete with brilliant fielding on the part of the Bronx collegians, the work of Coffey, McNellis, and Schiess being commendable. McDonald, by his accurate throwing, caught several of the up-State men trying to steal. The Syracuse nine, although getting eight scattered hits, was unable to connect, with Egan's delivery, with men on bases. Egan's first essay for Fordham was auspicious. He struck out ten men, and only eight scattered hits were made off his delivery. The score:

POLO GROUNDS OPENING.

Big Celebration Planned for Giants' First Home Game To-day.

All indications point to a record-breaking attendance at the opening of the championship season at the Polo Grounds to-day, when the world's champions and Brooklyns begin a series of four games. Many new innovations have been planned, and the grounds on which the National League champions won world's honors last year never looked handsomer than it is proposed to have them to-day. A specially prepared programme of musical selections will be furnished by the Catholic Protectory Band, the usual parade of players will take place, but the most interesting ceremony will be the raising by the entire New York team of the new National League pennant in front of the grand stand, and it will fly from the centre pole of that stand.

In anticipation of an enormous crowd, the gates of the Polo Grounds will be opened at 12 o'clock, and promptly at 4 the game will be called. At 2 o'clock the band will give a concert until the time for the two teams to appear on the field.

The Giants will be without the services of Christopher Mathewson, who has, however, recovered sufficiently from a severe cold to be able to be out, but in all other respects they will present a strong front. It is likely that McGinnity and Bresnahan will be the battery, while the Brooklyns will probably oppose them with Harry McIntyre, who worried the champions considerably in Brooklyn, and Bergen.

New Yorkers Behind in Marathon Run.

BOSTON, April 19.—P. Ford of the Cambridgeport Gymnasium Association, Cambridge, to-day won the tenth renewal of the 25-mile Marathon race from Ashland to Boston. His time was 2:45:45. D. J. Kneeland of the Roxbury Athletic Association was second, and T. P. Morrissey of the Mercury Athletic Club, New York, third. Kneeland's time was 2:45:51, and Morrissey's 2:53:41.

Kneeland got away in the lead, keeping it until the last few miles, and was followed by Katzenstein, Laffarque, Mann, and Devlin, all of New York, in the order named. Between Framingham and Natick, S. A. Mellor, Jr., of the Mohawk Athletic Club, New York, caught Kneeland, but later fell back.

The race record is held by J. J. Caffrey of Hamilton, Ontario, who ran the distance in 1901 in 2:29:23 3-5.

Meeting of the College Association.

The Association of Colleges of the State of New York met yesterday afternoon in the Trustees' room of Columbia University. The association is to promote good fellowship among the colleges of New York State. The members of the association consist of the Presidents of colleges in the State which confer degrees.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

The new Fiat motor boat, known as Fiat XIII., made the high average speed of 32 miles an hour in the recent one-mile race at Monaco, winning the Prince of Monaco's Cup. This race was one of the most important in the motor boat contest now in progress there.

Ernest Keeler, who has been selected to drive the Oldsmobile car that will be entered in the Vanderbilt Cup race, has already commenced training for the event. He has made several runs over the proposed Long Island course in a touring car, and by the time his racer is ready he will be thoroughly familiar with the roads for fast work.

C. W. Churchill has been appointed manager of the New York branch of the Winton Motor Carriage Company, to take the place recently vacated by Percy Owen, who has become the Eastern sales manager for the Aerocar. Mr. Churchill was formerly assistant manager of the Winton's Cleveland branch.

Information has been received by the American branch of Panhard & Levassor that the racing cars now under construction for the Grand Prix race in France and the Vanderbilt Cup race in America will be built on exactly the same lines as the Panhard cars that competed for the Vanderbilt Cup last year. They will be four-cylinder touring cars of high power, with a few modifications over the touring types of previous years.

Webb Jay, the track racer, who was so badly injured last year that for a long time his life was despaired of, will be a visitor at the Atlantic City beach races next week. He is now engaged in the automobile business in Chicago.

Three foreign manufacturers have decided to adopt for their 1907 cars the three-disk metallic clutch now in use on the Thomas Flier. Early in the year word was sent to the E. R. Thomas Motor Company that one of the foreign manufacturers had adopted the triple-disk clutch, and the query was made whether the company wished to take any action in the matter. It decided it would not, although even the yielding cushions in the manganese bronze driving disk had been copied. Of the foreign manufacturers now ready to adopt this clutch system two are French and one an Italian.

KEATOR BEAT DIAMOND IN A HARD-FOUGHT RACE

Sprinters Were a Head Apart in the Finish for Rockaway Stake.

THREE LONG CHANCES FIRST

Cassandra, 30 to 1; La Rose, 15 to 1, and Race King, 10 to 1, Winners at the Aqueduct Track.

The most sensational afternoon's racing of the young turf season kept patrons of the Aqueduct track on the tiptoe of expectancy yesterday, and furnished a series of surprising and disappointing results for the big crowd in attendance. Close finishes were the rule, heads and necks separating the placed horses in most of the contests, while beginning with a 30 to 1 chance outsider as winner of the opening race, the post favorites were beaten in four races without a break. Then favorites won the last two races of the card and restored something like a fair balance between the backers and layers for the day.

The weather was Summer-like, and the track was dry and fast. The attendance again was large.

The feature race, the fourth on the programme, was the Rockaway Stakes, six furlongs, selling, for three-year-olds and upward, seven runners, the field including a smart lot of selling class sprinters, with Alex Shields's Diamond, a winner on the first day of the meeting, as the post favorite, and Frank Farrell's fast horse Keator a heavily backed second choice. The contest was quite as good as the promise of the race, the two best backed horses having the finish to themselves after Bivouac and Aeronaut, the first two away from the post, had been outrun in the early stages of the race. Diamond broke well and showed in front in the first furlong, while Keator, which got away back in the crowd, had to make up a lot of ground in the first quarter. Beginning the last half mile Keator took second place to Diamond, and as they turned into the stretch ranged alongside the favorite. Lyne on Keator went to the whip first, Keator under punishment hanging on so gamely beside Diamond that Shaw on the latter was driven to the whip inside the last quarter. From that point on to the winning post the two horses fought it out head and head, Lyne, riding with perfect judgment, and the skill and strength that he showed on Roseben in the Carter Handicap, finally landing Keator winner by a head from Diamond, with Rebo third, beaten off.

Ex-Jockey George Odom's Cassandra at 30 to 1 in the betting at one time, H. T. Griffin's La Rose, starting at 15 to 1, and O. L. Richards's Race King, at 10 to 1, were the long-chance winners of the afternoon, all being hard ridden to win, and La Rose just managing to snatch the decision on the post, with the second and third horses at her throat latch.

Three of the winners, Cassandra, La Rose, and Ballet Box were horses cast off from the James R. Keene stable. Summaries:

Roseben's Metropolitan Trial.

Roseben, winner of the $10,000 Carter Handicap at Aqueduct on Monday, will make his next public appearance next Wednesday, when, in a mile race at Aqueduct he will have a public trial to determine whether he shall be a starter for the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park against the stars of the turf named for that big event. This was decided by D. C. Johnson, owner of Roseben, yesterday. Roseben's reputation was made in sprint races, he holding the world's record for six furlongs, and Mr. Johnson is somewhat in doubt as to how the horse will show in a race at a mile against first-class company. Roseben's race next Wednesday is intended to settle all doubt. The race for which he is to start then is the Sterling Stakes, for three-year-olds and upward, weight for age, in which Roseben will be called on to carry 127 pounds. The twenty-six entries for the Sterling include among the best horses Hamburg Belle, Delhi, Tradition, Hermis, and the Western pair, Ram's Horn and Phil Finch, and the prospective field is one that will make Roseben's trial for the Metropolitan a severe one.

College Crews May Row Here.

There is every indication that the annual Decoration Day regatta of the Harlem Rowing Association will be the most important in the history of the organization. President Connell is in correspondence with Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, and Columbia with a view to securing college crews for the regatta. While nothing definite has been accomplished along these lines, the replies have been of such a character as to encourage the hope that one or more of the crews will row on the Harlem River next Decoration Day.

A special meeting of the Regatta Committee was held yesterday, when several important matters relating to the regatta were adopted. Harry Burke of Philadelphia will officiate as referee in place of Robert J. Milligan, who was originally selected for the position. No explanation was made regarding the change. Emil Kimmelberg of the Wyanoke Boat Club was selected as clerk of the course.

VANDERBILT'S HORSES LEAD.

His "Four" Takes the Blue in Durland's Horse Show.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt again led the winners last night at the annual Spring horse show in Durland's Riding Academy. He carried off the blue ribbon with his famous gray four in the class for park teams after a close contest with Albert De Cernea's quartet, and secured stellar honors in the tandem class with Albert De Cernea again a close second.

The close and friendly rivalry between this pair of experts eclipsed all other events of the evening.

The biggest crowd of the week witnessed the judging, which was full of interest, and kept the spectators on the keen edge of expectancy during the evening. The world of sport, society, and fashion again made a brilliant showing, the boxes all being filled, while there was not a vacant seat in the galleries. The spectators included:

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Frank J. Gould, C. K. G. Billings, Richard Halsted, Joseph Larocque, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Harrison Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Werner, Miss A. C. Maguire, E. H. Clift, Gilbank Twigg, Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen, J. Otto Koch, Gage E. Tarbell, Mrs. E. R. Ladew, Harvey Ladew, Major J. R. Hegeman, Robert L. Gerry, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Loew, Gen. J. B. Castleman, Hugh J. Grant, George C. Clausen, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stanton Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Steel, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, C. E. Chapin, Mortimer L. Schiff, Irving W. Brokaw, Robert E. Tod, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hubbs, J. Beavor Webb, Miss G. Riendeau, Miss E. H. Bedford, Paul A. Sorg, Baron and Baroness Paul Veltinghoff, Count G. von Chorus, Miss A. De Barry, R. R. More, James G. Marshall, and Alfred Maclay.

The feature of the evening's judging was the road team competition. Alfred G. Vanderbilt drove his splendidly matched team of four to his coach Venture. Albert De Cernea cleverly handled the reins over three bays and a brown, and J. Campbell Thompson's entry was two bays, a gray, and a brown. Mr. Thompson was outclassed by the other entries, and interest was centred in the Vanderbilt and De Cernea teams. The latter was somewhat handicapped by a rather green pair of leaders, but his clever work with the reins largely overcame this, and each team was ordered to drive around the tanbark ring several times. There was little to judge between the two in style and appearance, but the confined space of the ring prevented De Cernea appearing at his best and Mr. Vanderbilt's four gained the coveted ribbon.

Peter Manning's Oakland King, a well-built, fine-acting chestnut, defeated Miss Emily H. Bedford's prize-winning Pattie Palmer in the combination driving and riding class after a close competition. Mrs. Stanton Elliott secured a well-merited blue ribbon with her champion Flashlight in the ladies' saddle class. Fourteen entries, all ridden by ladies, made judging a difficult matter. Miss Emily H. Bedford drew the red ribbon for the second time during the evening with Helena, a handsome mare.

The tandems brought out the liveliest kind of competition. A. G. Vanderbilt entered The Youngster and Rustling Silk, Albert De Cernea drove Costly Comfort and Extravagance, while Maurice Howlett, the well-known English whip, handled the reins over the Elsinore Farm's gray pair, Buster Brown and Betsey Bouncer. Each of the three entries was liberally applauded. The selection of the judges fell to Mr. Vanderbilt's seasoned pair, while Mr. De Cernea's driving did much toward securing for his pair the second prize over Maurice Howlett. The summary:

Combination Class, to be driven before vehicle, afterward ridden.—Won by Peter Manning's ch. g. Oakland King, 15.3½, 7 years; Miss Emily H. Bedford's b. m. Pattie Palmer, 15.1, 4 years, second; the Misses Sherman's g. Dixie, 15.2½, 6 years, third.

Sultan, 15, 8 years, second; Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Company's b. g. The Spider, 15, 5 years, and b. g. The Fly, 15, 6 years, third.

Owing to a mistake on the part of the boy who has charge of the board showing the numbers of the prize winners, Messrs. Schwartz's Lion and Mouse were shown as the winners of Class 20, for pairs of harness horses, on Wednesday night. The first prize in this class was won by Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Company's The Spider and The Fly, driven by Albert De Cernea.

New York Horses Win in Boston.

BOSTON, April 19.—The holiday crowd that flocked to the Horse Show at Mechanics' Hall to-day saw a continuation of the rivalry for leading honors between Judge William H. Moore of New York, Eben D. Jordan of Boston, and Reginald Vanderbilt of Portsmouth, R. I.

The success of the Vanderbilt stable was the feature of the afternoon. The Portsmouth exhibition captured the first in the class for heavy harness horses with his well-known Dr. Selwonk, Mr. Jordan being placed second. Mr. Vanderbilt's second blue came in the pony harness class.

Judge Moore won his first blue of the day with his four-in-hand, defeating the four of Everett Webster of Boston for the second time this week. George Watson, Jr., of New York, captured the blue in the heavy saddle class, and Lehman Strauss, also of New York, won in the middleweight pairs. E. H. Weatherbee of New York captured the blue in the jumping class.

"Bobby" Walthour Leads Cyclists.

BOSTON, April 19.—"Bobby" Walthour of Atlanta, Ga., easily defeated "Tommy" Hall of England and Menus Bedell of Long Island in a 25-mile motor-paced bicycle race at the Revere track to-day. Walthour's time was 0:37 3-5.

HOPPE'S THIRD VICTORY IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

Young Champion Increases His Average and Defeats Cure.

SUTTON DOWNS MORNINGSTAR

Holder of Record Average Makes Another High Run in Garden Concert Hall Matinee.

Showing the phenomenal genius for billiards which has attracted all followers of the game, William F. Hoppe, the youthful 18.1 champion, last night defeated Louis Cure, regarded as the leading professional of France. The stroke, method, and manipulation of the young American was so perfect that he distanced Cure, counting 500 points and leaving his opponent at 336. The rapidity of Hoppe's game in the international championship 18.2 tournament, nearing its end in the concert hall of Madison Square Garden, is best indicated by the fact that his average was 27 14-18, and his best run 177.

The afternoon game was won by George Sutton, who by a remarkable run of 222 took the lead when he was apparently hopelessly behind, and which allowed him to defeat Ora Morningstar by the score of 500 to 341.

Cure began by counting the regulation lay-off shot, and then bungled a draw, allowing Hoppe to negotiate 22 along the short rail as his first effort. The balls played their old trick of lining for Hoppe during this run, which was brought to an end by his attempt to overcome an alignment by a follow kiss, in which the spheres acted like pouting lovers and passed without the coveted caress. The Frenchman displayed pleasing qualities of stroke and manipulation on his next turn, and by nursing and short-table carroming he counted 51, ending his effort, as had Hoppe, by the failure to get a timely kiss.

Three innings later the young 18.1 champion at tremendous speed and by the most perfect method of balk line billiards that he has shown in the tournament accumulated a cluster of 177. The first 95 carroms of this run were made along the three chalked squares at the head of the table. Then the gently rolling ivories spread, and he was compelled to lead them by the seductive mazes of cross and cushion carrom shots to the short rail at the foot of the table. Here a wonderful series of massé shots interspersed with clever nipping drives into the corners, of which Hoppe indicated a remarkable appreciation of their possibilities for so young a player, carried his count along to the end of the run. He did not miss the last carrom, but a too delicate shot failed to relieve the balls from the restrictions of the balk line.

The Parisian followed Hoppe's big run with eleven wonderful cushion-carrom shots in sequence, and then, with the globes apparently safely lodged in one corner for a big-sized run, Cure blundered and overdrew to the cushion, causing the inevitable miss. His leave was perfect, and the young American backed his big run with 57, in which the brilliancy of the previous inning was repeated with all of the daring and splendid execution which caused the youth to be the favorite for the honors before the meeting began.

Cure endeavored to get into touch with the globes, but despite his effort bad breaks were his portion. After an unremunerative seventh inning for both, Cure, by dint of skillful execution, counted 40. But Hoppe came back at him with 29. Hoppe's eleventh inning was partially inspired by a fine array of 76 carroms which Cure had counted in the previous inning. For sheer spectacular effects of massé and round-the-table shooting, in which the skyrocketing was heightened by a surprisingly clever use of English and reverse, this run easily holds the premier place among single innings of the tournament. Hoppe played with uniform steadiness until within 20 of the end of his string. Then the balls broke badly for him, and under a tired, nerveless touch he experienced great hardship, requiring five innings to obtain the needed points, while Cure was rapidly overhauling him. The summary:

Hoppe—22 3 6 177 57 0 29 6 41 9 66 23 44 1 1 4 12 2. Total—500 points. Average—27 14-18. High runs—177, 66, and 57.

Cure—1 51 0 12 11 1 40 0 3 76 1 1 0 12 32 6 86 3. Total—336 points. Average—18 12-18. High runs—86, 76, and 51.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

Sutton's eleventh-hour effort in attaining his stroke, resulting in a run of 222, closely followed by an unfinished 86, brought about the defeat of Ora Morningstar in the afternoon match. The final score was 500 points to 341. The match completed Sutton's schedule, and, with his record of four victories and two defeats, it was attended with momentous prospects, for it is possible for him to tie for first honors and surely for second. It carried Morningstar down to the bottom of the list, with one win and five losses, Cutler, who finished at the previous matinée, being in sixth place with two victories and four defeats. Summary:

Sutton—5 0 0 0 0 12 7 1 29 48 3 0 36 2 0 8 9 222 29 1 1 1 86. Total—500 points. Average—21 17-23. High runs—222, 86, and 48.

Morningstar—12 19 15 31 9 0 40 2 0 36 82 6 31 29 2 6 9 4 10 5 0 2 0. Total—341 points. Average—14 19-23. High runs—82, 40, and 36.

AUTO MOTOR RELEASED.

Seized by Customs Officials Because Value Seemed Low.

One of the happiest automobile men in the city yesterday was H. N. Harding, who has been entered to drive a forty-horse power English Daimler car in the Atlantic City races next week. A new motor that had been ordered from the English factory arrived early in the week, but was seized by the Customs House officials in this city on the plea of undervaluation. It reached the garage at Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street last night and workmen were busy up to a late hour fitting it to the car.

The story of the seizure and release of the motor illustrates many of the difficulties that frequently confront the automobile importer in getting his goods through the Custom House. On the other hand, in explaining this particular case, the Custom examiners claim that the tendency to undervalue automobiles and automobile parts is so great that all motor importations are viewed with more or less suspicion.

J. E. Demar, the agent for the English Daimler cars in this country, entered his touring car in the Atlantic City races some time ago. Unfortunately, about that time an accident damaged the motor and it was necessary to cable to the home factory for a new one. It arrived early in the week, but while preparations were being made to get it from the Custom House word came that the officials believed its valuation of $500 was too small. They placed a valuation on it of more than double those figures and then seized it.

For a short time it looked as though there would be no sport for Harding at the beach races. A cable dispatch was sent to the English factory and the reply came that individual motors had never been sold, but a value slightly in excess of the factory price had been placed on it. With this statement Mr. Demar and Thomas Moore went to Collector of the Port Stranahan, and after a hard day's work in which practically every department of the Custom House was visited and a number of telegrams sent to the Secretary of the Treasury, word came from Washington late Wednesday night that the original valuation seemed to be correct and made in good faith, and Collector Stranahan authorized the release of the motor.

The absence of automobile track races this season has concentrated the racing interest in the coming Atlantic City meet and the unexpectedly large number of fifty-eight different cars has been entered. A number are on the ground now. Word was received yesterday at the Pope-Toledo headquarters that in a series of trial races Stewart E. Elliott, a Yale student, who owns one of the latest forty-horse power Pope-Toledos, had beaten Harry Houpt's fifty-horse power Thomas racer in two heats out of three. Montague Roberts will drive the six-cylinder Thomas car in the free-for-all event, and pitted against him will be Walter Christie with his remodeled car that competed in the Vanderbilt race last Fall, the Darracq car that Hemery drove to victory in that event, and an eighty-horse power Napier driven by T. M. Hillard.

Stocks Break—Call Money Rates 3½@4½ Per Cent.

Heavy Transfers to San Francisco—Gold Engagements Under Way.

The hopes entertained at the close of the Stock Exchange on Wednesday that the devastation wrought in San Francisco had been exaggerated, vanished with the opening of yesterday's stock market, and as dispatch after dispatch reached Wall Street through public or private channels, each missive painting a picture far more depressing than its predecessor, gloom overspread the entire financial district, and stocks were pressed for sale in such volume as to carry prices before them with only a shadow of resistance. Two classes of securities, of course, suffered most in this movement—those directly affected by the devastation, including the railroads entering that city and the corporations, such as the street railway companies, doing business within it, and stocks which for weeks and months past have been the subject of pool operations. In the first class were Union Pacific, Atchison, and Southern Pacific, which fell, respectively, 4⅝ points, 2 points and 2¼ points, and the United Railway investment stocks, common and preferred, the first-named falling 12 points and the last 15 points. The conspicuous examples of the second class of securities affected were the Copper shares and Reading. Reading fell 9⅛ points in all upon an exceptionally heavy volume of trading, while Anaconda dropped 7⅝ points and Amalgamated Copper 2⅝ points, the fall in this stock occurring in spite of the fact that the Directors at a meeting during the day increased the dividend one-quarter of 1 per cent. With sentiment in the state it was, however, losses were not confined to such issues alone, and standard shares like Pennsylvania, New York Central, and St. Paul closed at losses running from 4 to 2 points. The end of the day found prices at their lowest point and the news from the stricken city correspondingly disheartening. The disquieting advices regarding the shocks at Los Angeles reached Wall Street after the close of business.

With confidence so thoroughly shaken as was the case yesterday, it was entirely natural that the mitigating factors in the situation should be wholly overlooked. But there are such factors, and the most important of them have already come into play, working to better the present position of affairs. Thus, while we transferred from this city to San Francisco yesterday by means of the Sub-Treasury system some $3,000,000, an amount which will be comparatively unimportant beside the ultimate total of such transfers, our bankers were at the same time making arrangements in London for the importation of large amounts of gold, the sharp break of a cent in the pound in demand sterling bringing the foreign exchange market well below the import point. Transfers of capital from London to this city promise to be exceptionally heavy, owing to the fact that the great foreign insurance companies will be compelled to make payments estimated at not less than $30,000,000. While a portion of these funds will be secured through the sale of American securities, doubtless, the greater part must come in the transfer of capital in one form or another. Again it is very clear that every argument will be brought to bear upon Secretary Shaw to induce him to make large deposits here of Government moneys, and since such deposits will simply form a reservoir for the needs of San Francisco, there seems little room for doubt that Secretary Shaw will make such deposits. Another alleviating feature of the situation is that, so far as the railroads and manufacturing companies are concerned, any loss due directly to the fire will be compensated by transportation and sales of supplies and structural materials to the new city which will rise from the ashes of that destroyed.

Stock Broker Newcombe Fails.

I. B. Newcombe, a stock broker, has announced his failure. Two years ago he was suspended from the Stock Exchange for five years for alleged violation of the commission rules. Since then he has been operating on the curb. His assets consist of the seat on the Exchange, which is still his despite the suspension. His liabilities consist of debts to banks and individuals. He joined the Stock Exchange in 1869.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Scarcity of Crude Steel Becoming More Serious—Pig Iron Improved.

The scarcity of crude steel, says The Iron Trade Review, is becoming constantly more serious, and Western buyers of billets are finding difficulty in getting the amount they need. Sheet bars are so scarce that several sheet and tin plate interests are planning to cut down operations. Jobbers report great activity in structural materials, with the new business comparatively light. Of the pig iron situation The Iron Trade Review says:

> The buying movement in pig iron has assumed considerable proportions, and an improved tone prevails in practically all sections. Inquiries are much more numerous and in many instances deliveries are specified well into the third quarter, and from present appearances considerable heavy business for the second half will shortly be placed. The coal strike has made itself felt in the East. Four or five anthracite furnaces in the Lehigh and Schuylkill districts have been closed and two or three stacks in Central Pennsylvania using bituminous fuel have been banked. The Southern iron situation has materially strengthened, and $14 is apparently the minimum for current business.

The Tennessee Coal and Iron Company has obtained an order for 140,000 tons of open-hearth rails for next year delivery. This represents a big proportion of the company's probable capacity in 1907.

EXTRA COPPER DIVIDEND.

Amalgamated Directors Add 1-4 Per Cent. to the 6 Per Cent. Rate.

The Directors of the Amalgamated Copper Company, at their meeting yesterday, declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. and an extra dividend of one-quarter of 1 per cent. The dividend paid last February amounted to 1½ per cent. without any extra dividend. At that time the regular rate was increased from 1¼ per cent. quarterly to 1½ per cent. quarterly, placing the stock on a 6 per cent. basis.

A continuance of dividends at the rate declared yesterday would establish the stock on a 7 per cent. basis. The Amalgamated Copper Company has made large profits recently owing to the favorable position of the copper trade.

The payment of a 7 per cent. dividend would bring Amalgamated within 1 per cent. of the highest dividend rate maintained by that company in any year since its organization. Last year's dividends totaled 4½ per cent.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—There was a marked increase in the volume of business transacted at the local Stock Exchange to-day, but it was at the expense of values, and also because of the heavy dealings in Reading and United States Steel. New York tried to find a market here in which to sell these stocks, but was successful only in United States Steel, for which there was a good demand. Reading could only be sold here at concessions in prices. Philadelphia Company receipts, stamped, was the only active member of the group, and it held fairly firm, all sales being made at 53⅝@53, but the closing quotations were lower—51½@52. The unstamped receipts were down to 46, as against last previous sales at 58½.

The unassented stock was 1½ lower and the preferred ⅜. The Consolidated bonds were unchanged at 106⅝. Reading weakened the other coal stocks, Lehigh Valley declining 2¼ and Lehigh Navigation 2. Other losses were American Railways ½, Bell Telephone ⅛, Cambria Steel ⅝, Keystone Telephone ½, Philadelphia Rapid Transit ⅛, Tonopah Mining ⅛, and United Gas Improvement 1¼.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 19.—Selling of local stocks was induced in some degree today by the liquidation in New York incident upon the San Francisco disaster. The fact that the American Can Company has plants in the stricken city and elsewhere in California and that the Diamond Match Company has large interests in the same State may have been the incentive for some of the liquidation in these issues.

Can preferred got as low as 62, and the common sold at 8. Match, having internal financial difficulties, weakened to 126½, almost the recent low level. Subway was affected somewhat by the action of the court in the matter of tax assessments, and sold early at 55⅝@56¼. Biscuit sold as low as 64. Shipbuilding went at 56. The acute selling in Wall Street in the afternoon brought a break in Subway to 54, with fitful rallies. Can preferred sold at 61, and then at 62. Swift's eased further to 105½.

Money, 5@6 per cent. New York Exchange, 25 to 30c premium.

HEAD OF BUTTERICK CO. OUT.

President O'Loughlin Denies That Strike Forced His Resignation.

R. S. O'Loughlin has resigned from the Presidency of the Butterick Publishing Company after a service with the company of more than thirty-eight years. Ill-health was given yesterday as the reason. M. R. O'Loughlin, brother of the President, has resigned as Director. They disposed of their stock to George W. Wilder, President of the controlling corporation, the Butterick Company.

Monday the stock of the Butterick Company had a severe drop, closing 13 points down. It regained the loss Tuesday and Wednesday, and yesterday made still further gains, being one of the few stocks that did not take part in the general downward movement. It closed at 56, scoring a net gain of 1⅞ for the day.

When the resignation of President O'Loughlin was announced yesterday it was generally suspected that the printers' strike might have had something to do with his withdrawal. This was denied by both himself and his brother.

"There was no trouble between me and anybody connected with the company," said Mr. O'Loughlin. "Just say that bad health was the cause of my resignation. I have been at it a long time, and now I need a rest."

Who the next President of the Butterick Publishing Company will be is not known yet. At the offices of the company yesterday it was said that no name had yet been suggested.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, April 19.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day. Discounts were firmer. Bill brokers were cautious owing to the probability of further gold withdrawals from the Bank of England for New York. The continued weakness of Paris exchange intensified the nervousness.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet, and the tone was not cheerful, owing to the monetary outlook and the anxiety regarding the situation in Natal. Prices closed irregular, but with a better tone. Consols opened easier and recovered toward the close.

Americans opened weak, dropped further, rallied in some cases to above parity, became inactive, improved during the last hour, and closed at the highest quotations of the day.

Foreigners improved slightly after some realizations.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 101¼.

Bullion amounting to £57,000, was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to South America, £40,000 for shipment to Gibraltar, and £80,000 for the United States.

The Alabama Great Southern Railroad Company operates a line 300 miles long, connecting with the Cincinnati, New Orleans, Texas and Pacific Railway, which roads, with the New Orleans and Northeastern, form the well known "Queen & Crescent Route" from Cincinnati to New Orleans. The company is controlled by the Southern Railway.

During the years from 1884 to 1896, according to various records, railways aggregating 94,000 miles, on which there were outstanding about $60,000,000 of car-trust obligations, went into the hands of receivers. In every case the holders of the equipment notes were paid in full, without the loss of a dollar, even when the roads were in default upon their first mortgage bonds.

We have purchased the above notes from the Railroad Company and, having sold over one-half of the issue, we offer the balance for sale at a price to yield 4.90%.

BANKS AND THE TRUST COS.

Clearing House Urged to Adopt Regulations Improving Their Relations.

William A. Nash, President of the Corn Exchange Bank, who was very active in the movement to secure legislation requiring trust companies to maintain a cash reserve, has taken the position that it is expedient for the Clearing House to adopt regulations sufficiently liberal to bring about close and friendly relations between the banks and the trust companies. In an article on the trust company reserve question in the April number of Trust Companies, Mr. Nash says:

> If there is a genuine and generous desire on the part of the trust companies to resume their relations with the Clearing House I believe it to be a good business policy to meet such a desire in a liberal spirit and accept the new conditions as being an important step to better banking in the hope and belief that the wisdom and policy of still more ample reserves will be perceived and adopted by the trust companies.
> The question of actual membership in the Clearing House is a wider one and need not be met until the emergency arrives. But even here I advocate such liberal regulations as will solidify in one mass those institutions that are now so diverse and separated.

The bill fixing a 15 per cent. reserve, 5 per cent. of which must be cash, for the trust companies has been passed by both the Senate and Assembly, and is now in the hands of Gov. Higgins, who is expected to sign it. This will bring forward the question whether or not the Clearing House should adhere to its present regulation in regard to trust company reserves, which fixes 10 per cent. in cash as the minimum, or whether it will permit the trust companies to become members of the Clearing House Association without requiring any reserve beyond that fixed by law.

At present only three trust companies have Clearing House privileges, the Knickerbocker, the Manhattan, and the Van Norden Trust Company.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Further Sharp Declines Occur in the Curb Market.

American Can Shares Pressed for Sale—United Copper and Greene Consolidated Particularly Weak.

The outside security market yesterday continued under the influence of the distressing news from San Francisco, but only in a few issues was the severity of the day's decline on the Stock Exchange fully reflected. The American Can shares were under particularly heavy selling pressure and the preferred declined from 64 to 60, while the common receded from 8¾ to 7⅝. The latter recovered to 7⅞ at the close and the former to 62. The decline was attributed to the loss sustained by the company in its San Francisco plant. Chicago Subway on heavy selling fell off from 56½ to 54½, closing at its lowest price. On light transactions Havana Tobacco lost 1½ points to 27. Standard Oil rose from 647 to 649, but lost the gain later. Mackay Companies fluctuated very narrowly, half a point covering its range from 63½ to 63. Interborough-Metropolitan sold at 52⅝ to 52¼.

United Copper continued the leader in the copper group, although there was also good trading in Greene Consolidated. Both issues were weak, the former selling down from 66⅝ to 63¾ and the latter from 30⅝ to 29¾. A slight rally at the close carried them above their lowest figures. Butte Coalition sold at 36 to 35½, Gold Hill at 2 13-16 to 2¼, Granby at 12⅞ to 12⅝, and Nevada Consolidated at 19⅝ to 19.

It was a long day in the stock market. A recovery in the last hour would have shortened it somewhat, but after a feeble rally at 2 o'clock trading became more demoralized than at any time previously during the day, and the last hour seemed longer than the preceding four. Time slips by rapidly in a good market and drags heavily in a bad one. There were minutes in the last hour yesterday when people who were waiting anxiously for the close were under the delusion that the timepieces had stopped. Once when the market began, at the opening of a day's session, to break badly a silent little man at a ticker around which eight or ten clients were gathered was asked if his stock had been quoted yet. He answered: "Not yet, thank goodness, and I hope it won't be!"

⁂

What most people feared yesterday was a bad opening. Instead of that, trading began on approximately the level of Wednesday's closing. Fresh weakness was confined to the stocks most concerned in the San Francisco calamity, notably, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and the United Railway issues. This was offset by strength in such issues as the Steel shares and Amalgamated Copper and by the apparent disposition of the general market to assume that the worst had probably been discounted. But as the day wore on the volume of selling increased steadily, and the more of it there was the worse it looked, assuming the significance finally of urgent liquidation. Until 2 o'clock there was a continuous market for stocks in large quantities. There was, in other words, until that hour a market for all the stocks which had to be sold. A recovery in the last hour was confidently expected by perhaps four traders in every five. This hope was strengthened by the announcement that in addition to the regular dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. the Amalgamated Copper Directors had declared an extra dividend of one-fourth of 1 per cent. Prices recovered fractionally, but just then the news from San Francisco became more distressing and the market suffered another bad break. The lowest prices of the day were made in the last hour, and whereas previously there had been no great difficulty in disposing of stocks, there was now a very limited demand for them, and prices fell away abruptly.

⁂

The condition of the market in the last hour was apparently worse than at any time previously during the day, and this made Wall Street very uneasy about the opening this morning. It is feared that the outside selling which was expected yesterday forenoon may come this morning. The break in prices has been violent enough to alarm the public.

⁂

It would be difficult to recall a break in prices comparable to that which has occurred in the last two days wherein the commission house public had so little to lose. In almost every office in the Street the experience is the same in this respect. "Fewer of my clients have been really hurt than in any previous break of equal violence that I can remember," one broker said. "My people were not in the market heavily, and on the whole we have come through without much damage," said another. Like comment was heard in many different quarters, showing that the commission houses had not been vulnerable. They were not loaded up with stocks. Some think that if it had been the other way nothing could have prevented a panic, but the matter is open to argument. Perhaps if the commission houses had been holding their share of the stocks the liquidation of pools and from highly speculative quarters would have been less urgent.

⁂

The heaviest selling yesterday came from large speculative houses, some of them acting, no doubt, for pools, and others for a class of individuals who swing enormous lines of stocks on smaller margins than conservative brokers would require. There has appeared in the stock market in the last few years a class of semi-professional speculators who swing tremendous lines of stock on the smallest possible margin of pledged capital. Their accounts are productive of big commissions, and some brokers are glad to get them for that reason, but they are a menace to the market when things begin to go wrong. A house whose selling attracted a good deal of attention in the forenoon was supposed to be liquidating a large line of Reading, Union Pacific, and other stocks, especially Reading, for the account of a well-known "plunger" of the semi-professional class. Yesterday's heaviest selling, in brief, came from quarters in which speculative stocks had become concentrated in large amounts. Western houses were reported again to be selling heavily. They were large sellers on Wednesday.

But in addition to the selling, which was conspicuously of a highly speculative origin, there was evidence throughout the day of serious-minded liquidation by men and houses more or less directly concerned in the San Francisco disaster. One large Western estate was said to have sold a great many stocks. Such liquidation was doubtless impelled by a desire to free the resources which may be required either to protect San Francisco investments or to anticipate the demands which shall presently be made for fresh capital. In some situations the only alternative may be to sell the stocks for which there is a market and use the proceeds to protect investments which cannot be liquidated. It has not been possible, for example, to liquidate United Railway investments except at great sacrifice, and hence it is not unreasonable to suppose that other securities may have been sold to protect them. A large banking corporation having extensive interests on the Pacific Coast called loans very heavily yesterday, and this forced liquidation which had nothing whatever to do directly with the trouble at San Francisco.

A bear gloats secretly over calamity. He talks in the conventional manner, but his sympathy is hollow, and he hopes for the worst. Those who are long of stocks, with the market still going against them, hate the bear and regard him with loathing, but many would cheerfully change places with him. There are probably some bears who would be ashamed to own, even to themselves, that the growing horror of yesterday's news from San Francisco gave them an impersonal kind of satisfaction, since it increased liquidation and swelled their profits. But the bear is a buyer of stocks. He buys when others are obliged to sell, and if there were no bears to buy when prices are falling, the sellers would fare much worse.

⁂

The United States Steel stocks showed remarkable resistance under selling pressure. The manner in which they were supported was a subject of general comment.

⁂

The relative strength of the Hill stocks yesterday doubtless reflected the belief in many minds that a great deal of business is likely to be diverted to the Pacific Coast termini of the Hill roads.

⁂

The liquidation of the last two days has, to use the Street vernacular, "loosened up stocks." The technical position of the market has undergone a considerable change since the first of the week, and some revision of ideas will doubtless be unavoidable. The floating supply of stocks must have been greatly increased. On the other side, the short interest has probably become very large. It remains to be seen whether the liquidation has been completed. It remains to be seen, also, whether the lower prices will serve to attract the public. In some quarters speculative capital must have been seriously impaired; in others, capital which might have been employed in the stock market will be forced elsewhere.

⁂

The Amalgamated Copper dividend received scant attention. Before the announcement the stock had sold as low as 109. It rallied immediately to 110⅞, but broke with the general market in the last hour, going as low as 8⅜. It closed at a decline of 2⅜ points. The declaration of an extra dividend of one-quarter of 1 per cent., in addition to the regular 1½ per cent. quarterly, does not establish the stock permanently on a 7 per cent. basis, but the disbursement is at the rate of 7 per cent. a year. This is all that anybody has had reason to expect. It rather improves the market position of the stock. It combines the idea of conservatism with the suggestion of increases yet to be made.

In the last hour the market had to contend with false and unfortunate rumors of financial "trouble."

The San Francisco conflagration bore down more heavily yesterday on the cotton market as the greatness of the disaster became apparent, but notwithstanding a further break of 21 points, making a decline of about 30 points for the last two days, the liquidation was absorbed without any evident support, and the premium of May over July, amounting to 11 to 12 points, was still maintained. There was considerable buying of May on the decline, but it could not be learned that the Price interests were taking an active part. The buying was thought to have come from New Orleans. Liquidation was the feature of trading.

A great many were of the opinion that the West would need much money, and that the withdrawals from New York would restrict trading. Most of the liquidation, however, was thought to have come from Wall Street, where some outside long interest had been built up on the volume of bullish literature circulated of late. It is argued that the insurance companies will have to sell a large amount of securities to meet their San Francisco risks, and that traders preferred to dispose of their cotton and protect their stocks. San Francisco had recently made heavy drafts on New York, and the balance held here to the account of Western banks was said yesterday to be too small to affect the money market.

Opening 1 to 4 points lower the local market gradually declined a further 17 to 18 points. May started at 11.25 and sold down to 11.08, closing at 11.09. July went from 11.16 to 10.98, and closed at 11 cents. October opened one point lower at 10.53 and closed at 10.38, and December finished 14 points down at 10.40.

Liverpool closed quiet at a decline of 1 to 3 points on futures, May-June 5.93, July-August 5.90, August-September 5.90, October-November 5.68, and December-January 5.67. Spots there declined 5 points to 6.16d. for middling, with sales of 10,000 bales, 9,000 of which were American. Manchester yarns were quiet, but firm, and there was a fair business in cloths. The local spot market declined 15 points to 11.70, against 7.80 last year. Southern spot markets were steady at unchanged prices to ⅛ lower.

Cotton Opinions.

A. O. BROWN & CO.—We still adhere to the belief that on all declines purchases should be made.

ATWOOD, VIOLETT & CO.—Whatever goods the distressed community may require must necessarily be of the cheapest grade. There will no doubt be an increased demand for cotton goods from that quarter as soon as matters are quieted down.

BAILY & MONTGOMERY.—Few care to sell short as yet, while bulls profess unbounded confidence that the market will eventually improve on the strong statistical situation and firmness of spot markets.

CARPENTER, BAGGOT & CO.—We think the decline has been very moderate and should tend to inspire confidence in cotton, and we favor buying.

Following are the opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

	Opening.	High-est. Low-est.	Clos-ing.	Prev's Close.
January	10.56	10.56-10.45	10.44	10.58

June	11.16	11.16-11.02	11.01	11.16
July	11.16	11.22-10.98	11.00	11.17

December	10.53	10.56-10.39	10.40	10.54

Market closed barely steady. Estimated sales, 500,000 bales. New Orleans closed 23 points off on May at 11.08, July 23 points lower at 11.21, October 20 points down at 10.31, and 21 points under the previous close on December at 10.31. The tone of the market was steady.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—The market for wheat was decidedly irregular; unsatisfactory cables, favorable weather, liberal receipts as compared with estimates, a bearish Price Current, and bearish private wires on the crop subject prepared the way for a lower opening, May selling at a decline of ⅜c and July at a decline of ¼c. From this level, however, the market made a quick advance of ½@⅝c on covering by shorts, who became intimidated by the pretensions of the bulls regarding the so-called if not the actual congested condition of the May position. Still later, however, the market broke 1@1⅛c under an attempt to liquidate May contracts here and in the West; the decline was very sharp and the market finally closed weak at a net loss of ⅝@1c. The spot wheat market closed easy. No. 2 red, nominal, in elevator, and 90⅛c free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 89⅝c, nominal, free on board, afloat.

CORN—Corn opened a little lower at the West, but about ⅛c higher here, only to develop irregularity and weakness later. There was no great amount of stuff on the market, and receipts were moderate; the trouble was with the demand; buyers were not at all aggressive, and the market was finally easy at a net decline of ⅛c to a net rise of ⅛c. Exporters took 32,000 bushels corn. Cash corn closed about steady, No. 2 corn, 57c, nominal, in elevator, and 54⅝c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 58c, and No. 2 yellow, 55½c, free on board, afloat, all nominal.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 19.—The weakness of the New York market as usual had no effect locally other than to cause extreme dullness. The market in New York was watched with much interest and close attention was paid to the quotation on the stocks of the United Railways Investment Company of San Francisco, in which many Baltimoreans are largely interested.

United Railways free incomes were the feature of the light trading, declining ½. Alabama Coal and Iron preferred dropped 1 point. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut 4s certificates ran off ⅜. Atlantic Coast Line Consolidated 4s were ⅜ lower. Cotton Duck 5s dropped 1 point. The market closed dull but steady.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held March 30, 1906, the following petition was received:

To the honorable, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment:

The petition of the Williams Terminal Railway Company respectfully shows:

1. That your petitioner is a street surface railway corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having filed its certificate of incorporation in the office of the Secretary of State of New York on the 29th day of July, 1905, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and operating a street surface railway in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York.

2. That your petitioner desires to obtain from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York its consent to and a grant of the right, privileges, and franchise to use a portion of Bowne Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, for street railway purposes, and for the construction, maintenance and operation of a single track street surface railway upon and along the surface of said Bowne Street, a description of such proposed railway being as follows: Beginning at a point southeast of Imlay Street, where it will connect with the track of the New York Dock Company, and running southeasterly along Bowne Street to and into the property of J. H. Williams & Co., on the easterly side of Richards Street, the entire length of said road not to exceed nine hundred feet, together with the necessary connections, switches, sidings, turn-outs, turn-tables, cross-overs, and suitable stands necessary for the accommodation and operation of the said railroad by the overhead system of electricity, or other power lawfully employed by connecting railroads, all in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York.

3. Your petitioner further shows that there is no adequate means of transportation provided between the termini of the proposed railroad, and your petitioner believes there is a public demand for the construction and operation of this proposed railroad, and that such construction and operation will be a public convenience and benefit, the said railroad to be used for freight only.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays that the notice of the time and place when and where this application will be first considered be given, pursuant to provisions of Section 92 of the Railroad Law, and all other laws applicable thereto, and that consent or grant be given in the form of an ordinance subject to the laws and ordinances applicable thereto, and upon terms and conditions to be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Greater New York Charter.

OFFERS 3-CENT TRANSIT AT 100 MILES AN HOUR

Inventor Behr Solves City Travel Problem Before Aldermen.

ALL BY MONORAIL SYSTEM

He Asks for a Franchise for a Test Line to Coney Island—Indorsed by Lindenthal.

Declaring that the present Subway system, even with the extensive additions proposed by the Rapid Transit Commission, will fail to supply Greater New York with real rapid transit, F. B. Behr, the English engineer, who patented the Behr monorail system, appeared before the Aldermanic Committee on Railroads yesterday and outlined a comprehensive system to bring the most distant parts of the Bronx or of Staten Island to Wall Street in fifteen minutes.

By adopting his scheme, Mr. Behr says the city can have a municipally owned railroad at once to run to Coney Island at a three-cent fare. The road, he says, would pay for itself in twenty years. Seventy-five to one hundred miles an hour, he says, can be attained by express trains and fifteen miles an hour by locals, as against twenty-five miles an hour by the Subway expresses and twelve miles an hour on the Subway locals.

Mr. Behr wants the initial or test line constructed from Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues, in Brooklyn, via Fourth Avenue to Fort Hamilton and Coney Island. The cars would run on a single rail laid on top of an "A"-shaped structure along the sides of which would run the rails for electric power. The system could be built either as an elevated line or as a Subway. His general plan, of which the Coney Island line would be but the first step, would be for a line from Tottenville, S. I., running through the island and under the Narrows by tube to Fort Hamilton, through Brooklyn to Borough Hall, and thence under the East River to Manhattan and north to the Bronx or Kingsbridge. The entire line would be thirty-five miles long, and, with the branch to Coney Island, would cover forty-six miles. Mr. Behr states that the cost of building and equipment for use would be $86,000,000, while, he declares, the cost of the Subway system proposed by the Rapid Transit Board to be approximately $800,000,000.

Mr. Behr has applied to the Rapid Transit Board for the Coney Island line franchise, and wants the Aldermen to indorse the project. He says he is willing to surrender his individual patent rights and turn over his patents to the public if the city will build the Coney Island line to introduce the system.

"If the city will build the road as I have designed it," said Mr. Behr to the Aldermen, "and I give it my patents without charge, the result will be a three-cent fare and the retiring of the bonds in twenty years. By a five-cent fare the line would be paid for in eight years. When the bonds are retired the city would earn $800,000 a year on a five-cent basis and $650,000 on a three-cent basis. This assumes that the traffic on the line is less than the full capacity, which would be about 160,000 in a day of sixteen hours. Under the system passengers can ride without unpleasantness at a rate of 100 miles an hour."

Gustav Lindenthal, Bridge Commissioner under Mayor Low, and an engineer, followed Mr. Behr and gave his hearty indorsement to the monorail system. Mr. Lindenthal said its chief feature was its capability of high speed, and that the English Parliamentary commission had decided, after thorough investigation, that it was possible to carry passengers according to the Behr system in perfect safety at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Mr. Behr illustrated his address with lantern slides.

YOUNG WOMAN DIES OF BURNS

Dress Caught Fire While She Was Burning Waste in Her Home.

Miss Elizabeth Dunbar, 18 years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dunbar, died at the home of her parents, in Northfield Road, St. Cloud, West Orange, Wednesday night, from burns received a few hours before.

The young woman was burning waste paper in the yard at the rear of her home, when the wind blew the flames against her dress. Miss Dunbar did not see that her dress was burning until the flames had reached almost to her waist. She soon became unconscious, having received terrible burns about the body.

Hearing on Shaw's Suppressed Play.

Arnold Daly, the actor, and Samuel W. Gumpertz, the manager of the Garrick Theatre, who were arrested last October for producing "Mrs. Warren's Profession," were arraigned in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday. The Justices will read over the prompt book of the play and a decision will be handed down in about a month.

JOHN CLAFLIN RESIGNS.

Resents a Proviso in Elsberg Bill—Board Lays Resignation Over.

John Claflin resigned his membership in the Rapid Transit Commission at yesterday's meeting of the board, but the resignation was laid on the table until the Legislature finally acts on the Elsberg bill, which, if enacted, will give Mayor McClellan power to fill the vacancy.

Mr. Claflin, who has been a member of the board since its formation, lives in Morristown. President Orr, in receiving the resignation, said that Mr. Claflin had always given his best thought to the work and had felt keenly the passage by the Legislature of a bill requiring that all of the members of the commission should be residents of this city. It was because of this provision of the bill that Mr. Claflin resigned.

The board received from the Commissioners of Accounts a letter asking for a detailed statement of the bonds which would be required for new subways this year and for the amount of bonds that would be required for all of the routes laid out.

A reply was sent stating that the lines laid out for Manhattan will cost $175,000,000, those for the Bronx $46,000,000, and those for Brooklyn $97,500,000, a total of $318,500,000. The board replied that it could not tell what percentage of the contracts would be let until after the bids were in, and could not tell until then what proportion of the total of bonds would be required this year.

An executive session was held, to go over the brief and arguments that will be presented by counsel to-day at the hearing on the Elsberg bill before Mayor McClellan. Opposition will be expressed chiefly to the clause limiting operation contracts to twenty years on future subways, with renewals for like periods.

BRYCE FAMILY GETS $135,000.

Lawson and Others Pay Up in Cooper Estate Suit.

Through an order of Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, the action of Edith C. Bryce, Lloyd S. Bryce, John E. Parsons, and Edward F. Bedell, as executors of the estate of Edward Cooper, instituted against Thomas W. Lawson, Camille Weidenfeld, and George Wharton Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas Company, is finally discontinued.

This ends a long litigation brought by the Cooper heirs to enforce payment upon the part of the Bay State Gas Company for a majority holding of the stock of the Trenton Water Power Company, a corporation owned by Cooper and sold by him to the Bay State Company shortly before his death.

The court orders the discontinuance upon the payment of $135,000 with interest to the Cooper heirs by Receiver Pepper, as provided for in the recent decree of Judge Bradford of New Jersey.

At the time of the formation of the Bay State Gas Company Lawson and Weidenfeld retained a lot of securities, the property of the Bay State Company, which they refused to turn over, claiming a lien upon it for money due them. This action was recently settled by Lawson and Weidenfeld paying over to Receiver Pepper the sum of $350,000. Of this sum $200,000 was ordered set aside by the courts to pay the Cooper heirs for the stock of the Trenton Water Power Company, and the courts now order the receiver to pay the Cooper estate $135,000 with interest from 1899 and grant an additional allowance of $500 for costs.

The entire disbursements, it is said, will leave very little of the $200,000 ordered set aside to liquidate the obligation.

SALE OF LIQUOR IN CANDY.

Confectioner Freed Because of the Obscurity of Liquor Tax Law.

The Justices of the Court of Special Sessions yesterday acquitted Hans Muller of 214 East Fourteenth Street of the charge of selling candy containing liquor. In setting the man free Justice Olmsted said:

"A majority of the court believes that, owing to the vagueness of the liquor tax law in reference to what constitutes liquor, we cannot convict the defendant. We very much regret, however, that this is so."

An analysis of the candy made by J. P. Atkinson of the Board of Health, and sworn to, showed that one pound of candy contained five ounces of alcohol in weight and .585 per cent. of alcohol in volume. It would be fatal to children, Dr. Atkinson said.

PINNED IN AUTO WRECKAGE.

Fitch A. Hoyt Badly Injured by Machine Hitting Telegraph Pole.

A large touring car in which were Fitch A. Hoyt and Col. W. H. Talmadge of Stamford, Conn., was almost demolished in a collision with a telegraph pole at Larchmont yesterday afternoon. Hoyt, who was driving, was pinned beneath the wreckage. His arm and two ribs are broken, and he may have sustained internal injuries. Col. Talmadge jumped from the car and escaped with a few bruises.

Hoyt was on his way from Stamford to New York, and was said to have been going at a speed of about twenty miles an hour. Midway between Larchmont and New Rochelle he came upon a crowd of people standing in the Boston Post Road, where passengers are transferred from the trolley cars, and in trying to turn out so that he would not run any one down he lost control of the steering gear.

The car swerved to the side of the road, and before Hoyt could regain control it struck the telegraph pole and turned over on its side. Hoyt was caught between the steering wheel and the front of the machine and held so tightly that it required the efforts of three men with crowbars to get him out. He was unconscious. Late this evening he was taken home by relatives.

GEORGE W. PERKINS APPEALS.

Will Take Decision Holding Him for Grand Larceny to a Higher Court.

George W. Perkins appealed yesterday from Justice Greenbaum's decision holding him on the grand larceny charge preferred by District Attorney Jerome. The ex-Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company contributed $48,000 to the Republican campaign fund in 1904. He was reimbursed later.

He sued out a writ of habeas corpus following his arrest. The writ is now dismissed, and notice to that effect has been served on the District Attorney. Mr. Perkins was paroled in the custody of his counsel.

GOT FATAL COLD AT FUNERAL.

William H. Gardner, the Circus Man, Dead—Associate of Late J. A. Bailey.

William H. Gardner, the well-known circus man, died at his home, 208 West Seventy-eighth Street, yesterday. He was 66 years old. He caught cold at the funeral of his friend, James A. Bailey, on Saturday, and pneumonia developed.

Mr. Gardner was the son of the famous circus clown, Dan Gardner, and was born in this city in 1840. Early in life he was associated with his father in the Gardner & Kenyon Circus, and successively was with the Forepaugh & Sells, Cooper & Bailey, Ten Allied Shows, and Barnum & Bailey Circuses. He had been with the Barnum & Bailey shows for a period of thirty-six years, with brief intermissions, during one of which he took the Pawnee Bill Show to Europe. He retired from the Barnum & Bailey Show in 1904, but last Winter bought an interest in the Hagenbeck Circus, returning to active work again. Mr. Gardner was twice married, and leaves a widow and one son, Dr. W. S. Gardner.

MAXIME COMES HERE TO AID REVOLUTION

To Stir Up Sentiment Among the Jews of America.

TELLS OF RUSSIAN BUND

Declares Upheaval Is Coming Soon—Thinks Father Gapon an Agent of the Government.

Sent for by the Revolutionary Bund of this city, an organization of Jewish citizens helping the Jewish revolutionary movement in Russia, a young man with a high forehead and piercing, black eyes, and describing himself as Gregory Maxime of St. Petersburg, arrived yesterday in New York as the representative of the parent bund in Russia. How he came and where he agitated last he declined to say. He admits that Maxime is not his real name, and that he may address the Jewish people of some other large city by some other name in a few weeks.

Maxime is the representative of the powerful Jewish revolutionary party in Russia. It is known that he is of fine education, and that his father is a wealthy Jew in Russia. Under the name of Maxime he headed the provisional government in Riga after the big railroad strike, and, while the names of the central committee of the Bund are known to very few sympathizers in the old country or abroad, he is believed to be a member of it, and also a controlling mind in the direction of the Jewish end of the revolutionary work.

The Bund in New York is strong, and contributes largely to the work of the organization in Russia. As all the Bund's work is done underground, and as many members of it are subject to imprisonment, exile, or death at the hands of the Russian Government, Maxime changes his passports, his name, and as far as possible his appearance as frequently as he deems it necessary to dodge Russian spies. At present he looks the student. He is 27 years old, dresses simply and neatly, and wears a neatly trimmed black beard and mustache. He might easily pass as a university instructor.

Maxime's practical rule of Riga came to an end when the Czar's agents poured into that city sufficient troops to overwhelm the large revolutionary population of Jews and Letts. Maxime says that he was addressing an audience in the theatre of the city when the place was surrounded and artillery trained on it. He had escaped from exile in Siberia just prior to the strike, and he knew that he was wanted. He dropped through a trap in the stage as the officers entered the theatre, and was hurried to the roof of an adjoining building, which was the home of a member of the Bund. He was then shaven and in a few moments was in the garments of a woman and rushing out with the women of the household as they fled to the streets and the Czar's officers rushed in. The Government Secret Service has not had trace of him since.

Maxime will remain in New York about three weeks, addressing the Jews of the city on the revolutionary movement in Russia. Next Sunday night he will talk at Grand Central Palace. After several addresses in Yiddish in this city he will visit other cities with large Jewish populations.

Asked what he thought of Maxim Gorky's plight in this country, he said yesterday: "I have never met Gorky. In Russia we accept him as a great writer and factor for good, and do not pry into his private affairs. The Mme. Gorky who is with him here was accepted in Russia as Mme. Gorky by the best people. As for me, I'm here unmarried—that is, my wife's in Russia."

"What do the Jewish revolutionists think of Father Gapon?" he was asked.

"They think him an agent of the Government."

"What is the opinion of Count Witte?"

"Witte is first for himself and the emoluments," was the reply. "He would serve any form of government for the price."

DOUBLE MURDER ON ELEVATED

Negro Shoots Colored Man and Woman, and Escapes.

Alice Williams, a young colored servant, and Lewis R. Williams, a young colored man, who lived in West Thirty-fifth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, were shot and killed by a negro whose identity the police have not yet learned, yesterday morning on the uptown platform of the Ninth Avenue Elevated Railroad at One Hundred and Tenth Street.

The three alighted from a north-bound train there at 8:30 o'clock. After they had started for the stairs leading to the street, the murderer stepped back of his victims and unwrapped a newspaper in which he carried a revolver. A large crowd on the opposite platform then saw him take careful aim and fire. The bullet struck the woman in the back and she fell dead on the platform.

The man started to run, but he was closely followed by Williams. He then fired three shots, the third striking Williams in the right side just as he reached the top of the stairs. He toppled down the stairs and died a few seconds later on the platform.

The murderer rushed down the stairs, jumping over Williams's body on the way. He turned toward Manhattan Avenue, where he boarded a Lenox Avenue car. Louis Marx and Simon Gold, who are employed as chauffeurs at the garage of the Central Park Automobile Storage Company, on the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and 110th Street, heard the shots, saw the negro rush out, jumped into an automobile, and gave chase. They followed the car up to 121st Street, but were prevented from going further by excavations.

Roundsman Brady of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station was on a south-bound train, which stopped at the station just after the shooting. He alighted and crossed to the uptown platform, but was too late to get on the trail of the murderer. In questioning passengers, who had alighted with the negroes, he learned that the three had quarreled fiercely all the while that they were in the train.

The bodies of the two victims were removed to the West 125th Street Police Station, where they lay until afternoon before they were identified. On the woman was found a slip of paper containing the address 628 West 114th Street. Rudolph Tombo, Jr., an instructor at Columbia University, who lives at that address, identified the dead woman as a servant for his mother.

"I expected her to do some work at my house to-day," he said, "and she was probably on her way when she was shot."

Williams was identified by a negro woman named Lilly Johnson of 240 West Fortieth Street, who was brought to the police station by Detectives Graham and Campbell.

Immediately after the shooting a general alarm was sent out from Police Headquarters, and several detectives were put on the trail of the fugitive negro. The police believe that jealousy prompted the shooting. In spite of the fact that both the victims have the same name it is not thought that they were related.

Survivors of Hawkins's Zouaves Hold a Reunion at the Astor.

The Ninth New York Volunteer Infantry, otherwise known as Hawkins's Zouaves, a civil war organization, gave a banquet in celebration of its forty-fifth anniversary last evening in the wine vault of the Hotel Astor. Forty-five veterans of the regiment were present, thirty sons of survivors, and a number of guests.

Among the civil war officers present were Gen. Rush C. Hawkins, the organizer of the zouaves; Gen. W. H. Curtis, Gen. E. M. Molineux, Gen. Frederick Pearson, Gen. Nicholas W. Day, Col. Charles Swift, and several others.

THERE'S a vast deal of fustian to the average clothing advertisement both in text and texture. Like the Summer resort, exquisitely etched on stationery—no mosquitos, no malaria, fine fishing, etc.—you want to discount it a full 50 per cent. Almost without exception, every clothing shop in New York claims to sell exclusively its own output. With the exception of a few other shops besides our own, all the rest are retailers only, and not manufacturers. Always our values are the best the ready-to-wear clothing world affords, and the exclusive output of our own tailors.

The Suits discussed to-day at $32 are the very mould of your money, and, if made to measure, would cost $50. Fine domestic Worsteds, in sharp, clear gray, single or double breasted styles. And all sizes, from "shorts" to extra large.

FOR A 5C. TELEPHONE RATE.

Aldermen Hear Arguments for Cheaper Tolls—New Co. Represented.

An investigation of the telephone rates in New York was begun by the Aldermanic Committee on Laws and Legislation yesterday. Alfred R. Conkling and D. A. Reynolds did most of the talking to the members, while Edward Lauterbach watched the proceedings for the New York Telephone Company.

Mr. Conkling spoke in favor of the adoption of a five-cent interborough telephone rate. Mr. Reynolds, who is the President of the Great Eastern Telephone Company, spoke in favor of the establishment of an independent telephone system. While not urging the establishment of a municipally owned system, Mr. Reynolds said the city could run such a system on a two-cent per call basis and make money. The Aldermen said they would take the matter up and report to the board later on.

Martin Littleton, as counsel for the Atlantic Telephone Company, has sent a letter to the Board of Estimate, asking for the appointment of a sub-committee of the board, or of engineers acting in its behalf, to investigate the workings of the automatic telephone system which the Atlantic Company proposes to use if it gets its franchise. The company wants to have the committee visit other cities, Mr. Littleton states, to see the workings of the automatic telephone exchanges.

Street Car Transfer Hearing.

The Railroad Committee of the Board of Aldermen held a hearing yesterday on the resolution criticising the management of the Metropolitan Street Railway for compelling passengers to request transfers at the time of paying fares, or else go without them. General Manager Oren Root, Jr., said the company adopted the system to put a stop to fraudulent use of transfers, as the company was being defrauded of $100,000 annually. No action was taken.

SAN FRANCISCO'S NEW PERIL; GALE DRIVES FIRE FERRYWARD

Threatens Egress by Water and May Cut Off Supplies.

HUNDREDS OF BODIES FOUND IN THE RUINS OF BUILDINGS

Eleven Postal Clerks Were Alive In the Ruins of the Post Office After Exposure and Privation—Strict Military Measures Enforced and Order Preserved.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—San Francisco is threatened with a new danger to-night. Driven by a high wind, fire is sweeping down upon the great ferry house and is threatening to cut off communication with Oakland and Berkeley.

Should the fears of the fire fighters be realized, all supplies for the great army of refugees in the city, except such as could be brought in by the crippled railway from the south, would be cut off.

It is not believed that this fire will endanger what is left of the rest of the city, because it will probably burn itself out against the bay. But the loss of the ferry would probably bring famine to the hundreds of thousands in the city.

The change in the direction of the wind was hailed with relief to-day because it meant that the fire would be driven back from the Western Addition, which early this morning was threatened with annihilation.

It was after the wind had turned the flames to the northeast that announcement was made by Mayor Schmitz that the fire was under control. It was believed during the afternoon that the flames would be driven against the bay in the direction of North Beach, above the Ferry House, and burn themselves out against the water front.

This evening, however, a northwest wind of high velocity came up and sent the wall of fire back in the direction of the Ferry House. This place had been left standing by the earthquake and the early fires, after threatening it had left it standing.

The Postal Telegraph Company has abandoned its temporary office in the Ferry Building.

Gen. Caster has ordered out a squadron of men to endeavor to keep back the flames, which threaten the ferry, the only present means of egress from the city. The water front emergency hospital is endangered, and the officials in charge are prepared to move their quarters.

The wind is of such velocity that brick and granite walls, weakened by the earthquake and the subsequent fire, are falling into the streets. Market Street, the principal avenue of escape from the city to the ferry buildings, may be blocked, thus shutting off the only ready means of escape to the ferries.

Armed Guards Are Increased.

The city is plunged in absolute darkness to-night at 10 o'clock. The authorities considered conditions so grave that it was decided to swear in immediately 1,000 special policemen armed with rifles furnished by the Federal Government. In addition to this force, companies of the National Guard arrived from many interior points.

It was reported to-night that thirty-five white men had been shot and killed while attempting to work their way into the ruins of the United States Sub-Treasury, on Commercial Street. Two Chinese were shot and killed on Market Street for refusing to obey orders of the soldiery.

To-night the chief remaining fire was confined to the east of Van Ness Avenue and north of Union Street, but was burning its way to the shore.

Late this afternoon the police broke open every saloon and corner grocery in the saved districts and poured all malt and spirituous liquors into the gutters.

At 7 o'clock to-night a fire was raging over fifty acres of the water front lying between Bay Street and the end of Meiggs's and Fisherman's Wharf. To the eastward it extended down to the sea wall, but had not reached the piers, which lie a quarter of a mile toward the east.

The cannery and warehouse of the Central California Canneries Company, together with 20,000 cases of canned fruit, were destroyed, as also was the Simpson and other lumber yards.

Reports of babes born in the refugee camps were frequently received. Five babies were born in Golden Gate Park.

Hoped Fire Danger Was Past.

The fire was positively stated to be under control early this afternoon, with the probability that one-quarter of the city lying west of Franklin Street, and known as the addition, northward to the Presidio, will be saved.

The stand made at Van Ness Avenue was generally successful, the flames crossing that avenue to the west in only a few places. The strongest fire at noon to-day was toward North Beach, east of Van Ness Avenue, but it will be controlled.

The fire this morning was burning in the western section and moving toward Golden Gate Park and the Presidio on the west and Telegraph Hill on the north.

It went close to Fort Mason last night, and the big Fontana Warehouse and near-by canneries were in danger. It was feared that the flames would make a clean sweep of everything as far as Golden Gate Park, and would take the eucalyptus trees that line the park and burn the shrubbery clear to the ocean beach, endangering the refugees there.

Stopped from Western Reserve.

The Western Addition danger was averted by the use of gun cotton, dynamite, and two streams of water. The explosives were handled by the chief gunner of the Mare Island Navy Yard and his accomplishments proved him to be a master of his profession.

Meanwhile the fight to save what was left of the Nob Hill district had been made with desperation. The device of blowing up a mile of buildings the night before had not been sufficient to prevent the jump of the flames across Van Ness Avenue, but where they did jump they did not get much of a foothold.

While the fire on the easterly slope of Nob Hill was eating its way toward Telegraph Hill, the firemen finally managed to get a stream of salt water from the bay, pumped through a hose a mile long. This delayed the progress of the conflagration.

Finally the wind changed and came from the ocean and this drove the flames back from the western portion of the city which they were threatening. A supply of water was also provided, and the hard-pressed firemen were able to bring their engines to bear with effect. The result was that the flames were turned northeast, going toward North Beach.

Flames Turn on Themselves.

When the Nob Hill fire was turned back upon itself and the other fire from Telegraph Hill was burning toward the district it had devastated and was therefore bound to burn itself out, and the fire in the Mission district had also been turned back upon its own ruins, it was felt that the fire situation could be controlled at last.

At the same time there was great danger to the people who had taken refuge on the water front in the vicinity of North Beach and to the Ferry House, and much valuable property.

The flames had gone around the base of Telegraph Hill, and, leaving the few houses standing there, had gone back from the west and were in full possession of the houses on the hill and threatening to take everything down to the water front on Van Ness Avenue and west of there. The main fire reached Octavia Street and was going at a fast rate.

Thousands in Peril of Flames.

Michael Williams, city editor of The San Francisco Examiner, told of danger to the people at North Beach.

"Shortly before 10 o'clock," he said, "I boarded the Government steamer Gov. Sternberg, having on board members of the San Francisco Relief Committee under orders from Col. Reynolds, Commander of the Twenty-second Infantry, to commandeer all available tugs along the water front to go to the rescue of at least 10,000 men, women, and children congregated in the neighborhood of Meiggs Wharf, who are menaced by the march of the flames.

"Around Meiggs Wharf there are several huge oil tanks, some of them containing at least 15,000 gallons of oil. If the flames reach these tanks fearful explosions will result.

"When the Gov. Sternberg left Meiggs Wharf the whole of that portion of North Beach seemed doomed. The people were flocking to the wharves and crowding into all available craft."

There has been no renewal of the fire west of Octavia Street or south of Market Street, but it is not under control at the water front, and it is creeping toward the ferry house. However, not much alarm is felt that it will reach the ferry building, even if it reaches the steamer freight sheds on the north.

A clear sky over the Mission district shows that the fire there has been extinguished.

Hundreds of Bodies Found.

From a three-story lodging house at Fifth and Minna Streets, which collapsed Wednesday morning, more than seventy-five bodies were taken to-day. There are fifty other dead bodies in sight in the ruins. This building was one of the first to take fire on Fifth Street.

At least 100 persons were killed in the Cosmopolitan, on Fourth Street.

More than 150 persons are reported dead in the Brunswick Hotel, Seventh and Mission Streets. Many persons dropped dead to-day of heat and suffocation.

Eleven postal clerks, all alive, were taken from the débris of the Post Office to-day. All at first were thought to be dead, but it was found that although they were buried in the stone, every one was alive. They had been for three days without food or water. All the mail in the Post Office was saved.

Messages Cannot Be Delivered.

The delivery of telegraphic messages from outside points to the people in San Francisco is an impossibility. The messenger service of both the big telegraph companies no longer exists. Even had the companies an army of messengers, they would be of little value because the people are scattred far and wide, and a journey from the ferry building to the western addition or to the refugee camps consumes many hours.

Most of the automobiles have been impressed into the service of the police or military authorities, and these have but one circuitous route from one telegraph station at the water front to municipal headquarters and the unswept western portions. This is by way of the northerly water front line. Nearly every other street has been made impassable by the fall of the portions of buildings.

Killing by the Soldiers.

The extent to which the rule of law has given way to the rule of the gun was illustrated to-day by the killing of Policeman Joseph M. Meyers. He got into some dispute with a National Guardsman as to authority, when words brought no settlement the Guardsman bayoneted Meyers.

Fourteen men, caught in attempted robbery, were killed by the soldiers guarding the Government Mint.

The regular soldiers of the United States Army have been the lords of whatever district they were assigned to protect. At the Presidio, every citizen who came near was immediately pressed into service by the soldiers and forced to help bury the dead. The corpses became piled up so that they were a menace to health. Whether a man was rich or poor made no difference in this case. To every one who objected the point of a bayonet was a convincing argument. Men evidently unused to physical labor dug graves in company with laborers.

Mayor Schmitz, weary and worn but still busy, was at his desk to-day. He has had little or no sleep since the earthquake waked him Wednesday morning.

To-day and to-morrow have been made legal holidays. This, it is believed, will give the bankers of San Francisco time to be in a position to meet the demands of the depositors and the danger of a financial crisis will be averted.

The State banks and banks of the United States in general have telegraphed, guaranteeing support to local financial institutions, and arrangements have already been made whereby it can be stated every depositor will be paid in full.

The insurance companies have already taken up the question of losses. It was stated yesterday that the companies have decided, if possible, to pay dollar for dollar on all the losses, whether occasioned by fire or earthquake. This will mean, if the loss totals $200,000,000, as it is believed it will, that $110,000,000 will be paid into the pockets of San Francisco realty owners, and with this as a start new structures will soon be in course of erection on the sites of the old.

Casualties May Never Be Known.

The work of clearing up the débris has already begun at the water front in the business section. One hundred men were employed this morning under the direction of the Street Department.

Bank Vaults Found Intact.

A committee of bankers has examined all the bank and safe deposit vaults in San Francisco and found them all intact. This makes it certain that the money and papers on deposit are all safe. It was reported that the books and records in the San Francisco Hall of Records also escaped serious injury.

The only bank in the huge ruined district that escaped destruction was the Market Street Bank, at the corner of Seventh and Market Streets. It is in the gutted Grand Building, but the firemen saved the ground floor. It will pay out money just as soon as it hears from the Clearing House officials.

Postmaster Dargie of Oakland has telegraphed to the Post Office Department at Washington that owing to the wreck of the San Francisco Post Office registered pouches and packages will be held in the Oakland office indefinitely. He also suggested that offices making up mails for Manila and the Orient might be instructed to forward them to Seattle, instead of San Francisco.

Until further notice, letters from this city will be sent through the mails free of postage. This has been made necessary on account of the unprecedented demand for stamps which the local Post Office cannot supply.

Six hundred men from the Ocean Shore Railway arrived to-night with wagons and implements to work on the sewer system. Inspectors are going from house to house, examining chimneys and issuing permits to build fires.

The report that the famous Cliff House had toppled into the sea cannot be verified and is probably untrue. In the confusion it is impossible to get to it.

The man or woman who sought to leave the city to-day by vehicle had to pay dearly for it. It was common for a truckman to charge $20 to carry a trunk half a mile. Sometimes, though, they have to carry them for nothing—when either the police or the military have need of teams. If a truckman offers any objections to obeying the order of a soldier or a policeman he is reduced to sudden submission by the sight of a pistol.

Extent of the Ruin.

These facts will give some idea of the ruin:

Every bank but one was destroyed, every theatre wrecked, and every hotel has been razed by earthquake and flames.

Where there was a business section of activity unsurpassed in the United States, there is now only block after block of ruins. In that district practically the only buildings whose condition warrants a belief that they can be repaired are the Mint and the new Post Office and the new Chronicle Building. The Post Office walls sank several inches.

The new Chronicle Building, which was not completed or ready for occupancy, was uninjured by the earthquake, barring a few cracked bricks. This building had not an ounce of wood in its construction, and while the old Chronicle Building, standing at its side, and reaching to a height of nine stories, is gutted, the new structure is practically uninjured, its top three stories not even havin its exterior of glazed white brick soiled by smoke or soot. This is perhaps the only tall building in the city left practically intact, but its entire surface below the twelfth floor will have to be gone over, and the two months that would have been required for its completion will probably be stretched into six now.

The whole of Chinatown has been wiped out, so, also, have the humbler residential section in the Mission district, the fine Nob Hill section, and the Van Ness Avenue quarter.

The work of making up a list of casualties has been neglected largely because the living needed all the help that could be given. It seems likely that a death list anywhere near accuracy will never be made up. Just after the earthquake the undertakers gathered up many of the dead and removed them to the undertaking shops.

When the fire began to sweep the city many of these bodies were removed to places of safety. But the authorities say that all of them certainly were not removed. Many bodies, too, have been seen in the burned district since the ruins have begun to cool.

Real estate experts who have attempted to figure out the total loss admitted that their estimates were little better than guesses. These estimates range from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000. The work of adjustment will be badly hampered because all of the records of the Board of Underwriters have been destroyed.

In the stories of the refugees there have been accounts of some extortion by meat and bread dealers and a few stories of brutality and looting by thieves, but these stories are overshadowed by the tributes paid to rescuers. Self-sacrifice has been the rule.

The long line of refugees that streamed across the bay to Oakland and Berkeley contained weak old men and women and practically helpless children by the scores. They had been helped in many instances by persons hardly stronger than themselves.

The strict rule put in force by the authorities to prevent more persons getting into San Francisco has been a hardship in many cases. Hundreds of men who went across the bay and got food for 160 families they had left behind, were not allowed to land. One party of such men who returned in a launch was fired upon.

Getting Water at Last.

Pelham W. Ames, Secretary of the Spring Valley Water Works, says that water is now coming into San Francisco in many places. California Street, Van Ness, and Golden Gate Avenues have water in plenty. The principal main was broken at the Five Mile House, but has been fixed. News of the condition of the other mains is meagre.

Market Street is being cleared so that food can be transported through the city to the needy.

Bankers and business men are going to organize a new temporary bank.

W. W. Phelps, Grand Master of the I. O. O. F., arrived in Oakland to-day and opened headquarters. He has issued an appeal for aid to every lodge in America.

HOLE WHERE CHINATOWN WAS.

Depth of the Underground City Revealed by the Fire.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—"Strange is the scene where San Francisco's Chinatown stood," says W. W. Overton, who reached Los Angeles to-day from San Francisco. "No heap of smoking ruins marks the site of the wooden warrens where the Orientals dwelt in thousands. Only a cavern remains, pitted with deep holes and lined with dark passageways, from whose depths some smoke wreathes.

"White men never knew the depth of Chinatown's underground city. Many had gone beneath the street level two and three stories, but now that Chinatown has been unmasked, men may see where its inner secrets lay. In places one can see passages 100 feet deep.

"The fire swept this Mongolian quarter clean. It left no shred of the painted wooden fabric. Joss houses and mission schools, groceries, and opium dens, gambling resorts and theatres, all of them went. These buildings blazed up like tissue paper.

"From this place I saw hundreds of crazed yellow men flee. In their arms they bore opium pipes, money bags, silks, and children. Beside them ran the trousered women, and some hobbled painfully.

"These were the men and women of the surface. Far beneath the street levels in those cellars and passageways were other lives. Women who never saw the day from their darkened prisons and their blinking jailors were caught and eaten by the flames."

FIGHTING FAMINE AND DISEASE AMONG THE 500,000 REFUGEES

San Francisco Multitudes Camped Out Shelterless and in Want.

DANGER IS PAST, SAYS MAYOR, BIDS PEOPLE AID AUTHORITIES

Water Supply Is Restored and Food Is Being Rushed In—All Social Lines Down in Great Camps—Oakland and Other Cities Flooded With the Refugees.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—With the danger from fire seemingly past, all the energies of the authorities of San Francisco are bent upon the great problem of caring for the great multitude of the destitute. Although wearied with the long fight with the flames, no effort is being spared by Mayor Schmitz and his military and other aides to prevent starvation and disease.

Hundreds of thousands are without shelter or food, but order is being brought out of the terrible chaos. Water has been supplied, trainloads of food are coming in and being distributed and shelter is being provided.

Proclamation by the Mayor.

Mayor Schmitz issued the following proclamation to-day:

"To the Citizens of San Francisco:

"The fire is now under control and all danger is passed. The only fear is that other fires may start should the people build fires in their stoves, and I therefore warn all citizens not to build fires in their homes until the chimneys have been inspected and repaired properly. All citizens are urged to discountenance the building of fires.

"I congratulate the citizens of San Francisco upon the fortitude they have displayed, and I urge upon all the necessity of aiding the authorities in the work of relieving the destitute and suffering. For the relief of those persons who are encamped in the various sections of the city everything possible is being done.

"In Golden Gate Park, where there are approximately 200,000 homeless persons, relief stations have been established. The Spring Valley Water Company has informed me that the Mission District will be supplied with water this afternoon, between ten and twelve million gallons daily being available. Lake Mercedes will be taken by the Federal troops and that supply protected."

Great Camps of Refugees.

At the Presidio military reservation, where probably 50,000 persons are camped, affairs are conducted with military precision. Water is plentiful, and rations are dealt out all day long. The refugees stand patiently in line, and there is not a murmur.

This attitude is observable all over the city. The people are brave and patient and the wonderful order preserved by them has been of great assistance.

In Golden Gate Park are encamped 200,000 persons. A huge supply station has been established there and provisions are dealt out.

Many thousands are camped in vacant lots and squares scattered about the city, and these are the unfortunates that are hard to reach. Throughout the entire western portion of the city refugee camps are located. The Municipal Safety Committee has had plans for concentrating these unfortunate people, but unless they are forcibly herded together this scheme seems impossible of accomplishment.

Army Officer in Command.

Major McKeever of the United States Army has been appointed commandant of the camps, and with his staff of assistants was to-day trying to reduce relief to a system. His first thought is to supply food and water, and then to arrange sanitary measures. The throngs of people crowded in open lots and fields are threatened with an epidemic of disease unless precautions are speedily observed.

In buildings close to the camps the police are storing available foodstuffs and bed clothing for convenient delivery. That there will be a just and equal distribution of the supplies is evident from the temper of the city authorities. No distinctions are drawn and few favors shown.

The grave question is, How soon will an adequate supply of food arrive from outside points, to avert famine and destitution? There is little food in San Francisco outside of what little each person possesses, and this cannot last more than a few days. San Francisco is geographically an isolated city. Its nearest large neighbor on the south is Los Angeles, 500 miles away. To the north is Portland, nearly 800 miles distant, and its nearest sister in the east is Salt Lake City, 1,000 miles away.

These cities and all of the less populated nearer towns are making sacrifices for the destitute, but it is to the big cities of the Nation that San Francisco looks with anxious eyes for relief.

Next to viewing the many square miles of ruins that once made San Francisco a city, no better realization of the ruin that has come to this place can be gained than by visiting the refugee camps.

Golden Gate Park was the mecca of the destitute. This immense playground of the municipality has been converted into a vast mushroom city that bears striking resemblance to the fleeting towns located on the border of a Government reservation about to be opened to public settlement.

Social Distinctions Wiped Out.

The common destitution and suffering have wiped out all social, financial, and racial distinctions. The man who last Tuesday was a prosperous merchant is occupying with his family a little plot of ground that adjoins the open-air home of a laborer. The white man of California is maintaining friendly relations with his new Chinese and Japanese neighbors. The society belle who, Tuesday night, was a butterfly of fashion at the grand opera performance, is assisting some factory girl in the preparation of humble meals.

Money this afternoon had little value. The family that had foresight to lay in the largest stock of foodstuffs on the first day of disaster is rated highest in the scale of wealth.

Improvised Fireplaces.

A few of the families who could get willing expressmen were possessors of cooking stoves, but more than 95 per cent. of the refugees are doing their cooking on little campfires made of brick or stone. Kitchen utensils that last week would have been regarded with contempt were to-day articles of high value.

Many of the homeless people are in possession of comfortable clothing and bed covering, but the great bulk of them are in need. The grass is their bed, and their daily clothing their only protection against the penetrating fog of the ocean or the chilling dew of the morning.

Fresh meat disappeared Wednesday morning, and canned foods and breadstuffs are the only victuals in evidence.

A well-known young lady of social position, when asked to-day where she had spent the night, replied:

"On a grave."

Many a San Franciscan is spending to-night in total ignorance of whether his family is alive or dead. The police have opened up a bureau of registration to bring families together, but it has not yet been able to effect many reunions.

Women and children who had comfortable homes Tuesday night are seeking sleep on the bales of hay on the wharves to-night, some of them wrapped in flimsy sheets as protection against the chill ocean winds, and others with no covering but the sky.

Keeping Down Food Prices.

The Committee of Safety appointed by Mayor Schmitz met to-day and made plans to obtain and distribute food. This morning bread sold at $1 a loaf, and in one instance, at least, a can of sardines brought $3.50. To keep avaricious retailers from using the great catastrophe as a means of gain, the master bakers across the bay from San Francisco met to-day and fixed the price of bread at 5 cents a loaf. They agreed to refuse to sell bread to any retailer who made an attempt to force the price above that point.

One big bakery in the district that escaped the fire started its ovens at full blast to-day and baked 50,000 loaves of bread. Thousands of people lined up before the bakery and the police were present in force to see that nobody got more than one loaf.

When Mayor Schmitz heard a policeman report that two grocery stores were closed, he commanded:

"Smash them open and guard them!"

Thus every store containing provisions was broken open and its contents were distributed under police supervision. Now there is an immediate prospect of a large supply of fresh water. Officers of the Spring Valley Water Company say that they will be able to furnish 10,000,000 gallons a day.

A bank President of San Francisco has offered to place $3,000,000 in the hands of the Citizens' Relief and Restoration Committee, to be used at its discretion. Later subscriptions added $191,500 to that sum.

200,000 QUIT SAN FRANCISCO.

Oakland and Other Nearby Cities Overcrowded with the Refugees.

OAKLAND, April 20.—At least 200,000 refugees from San Francisco have come to this side of the bay and are now distributed in Oakland, Alameda, and Berkeley.

While hundreds have found lodging with friends, there are the countless poor who are dependent upon charity. The work of evolving a system for supplying the immediate wants of the people is now under way. Gov. Pardee, his staff, Mayor Mott, and the local City Government and civic organizations are co-operating in this task.

It is the general belief, however, that despite all efforts there will be great distress and perhaps starvation unless immediate and wholesale aid is forthcoming. The supply of food in this city may only last out the week. To what extent the outside country can supply the needs is a question that only actual trial will demonstrate.

Supplies Seized on Trains.

The seizure of supplies coming in on trains has been authorized by Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco.

Following out this order and under authorization given the Relief Committee by the civil authorities of Oakland, Edwin Stearns, Chairman of the Executive Committee, seized a carload of flour this morning. Part was immediately sent out to Idora Park, where there are a large number of homeless people, and another part to Adams Point, where people are encamped under the trees.

A carload of ice was seized for the hospitals. A carload of potatoes was also taken.

It is not the purpose of the committee to confiscate these goods, and the names of the consignees are taken in each case, and as soon as there are any funds available they will be paid for. Other cities are sending supplies, and it is hoped that the amounts will be sufficient.

At present the supply station at Thirteenth and Franklin Streets is emptied as fast as goods are received. The demands cannot begin to be supplied.

Bakers Join Heartily in Work.

Mayor Mott this morning addressed a circular to the bakers of the Cities of Oakland, Alameda, and Berkeley, requesting them to continue work regardless of holidays. The bakers have agreed to work their plants to the utmost capacity and to send all their surplus output to the Relief Committee.

At the headquarters of the Relief Committee the detail of the work is being handled by sub-committees. There is a registration bureau where all are asked to register their names for the use of those wishing to find families or friends, because in hurried flight many families were separated.

There is a Provision Committee, which takes charge of the provisions, which are sent to a grain warehouse at Thirteenth and Franklin Streets, and there distributed to the various depots where people are being fed.

The churches of the city are taking charge of the work of administering to the wants of the needy and hungry.

University Campus Filled.

It is estimated that at least six thousand homeless people are in Berkeley, and the city has practically been placed under martial law. A thousand cadets of the University of California are patrolling the streets and a hundred special police officers are watching homes and stores.

Last night the campus and athletic field of the University of California were converted into a great sleeping place. Tents were provided for women while cots of straw were stretched out for the men. Under the oaks of the campus is an immense tent where the cooking is done.

Every church and fraternal hall in the city was thrown open and converted into bedrooms. Medical men have their hands full with sick and injured persons.

General Manager Calvin of the Southern Pacific Railroad has arranged to take all destitute people possible on local trains to points in California without charge. He also is sending steamers to take off the people on the wharves between the ferry building and Port Mason and carry them to Oakland without fare.

The Southern Pacific is running its through trains and suburban trains on schedule time. The Wells-Fargo Express Company horses and wagons were saved, and these will be used in distributing relief supplies.

Mayor Mott to-day issued a proclamation requesting that lodgings and food be sold at usual rates.

If exorbitant prices are demanded for lodgings or food, the military authorities will have power to take possession of such lodging houses or supplies, compensation for same to be determined later by the courts.

Gov. Pardee to-day wired to President Roosevelt asking him to send the Pacific Squadron to San Francisco under speed, in order that the marines may help the unfortunate sufferers, and also that the supplies of the squadron may be used for the relief of the needy.

Masons Are Giving Aid.

Mottley H. Flint, Postmaster of Los Angeles and Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California Masons, arrived to-day to organize relief for the aid of the distressed.

"Telegrams are pouring in from Masonic lodges in all parts of the country," said Mr. Flint this afternoon, "offering aid."

At a meeting of Masons to-day large quantities of provisions were purchased and preparations were made to serve meals and supply bedding. It was also ordered that branches of the Masonic Relief Bureau be opened in San Francisco. An appeal was issued for funds and supplies to be forwarded to the relief bureau at Masonic Temple, Oakland.

THE CHINESE SUFFERERS.

List of Those Burned Out Prepared for Their New York Brothers.

In Chinatown yesterday Kai Kee of 1 Doyers Street got out a printed list of the names of the big Chinese firms burned out in San Francisco's Chinatown. The list was six feet long.

At the head of the list was printed the streets. The names followed in Chinese characters printed in red at the left and in English letters in green at the right. The street number followed the name in English. In some instances the business of the firm was given.

DETAILS OF HAVOC IN THE SMALL TOWNS

San Jose Left a Wreck, and at Least 19 Dead There.

100 KILLED IN ASYLUM

Catholic Students Helped Care for the Insane—Forty Dead in Santa Rosa—Stanford Ruins.

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 20.—The damage here is $5,000,000. A company of militia is in charge of the city. The damage to the Texas Pacific Milling Company at Santa Clara, a suburb of San José, is $150,000. The total loss in Santa Clara is $500,000. There was no loss of life there.

At Gilroy, $300,000 damage; none dead.

At Hollister, one man killed; $100,000 damage.

The Southern Pacific tunnel at Wright's, nearly a mile long, caved in.

Hundreds are streaming into Santa Clara County from San Francisco. The strictest martial law is in force in San José. Mayor Worsick has asked Gov. Pardee for more soldiers to maintain order. A vigilance committee has been organized, and placards have been posted throughout the city saying that any person found stealing or committing any lawless act or an act of violence will be summarily executed. No one is allowed in the streets after dark.

The Moreland Academy, a Catholic institution at Watsonville, was damaged, but no lives were lost.

Santa Clara College and Notre Dame Convent were not damaged.

Among those killed in San José were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Haley of Oakland, Mr. and Mrs. Kerrigan of Oakland, Thomas O'Toole of Gilroy, Mrs. Charles Costa, Mrs. Claude Everett, Mrs. Warden, and Fireman Farrar. Provisions are running short in San José.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—"San José, which was the prettiest city in California," said William White, Sheriff of Los Angeles County, when he arrived from San José to-day, "is the worst-looking wreck I ever saw. The residence quarters, however, were not harmed much.

"When I left San José yesterday afternoon nineteen dead bodies had been recovered, and there was a possibility that others would be found. At the Agnew Insane Asylum, near San José, I helped to carry out sixty bodies.

"The shock came to San José at 5:12:45 o'clock Wednesday morning, according to the clock in the St. James Hotel, which was stopped by the shock. I occupied apartments on the fourth floor of the St. James Hotel. The shock knocked plaster off in great chunks. The chimney knocked a great hole in the roof. I hurried to the street. It was full of people, dressed and undressed, who were running about distractedly. The annex of the Vendome Hotel, a three-story frame structure, fell, and some of the guests had to be dug out of the ruins, including Deputy Sheriff O'Toole of Gilroy's.

"There was not a brick or stone building of two stories or over in San José that was not leveled to the ground or so severely damaged that it will not have to be torn down. Some fires started after the quake, but the Fire Department soon had them under control.

"San José is under martial law and the city is thoroughly patrolled by the militia. Those who died were all residents of San José.

"After getting away from San José I saw evidences of the earthquake at Niles and even as far as Livermore in the shape of fallen chimneys and broken glass."

Several other men who felt the earthquake at San José reached home to-day. All of them had thrilling escapes. State Senator Cornelius Pendleton said:

"After the earthquake I covered San José in an automobile and saw at least twenty dead. Nearly every brick and stone structure in San José was demolished or damaged. I was at the Vendome Hotel. The shock of the earthquake was so severe that the floors and walls of the hotel collapsed. We had a room on the side of the hotel near a large tree. The side wall of my room fell against this tree, which also sustained that part of the roof, preventing it from falling in on us.

"My room was on the second floor, but when I got up I was in the basement. I crawled over the débris and escaped through a third-story window that was on a level with the ground. I saw one dead woman in the hotel ruins. Among the large buildings demolished were the Hall of Justice, the First Presbyterian Church, the Catholic Cathedral, the Hale Block, the Vendome Hotel, and several other large buildings."

OAKLAND, April 20.—An Associated Press correspondent who arrived here last night from Santa Cruz reports that up to noon on Thursday 108 bodies had been taken out of the Agnew Asylum near Santa Clara. Official estimates place the number of injured insane patients at 207, and of these thirty were not expected to live.

The main building of the hospital collapsed, pinning many of the patients under fallen walls and débris. The padded cells had to be broken open, and the more dangerous patients were tied to trees out on the lawn in lieu of a safer place. The doctors and nurses stuck heroically to their posts, and a hundred students from Santa Clara College went over in a body to assist in succoring the wounded. Brother De Martini, in charge of the college infirmary, did good work in giving first aid to the injured, as did Dr. Gerlache of San José, the county physician, who later collapsed. Drs. Sapp and Wright of San José are assisting the hospital staff.

Very little damage was done to the buildings at Santa Clara College, and not one of the students or priests was injured.

SACRAMENTO, April 20.—State Controller A. P. Colgan, who is at his old home town, Santa Rosa, telephones that reports from that place have been greatly exaggerated. The public and business buildings, he says, are wrecked, but the residence part is only slightly damaged. Forty were killed in the business part of the town, but no one was injured in the residence section.

EXPERIENCES OF A DOCTOR.

No Alarm Felt at First, He Says—The Flight by Boat.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 20.—It is almost impossible to realize the total destruction which has overwhelmed San Francisco and its near-by cities until the men and women who passed through the fires tell with voice and gesture, with the past horrors still reflected in their faces and eyes, the story of the destruction which overwhelmed at a moment's notice that magnificent city.

The few trains which reached Los Angeles to-day were crowded with refugees from the pile of ruins now smoking along the shores of San Francisco Bay, which remain to mark the great metropolis of the West.

Perhaps the true story was told today by Dr. George H. Kress, who went to San Francisco to report the proceedings of the State Medical Society on Tuesday morning, the day before the earthquake occurred. Dr. Kress returned home to-night and gave this account:

"I stopped at the Hotel Walten, in Ellis Street. I was awakened at dawn on Wednesday by the swaying of the building. I realized that it was an earthquake shock, but as no plaster fell in my room I felt no especial alarm. I arose, however, dressed, and went down Ellis Street.

"I passed the Y. M. C. A. Building, where our society had held its meeting, and noticed that a large mass of débris filled the street. I went on to Market Street. Down on Third Street, a few blocks below Market, two buildings were burning, and south of Market Street fires showed on Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Streets.

"These fires quickly grew in proportion and spread rapidly. There was no water to quench them. They steadily ate their way toward Market and Third Streets, and by noon The Call Building was a mass of flames.

"In Union Square Park, opposite the St. Francis Hotel, had congregated several members of our Southern California delegation, and I joined them.

"Individual experiences varied. Those who were thrown out of bed and had plaster and furniture topple over them were scared into a realization of danger, while those of us who felt only the shock regarded it at first merely as a quake of unusual severity. Only here and there could one see the dead and injured.

"The visiting physicians offered their services wherever possible, but it early became evident that their brother practitioners of San Francisco were fully able to handle the situation. We realized then that there must be a food and perhaps a water famine, and that our unfamiliarity with the city made it desirable for us to get across the bay, if possible.

"As we stood there scenes sad beyond description passed before our eyes. Poor people were hauling trunks and boxes. One man had his cot, another rushed along with three derby hats on his head. Chinamen flew wildly past, and two hysterical negroes passed through the park shouting:

"'Prepare to meet your God! The hour of Judgment is at hand!'

"The Los Angeles party decided to go out to Golden Gate Park. One hackman wanted $20 for the use of his carriage. We hired an expressman and clambered in, but Dr. Mattison's uncle told us he thought he could get us to the water front, where we could charter a launch and get across the bay. We decided to take the chance, and were fortunate in getting a boat and crossed to Oakland pier.

"San José was in ruins, and we returned next morning to Oakland. On Thursday morning we were fortunate enough to get out."

New Warships Escape Injury.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Navy Department to-day received a telegram from Rear Admiral McCalla, commanding the Mare Island Navy Yard, reporting that the warships under construction at the Union Iron Works are uninjured. He also reported that the loss of life is much exaggerated.

JUST WHAT IS NEEDED.

Also Just How to Send It—California Official's Statement.

SACRAMENTO, April 20.—Lieut. Gov. Alden Anderson, who is assisting with the work in the Governor's office at Sacramento, gave a signed statement to The Associated Press this afternoon as an answer to numerous inquiries received from various places asking what to contribute and to whom to send it.

The statement was prepared as conferring over the telephone with Gov. Pardee in Oakland. It is:

"Three-fourths of San Francisco, including factories and all the wholesale districts, have been burned, thousands of people are homeless and destitute and must have food and other supplies for some time. Nearby places should send prepared food, such as bread, crackers, tinned goods, cured meats, &c.

"Those making cash contributions should send currency or coin, so it become immediately available. Send supplies or money to General Relief Committee, care Mayor E. E. Schmitz, San Francisco, Cal."

ARTIE HALL IS KILLED.

Crushed with One of the Argoust Sisters When Orpheum Fell.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—Artie Hall, a colored singer and a member of the Agoust family of jugglers, playing an engagement at the San Francisco Orpheum, was crushed to death in the collapse of that theatre, according to the assistant property man of their company, who arrived in Los Angeles last night. Said he:

"I saw Miss Hall and one of the Agoust sisters go into the theatre. No sooner were they well within the building than the walls crashed down upon them. John Morrissey, manager of the theatre, is safe, but Harry Orndorf, stage manager, suffered serious injuries; both legs were broken, but I think he will recover."

BUSCH DESCRIBES IT ALL.

The St. Louis Brewer Tells of His Adventures in San Francisco.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—A special to The Globe-Democrat from Adolphus Busch, the St. Louis brewer, dated Sparks, Nev., says:

"I left San Francisco this morning with my family, Henry Nicolaus, and Carl Conrad. The earthquake which shook San Francisco made all frantic, and was undoubtedly the severest ever experienced in the United States. The beautiful Hotel St. Francis swayed from south to north like a tall poplar in a storm. Furniture, even pianos, was overturned, and people were thrown from their beds.

"I quickly summoned my family and friends, and urged them to escape to Jefferson Square, which we promptly did.

"An awful sight met our eyes. Every building was either partly or wholly wrecked, roofs and cornices were falling from skyscrapers on lower houses, crushing and burying the inmates.

"Fires started in all parts of the city, the main water pipes burst and flooded the streets. One earthquake followed the other. The people became terrified, but all behaved wonderfully calm. Over 100,000 persons are without shelter, camping on the hills. There is no light, water, or food. Fortunately, martial law was declared at once, and the regulars and militia maintained order and discipline. Otherwise more horrors would have occurred, and riots might have prevailed. Then the worst happened.

"The fire spread over three-fourths of the city, and could not be controlled; no water to fight it, no light, and the earth still trembling.

"Building after building was dismantled to check the progress of warring, seething flames, but all of no avail. We were fortunate to secure two conveyances and fled to Nob Hill, from which we witnessed the indescribable drama. Block after block was devastated. The fires blazed like volcanoes, and all business houses, hotels, theatres, in fact, the entire business portion, lay in ruins, and two-thirds of the residences; but I trust 'Frisco will rise a phoenix from its ashes, that a new and more beautiful San Francisco will be born and that the generous American Nation will give it the support and financial assistance it so fully deserves.

"After a night of horrors we boarded the ferry for Oakland, where my private car had been since Tuesday.

"We are now en route home with nothing saved but what is on our backs, but extremely happy at having escaped unharmed.

"ADOLPHUS BUSCH."

PROF. MATTEUCCI'S VIEW.

Says Vesuvius and Earthquake Are Diverse Effects of One Cause.

BERLIN, April 21.—Prof. Matteucci, Director of the Royal Observatory on Mount Vesuvius, answering an inquiry of the Lokal Anzeiger, telegraphs that the eruption of Mount Vesuvius and the California earthquake supply splendid confirmation of the general belief that volcanoes and earthquakes are diverse effects of one cause.

$1,000,000 NOW FROM NEW YORK

Fund for San Francisco May Be Twice That To-day.

POOR AND RICH HELP

An Anonymous Gift of $25,000 to One Fund.

CHURCH AND STAGE ACT

Standard Oil Sends $100,000 to the Coast—Committees Have Barely Organized, Too.

Contributions from this city for the relief of the San Francisco earthquake sufferers passed the $1,000,000 mark yesterday. And, with this large amount in the hands of the organizations having charge of the relief work in this city, further aid for the stricken people of San Francisco was pouring in last night. It is believed that by this evening the amount collected will have reached $2,000,000.

Contributions from outside cities have probably amounted to at least $1,500,000, Congress has appropriated $1,000,000, and independent gifts are being hurried to San Francisco.

Rich and poor alike are contributing. The gifts here yesterday varied from $100,000 to a dime. Churches and religious organizations last night sent word that the collections of next Sunday would be devoted to the San Francisco relief fund. Theatrical managers are preparing benefit performances for the earthquake sufferers which are expected to add at least $100,000 to the fund.

The relief fund was swelled yesterday by several large individual contributions. Andrew Carnegie sent a telegram from Philadelphia to Morris K. Jesup, President of the Chamber of Commerce, announcing that he would give $100,000 to the relief fund of that organization. Officers of the Standard Oil Company announced that they had duplicated John D. Rockefeller's gift of the previous day of $100,000, and that the money had already been sent by telegraph to San Francisco to be distributed by their agents. Another $100,000 contribution came from William Waldorf Astor, who cabled from London to his attorney, Charles A. Peabody, authorizing him to forward that sum to Mayor Schmitz or such persons as may be in charge of the relief work in San Francisco.

Giver of $25,000 Hides.

To the Mayor's relief fund were added yesterday four contributions of $25,000 each. W. K. Vanderbilt made one. One of them came from the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., another from the American Tobacco Company. The fourth was contributed by a person whose identity is not known to the Mayor. The Mayor has been informed that another contribution of an equal amount is on the way and will reach him to-day.

The anonymous contributor had taken great pains to prevent his name from becoming public. The Mayor was sitting in his office a little after 1 o'clock yesterday when the anonymous contribution arrived. It was brought by a messenger, who placed twenty-five new one-thousand-dollar bills in the Mayor's hands.

"Who is the generous giver of this magnificent sum?" asked the Mayor.

"I cannot tell you from whom it comes, but I can assure you that it is clean money, every dollar of it," said the messenger.

When the Mayor suggested that he would have to make some acknowledgment of the contribution on the list and that some name would be necessary for the purpose, the messenger replied:

"Write in the list that it is a contribution from a friend of humanity."

This was done. The Mayor said he had not the faintest idea who the anonymous contributor was and no one at the City Hall recognized the messenger.

While the relief movement in reality was not formally launched until yesterday, when the first meeting of the Mayor's relief committee was held, and the Chamber of Commerce committee was appointed at another meeting, the contributions received were already large enough far to overshadow any precedent set in this country. In addition to this, there were many contributions made directly by individuals or corporations, and these did not get on any of the contribution lists.

The local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce received word from its main office in Montreal yesterday that the manager of the bank in San Francisco had been authorized to advance for relief to the earthquake sufferers $25,000 of the bank's funds. The banking firm of Brown Brothers & Co. received yesterday a telegram from Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco acknowledging the receipt of $10,000 donated through the Bank of California. The banking firm of N. W. Harris & Co. remitted directly yesterday the sum of $2,000.

Total Pledged so Far.

Chamber of Commerce	$343,320
Mayor's Relief Fund	137,013
New York Stock Exchange	120,000
John D. Rockefeller	100,000
Standard Oil Company	100,000
William Waldorf Astor	100,000
Red Cross (estimated)	60,000
Merchants' Association	47,230
Cotton Exchange	15,610
Consolidated Exchange	5,000
Produce Exchange	3,500
Miscellaneous	122,555
Total	$1,154,223

The Mayor's Committee of One Hundred met at the City Hall yesterday afternoon, and after organizing appointed an Executive Committee to take active charge of the work of collecting funds. It is probable that this committee will open headquarters in the City Hall to-day.

The Executive Committee is composed of Robert W. De Forest, Chairman; Myles Tierney and Alfred T. White, Vice Presidents; Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer; Robert E. Hebbard, Morris K. Jesup, Cleveland H. Dodge, Charles A. Schieren, St. Clair McKelway, Nathan Bijur, Thomas M. Mulry, Isaac N. Seligman, E. T. Devine, the Rev. D. J. McMahon, Lee Fraenckel, and W. H. Allen.

The Mayor was at a hearing on the Elsberg bill when the time fixed for the meeting arrived, but he adjourned long enough to call the committee meeting to order.

"I want to thank you," the Mayor said, "for responding so quickly to my call, and to apologize for not sending you each a personal notice, but lack of time prevented any formality. None of us has succeeded in reaching Mayor Schmitz, but after considerable consultation we have reached the conclusion that San Francisco needs help and needs it quick. I have no doubt that the contributions will be generous, and it is for this committee to devise methods for handling the money."

The Mayor, after nominating Mr. De Forest permanent Chairman, hurried back to the hearing. Mr. De Forest made a short address.

"We all know why we are here," Mr. De Forest said; "the profound sympathy which we, as citizens of New York, feel toward the misfortunes of citizens of sister cities is finding its expression not in mere words of regret, but in action directly intended to relieve their needs.

"It is all important from my own point of view that the many different spontaneous efforts to give aid, which are naturally springing up in all parts of our beloved country, should be co-ordinated and concentrated. Otherwise, they will be in large part wasted.

"I trust that efforts to collect money for this purpose will be concentrated in the agencies already designated by the President and by the Governor of our State for that purpose, and it is a happy coincidence that Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, who was named by our Mayor as Treasurer of his committee, should at the time be, without his knowledge, Treasurer of the New York Branch of the Red Cross Society, and that that society, without our knowledge, should have appointed as its special agent a member of our own committee, who left for California before his appointment was announced.

"I trust that contributions will not come merely from the rich, who are generously giving their thousands and tens of thousands, but equally from the poor, who may not even be able to give their dollar."

Those present included Archbishop Farley, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, Capt. Thomas Holland of the Salvation Army, John D. Crimmins, M. Warkley Platzek, Oscar S. Straus, Richard Young, Isaac N. Seligman, Mortimer H. Schiff, William Berri, R. Fulton Cutting, Nathan S. Jonas, James W. Gerard, John Fox, Herman Ridder, Eugene A. Philbin, Thomas F. McAvoy, Richard Croker, Jr., Macgrane Coxe, Louis Stern, J. J. Gillespie, Col. William Hester, President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, Controller Metz, and about thirty others.

Mr. De Forest read the Mayor's proclamation. Then the officers and the Executive Committee were appointed. R. Fulton Cutting spoke opposing any indiscriminate forwarding of money to San Francisco, saying that in the case of such a catastrophe as this there was every likelihood of an indiscriminate distribution of the funds. Controller Metz was on his feet and objected at once. He said that San Francisco undoubtedly was quite capable of taking care of the distribution of funds.

Not for the Red Cross.

After the regular meeting, the Executive Committee met in the audience room at City Hall. The committee adopted a resolution which practically will leave the Red Cross organization out of the handling of the funds collected by the Mayor's committee, as it provided for the handling of the funds so far as possible through local committees or organizations in the cities and towns to which relief is to be sent. The committee will meet again on Tuesday afternoon.

The Chamber of Commerce held its meeting to launch the relief work movement at 12:30 o'clock. The large hall of the Chamber was filled when the meeting was called to order by President Jesup. He said:

"No explanation is necessary as to why this meeting has been called. We are facing a dreadful calamity and we are here to express our sympathy and to offer our services. We are here to work."

Charles Stewart Smith immediately offered these resolutions, which were adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, An inscrutable calamity of appalling magnitude has overtaken our sister city of San Francisco, causing the death of a large number of its citizens and depriving thousands of their homes and of the necessities of life; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this Chamber is desirous to convey to the Mayor of San Francisco, and through him to its citizens, an expression of its profound sympathy in their terrible affliction.

"Resolved, Second, that a special committee be appointed by the President, of which he shall be Chairman, whose duty it shall be to receive subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers and to dispose of the same in such manner as the committee may deem advisable to accomplish the best results."

Mr. Smith then said:

"Mr. President, no words can add to the impression which the awful facts convey. In some respects this dreadful calamity seems unparalleled in the history of the world."

The special committee appointed by President Jesup is composed of:

Morris K. Jesup, Charles S. Smith, Alexander E. Orr, John S. Kennedy, Vernon H. Brown, Isidor Straus, Cornelius N. Bliss, Seth Low, J. Edward Simmons, John Harsen Rhoades, Gustav H. Schwab, A. Barton Hepburn, A. Foster Higgins, Anton A. Raen, George F. Seward, J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., Levi P. Morton, Joseph H. Choate, Horace Porter, Cleveland H. Dodge, August Belmont, John Crosby Brown, Isaac N. Seligman, James Speyer, John Claflin, D. O. Mills, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., James Stillman, Clarence H. Mackay, William Bayard Cutting, Robert C. Clowry, Charles A. Moore, Mortimer L. Schiff, James T. Woodward, John T. Terry, Charles A. Schieren, D. Willis James, Henry A. Sloane, and Henry Hentz.

Immediately after the Chamber meeting the special committee held an executive session and elected these officers: Morris K. Jesup, Chairman; Charles Stewart Smith, and Alexander E. Orr, Vice Chairmen, and J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., Treasurer. The committee will meet every day at noon until its work is done.

Catholics Act.

Special collections for the benefit of sufferers at San Francisco will be taken at all masses in the Catholic churches of the city on Sunday, April 29.

The collections are ordered in a letter sent out to all Catholic pastors by Archbishop Farley after a meeting of prominent Catholic laymen of the city last night. The sum of $11,900 was raised offhand at the meeting, and the amount to be collected at the various churches throughout the city is expected to swell this into probably ten times that figure. Following is Archbishop Farley's letter:

"The appalling calamity that has fallen on the City of San Francisco, and which has been so destructive to life and property, calls for our immediate aid and sympathy. The whole world indeed has been profoundly stirred by the disastrous event. In all sections of our country steps are being taken to go to the rescue of the stricken people of our sister city, and to rush forward as rapidly as possible the means for the alleviation of their pitiful condition.

"Our Catholic brethren of that city have been involved in the general catastrophe. Churches, schools, hospitals, convents, and asylums are in ruins.

"To give, therefore, practical impression to the sentiments that fill the souls of the Catholic people, you will please announce at all masses next Sunday that a collection will be taken up at each of the masses on the following Sunday, April 29, for the benefit of the San Francisco sufferers."

Archbishop Farley presided at the meeting and briefly explained its purpose. Following his remarks the following subscribed the amounts indicated:

Archbishop Farley, $1,000; Henry Heide, $2,500; John D. Crimmins, $1,000; Peter Doelger, $1,000; James Butler, $1,000; Herman Ridder, $1,000; Eugene Kelly, $1,000; Thomas H. Kelly, $1,000; W. Bourke Cockran, $1,000; James S. Coleman, $300; John B. Manning, $100; John Fox, $250, and Dr. F. J. Quinlan, $250.

John D. Crimmins was elected Treasurer of the fund and will receive subscriptions. Mgrs. Lavelle, Mooney, and Edwards were present.

The Red Cross organization sent out yesterday to San Francisco as an aide to Dr. Devine, who left on Thursday, Miss Lucille Eaves, formerly the head worker of a San Francisco settlement.

The Red Cross organization sent out a new appeal yesterday, which called for not only funds for the relief of the sufferers, but also for clothing and supplies. All articles should be distinctly labeled "For the Red Cross Relief, San Francisco, Cal.," to insure the free transportation to the West that the railroad companies have offered.

All day yesterday there was a constant stream of contributors, both at the uptown offices of the Red Cross at 500 Fifth Avenue and at 52 William Street, the office of Jacob H. Schiff, its Treasurer, where relief subscriptions were received.

The teachers and Principals of the public schools and high schools of New York have taken a step to aid the sufferers and the helpless of the San Francisco disaster. At most of the schools yesterday there were no lessons, but both teachers and pupils talked of the disaster.

Dr. Buchanan, Principal of the De Witt Clinton High School, went around to all the classes yesterday and appointed a committee to take care of the funds which it will try to raise.

To Public School 171, at 103d Street and Madison Avenue, every teacher took a little safe yesterday morning. The children will try to fill the safes to-day.

Rector's, the restaurant at Forty-fourth Street and Times Square, will give its entire receipts on Wednesday to the San Francisco relief fund. This includes everything—even the waiters' tips. Charles E. Rector said last night:

"Everything that is taken in at the restaurant Wednesday, all day, will be given to the relief fund. I have decided on this with the consent of my entire establishment. We hope that Wednesday will be a record-breaking day."

Miss Eva Booth, Commander of the Salvation Army forces in this country, sent out announcement yesterday that she had called a large open air mass meeting in Union Square in aid of the San Francisco earthquake sufferers for to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It was announced that Joseph H. Choate would act as Chairman and Bishop Coadjutor Greer, Gen. Fred. D. Grant, and the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur would speak.

The Salvation Army "Keep the pot boiling" stands, which are a familiar sight on the streets at Christmas time, were brought out yesterday to receive the mite of the passer-by on behalf of the earthquake victims.

A cablegram was received at the office of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company in this city, saying that the company had started a fund for the earthquake sufferers in Bremen by subscribing $25,000. It also announced that President George Plate of the company had sent a cable message to President Roosevelt expressing sympathy.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company yesterday issued a circular order to all its agents to accept for transportation free of charge all supplies consigned to the authorized relief committees in San Francisco and vicinity. It was also announced that the connections of the company at the Niagara frontier, the Grand Trunk, Wabash, Michigan Central, Nickel Plate, Lake Shore, and Père Marquette would accept such shipments under the same conditions.

The Southern Railway also announced that it would handle relief supplies free.

The National Federation of Churches sent out an appeal yesterday calling upon all religious organizations to take up a collection to-morrow for the earthquake sufferers and forward the money collected either to their denominational representatives in San Francisco or to the Red Cross.

COTTON BROKERS GIVE AID.

Raise $16,000 for San Francisco Relief Despite Mayor's Oversight.

Some feeling was manifested yesterday among cotton brokers at Mayor McClellan's failure to invite them to participate in the general relief fund for the San Francisco sufferers. This did not dampen their public spirit, however. Although their Exchange holds second place in the financial district, the brokers thought that in the excitement of the moment the Mayor might have overlooked them in his appeal to the various Exchanges.

The members of the Cotton Exchange nevertheless were not to be outdone. They made liberal subscriptions among themselves without any appeal, the action being spontaneous. The total amount raised yesterday was $15,610, and more will, it is expected, be added to-day. The subscription list was headed by Lehman Brothers with $2,500, and the donations ranged from that down to $5.

Following are the contributions:

Morning Shopping. One More Mention.

THE ADVANTAGES of MORNING SHOPPING are so large and so many that we cannot forbear saying another word.

The Loeser Store is giving splendid service at all times. We gear it up to take care of the great crowds which are thronging the aisles every pleasant afternoon of this beautiful Spring season. A business immense beyond all precedent is being handled with less friction than ever before possible in any Brooklyn Store.

But because the store-machinery is so high geared, those who come in the morning hours, when the crowds are less, find a store service that closely approximates perfection.

The great stocks are at their freshest and best then. You can find what you want without any delay. You can do in half an hour what might take twice or three times that in the middle of the afternoon.

Safe Summer Storage For Furs.

NO NEED TO FRET AND WORRY. No need to be opening and closing a trunk a dozen or more times during the Summer to see if the Furs are safe.

The Loeser Cold Dry Air Storage System

Is the absolutely safe Summer storage for Furs, Clothing, Rugs, Draperies, etc.

We guarantee against all losses.

In an atmosphere perfectly dry and the temperature constantly kept several degrees below freezing, moths or other insects cannot live. When your Furs come to us, before being put in storage, they are thoroughly cleaned and then they are hung separately in the storage plant, in order that the cold air may reach every part of them.

A postal card or a phone message will bring a man to your house.

Men's Spring Clothing.
Correct : Distinctive : Low Priced.

THE MAN WHO TAKES THE TROUBLE TO INVESTIGATE finds that there is a great deal more of good Clothing ADVERTISING these days than there is of good CLOTHING.

This is an advertisement which it is expensive to print. It is calculated to bring some men into the Loeser STORE FOR MEN. But if the men come in and buy a single Suit or Overcoat and never come back again for more the advertising is largely wasted.

This Clothing business is built on a PERMANENT BASIS. We are endeavoring to sell to every man who lives in Brooklyn and wants good Clothes, not only a first Suit, but EVERY SUIT HE BUYS. That is why we can afford to make a little less than the ordinary profit on each suit of Clothes, and afford to put a great deal more thought and work than usual into the production of those Clothes.

Loeser Clothes for Men have a distinctive style and many points of finish that you will not find in ordinary ready-for-service Clothing. But we could produce Clothing just as distinctive in appearance when you first put it on—AND WOULD COST ABOUT A THIRD LESS.

The difference is in the INSIDE TAILOR WORK and that difference means that the one Suit will wear and hold its shape and style while the other will go out of shape in two or three weeks.

In the new Clothes you will get for Spring we should like to show you what we mean. We believe you will find a greater variety of styles for selection here than in any other one store in Brooklyn. To-day we especially emphasize

The Remarkable Suits at $20 and $25.

They illustrate in splendid manner the distinctiveness and special excellence of Loeser Clothing. Most of the fabrics are exclusive and we show a very large assortment of the newest shades and patterns. There are unfinished worsteds and velour finished fabrics, including both imported and domestic cloths. No matter how particular you are or how much you have been accustomed to pay for your Clothing, we commend to your examination to-day these Suits at....$20 and $25

ALL WASHINGTON BUSY EXPEDITING THE RELIEF

Reorganized Army Sends Supplies with Great Speed.

5,000 MEN FOR 'FRISCO

Small Army Will Be There Soon—Everything Turned Over to Funston and His Able Aides.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Interest and effort in Washington to-day still centred in the situation in San Francisco and the measures taken and to be taken for furnishing prompt relief. President Roosevelt sent his personal check for $1,000 to the Red Cross office here, and his contribution was followed by those of many other men prominent in official life.

A meeting of citizens of Washington was held this morning at the Willard Hotel. Nearly $20,000 was subscribed, $10,000 of which was forwarded to Mayor Schmitz by telegraph. At the request of Secretary Taft another resolution was passed by Congress specifically authorizing the use of Government medical stores and supplies, which had been omitted from the resolution appropriating $1,000,000 passed yesterday.

The main work of the day here fell to the army. Gen. Bell, the new Chief of Staff, was on the jump constantly, and so was Gen. Humphrey, the Chief Quartermaster. This is the first test to which the reorganized army has been put, and the machine has responded as smoothly and efficiently as the finest engine. All that was needed was to turn on the steam, and when that was done by the issuance of the first orders, the response was immediate and perfect.

The work of Gen. Humphrey gives an illustration of how the new machine is working. When the order to send supplies to San Francisco was received by him yesterday he stood at his desk in the War Department, with stenographers on each side, and for an hour or two, as one of the General Staff officers put it, "fairly spouted" orders to the Depot Quartermasters. To each officer specific instructions were given as to what to send and how to send it. The number of tents, for instance, was given in each case, and so on all through the long list of different supplies. Each Depot Quartermaster was instructed to forward everything by express. He was ordered to acknowledge the receipt of his orders immediately and to notify Gen. Humphrey as soon as the supplies were loaded, and again when they started.

Got Replies Soon.

A string of replies was received by Gen. Humphrey within a few hours after the issuance of the orders, and to-day the telegrams have been rolling in announcing the shipment of the material. In each case the Depot Quartermaster notified his chief that a telegram had also been sent to Major Devol, the Depot Quartermaster at San Francisco, telling him what the shipment consisted of, the numbers and initials of the cars containing it, and when it was to be expected at San Francisco.

The familiarity of Gen. Humphrey with the stores on hand at the various depots was simply amazing. He hardly referred to a single document, but stood at his desk reeling off directions as if he were reciting his alphabet.

Meantime Gen. Bell was handling the other matters that required action by the army chiefs. Incidentally he was getting from the railroads the right of way for the army shipments, and arranging to have them sent through at top speed all the way. There was considerable telegraphic communication yesterday with Gen. Funston, in command at San Francisco, messages going to him on all sorts of subjects. There has been a flood of requests to the War Department to ask Funston for information of a personal nature as to the safety or whereabouts of many persons. The Treasury Department, unable to communicate with Assistant United States Treasurer Julius Jacobs, who was at the head of the Sub-Treasury in San Francisco, enlisted the aid of the army and had a message sent to Funston asking him to try to locate the missing official.

As soon as Gen. Humphrey had finished sending out the orders for shipment of supplies to the desolated city, he turned his attention to reckoning the loss of the Government through the destruction of the stores on hand in San Francisco, in order to submit to Congress estimates for an emergency appropriation to make them good. When he footed up the value of the supplies ordered forwarded for the relief work he found it to be already more than the amount appropriated by Congress yesterday. His total was $1,282,000. In addition, the Medical Department has sent forward supplies worth $357,000. So far as can be judged from the meagre information that has been received, the loss on stores in the San Francisco depots will aggregate $4,000,000. When Gen. Humphrey had completed the emergency estimates to-night they totaled more than $6,000,000.

While the army officers were thus busy with relief work the Cabinet at its regular meeting was discussing the situation and the measures taken to alleviate it. It was determined that Secretary Metcalf of the Department of Commerce and Labor should go to San Francisco at once in the capacity of the President's personal representative. Mr. Metcalf's home is in Oakland, and he has been a heavy loser financially through the disaster. He will keep in touch with Gov. Pardee and Mayor Schmitz and keep the President informed constantly as to the situation and what can be done by the National Government in the way of further assistance. He started West this afternoon.

The improvement of telegraphic facilities at San Francisco was apparent to-day from the increased number of messages which arrived from Gen. Funston and his subordinates, and the messages which came to the Navy Department. Early in the day Funston wired that he had ordered ten companies of the Fourteenth Infantry from Vancouver Barracks to come to San Francisco at once. He had also ordered two battalions of the Twentieth Infantry up from Monterey, with a squadron of the Fourteenth Cavalry. But the order to Monterey had not been acknowledged, which made him suspect that it had not been delivered. Gen. Bell promptly repeated the order from here, and in due time received word from Monterey that Funston's order had been brought by a navy torpedo boat just before the Washington order came.

Admiral McCalla, in command at Mare Island, wired that he had visited San Francisco last night and added that his judgment was that food and shelter were the principal needs. He also said that marines and bluejackets would be sent to assist the troops under Funston.

Gen. Funston had about 2,500 men before ordering up those from Monterey and Vancouver Barracks. The additions will number about 2,000. Men have also been landed from the cruiser Chicago and the gunboat Marblehead. These, with the battalion of marines from Mare Island, under command of Lieut. Col. Karmany, will make about 5,000 of all arms of the three services on duty in the devastated district.

They will have their work cut out for them no less when the immediate excitement attendant upon the fire has subsided than now when everything in San Francisco is disturbed.

Many an army officer to-day has made the comment, "Lucky Funston," because the captor of Aguinaldo happened to be on the spot when the crisis came, and had the opportunity to show what he could do. Throughout the army he is receiving high praise for the manner in which he has done his work and for the promptness with which he shouldered all responsibility of getting in with his men without waiting for orders.

Army officers here say, too, that Funston is lucky in having two such men under him as Devol, the Depot Quartermaster, and Krauthoff, the Division Commissary. Both saw service in the Philippines, under Gen. Otis, when the army of occupation numbered about 70000 men, and the experience they had then will stand them in good stead now. Devol's work in San Francisco will be to supervise the issuance of the tents, blankets, and clothing supplied by the army, and the handling of all the mountains of supplies shipped in from all over the country, its transportation to temporary depots and to the distribution centres. Krauthoff will have charge of the issuance of rations to the thousands of people who will have to depend on such aid for an indefinite time.

Both are men of the type Mulvaney described "with all their teeth in their sockets and their two feet beneath them," and Funston is indeed lucky to have such assistants.

The General Stores.

With all his temporary work caused by the disaster, Devol has a full-sized job laid out for him by the destruction of the general stores in the depots. San Francisco was the general base for the Philippines, and the supplies destroyed included everything needed by the army in the Far East. A comfortable margin is always kept on hand in the Philippines, so that the loss in San Francisco will not cause any immediate hardship if Congress does not delay in passing the emergency appropriation that will be asked for to-morrow to renew the lost supplies. But the work of preparing the new temporary depot and handling the replaced supplies, looking out for their shipment to Manila and all that, will be no light addition to the work directly necessitated by the disaster.

In the work at San Francisco Devol and Krauthoff will have the assistance of Capt. Jesse M. Baker, who has been ordered down from Vancouver Barracks, at Portland. Capt. Baker had experience in the distribution of the Federal relief after the Johnstown flood.

The department here has made no suggestion to Gen. Funston as to the handling of the relief in San Francisco. It will be left entirely to him, and to Gen. Greely, the Commander in Chief of the Pacific Division, who turned back from Chicago this morning and is returning to his post instead of coming here to be present at the wedding of his daughter next week, as he had started to do. Army officers here say there probably will be established great concentration camps in the parks of San Francisco as soon as possible, which will be guarded and policed by soldiers. Sub-depots of supplies will be established at these camps, so that the distribution will be facilitated. It is not expected that this distribution will be necessary for a long time, as the demand for labor which is bound to arise as soon as order is restored will enable practically every able-bodied man to establish himself on a self-supporting basis promptly.

The Post Office Department had its first reliable news from its service in the devastated district to-day, in the shape of a message from Postmaster Fiske of San Francisco. An agent from one of the outside towns who was sent up to San Francisco as soon as the department had word of the disaster, failed utterly to give any information. He reached Oakland, took apparently one look, and wired the department in panic that everything was gone. That was the last heard of him.

Mr. Fiske reported that the main building was standing and that the mail and papers had been saved. Five of the fourteen branch stations were saved—B, C, E, K, and O, and No. 36 of the fifty-four sub-stations. Mr. Fiske thinks other substations were not destroyed, but had not obtained definite information. He advised the department that he was already planning to handle the mails which are piling up at San Francisco. He will establish a main office in a large tent, with branches at the several concentration camps.

The service, so far as Mr. Fiske has learned, had lost none of its men, so that they will be able to handle the mails as usual. The mails will be sorted as if to go out by the carriers, who will then deliver letters to the owners as they call for them.

Mr. Fiske believes that no appreciable amount of mail was lost in the disaster, as the morning collection was finished at 5:15, just as the first shock came, and the mail was all at the Post Office.

Mayor Schmitz sent this telegram to President Roosevelt to-day:

"Generous contribution of $1,000,000 from the Federal Government for relief of destitute persons received and deeply appreciated. The people are overwhelmed by your generosity. All of this money will be used for relief purposes.

"Property owners determined to rebuild as soon as fire ceases. City will immediately proceed to provide capital for the purpose of reconstructing public buildings, schools, jails, hospitals, sewers, and salt and fresh-water systems. The people hope that the Federal Government will at once provide ample appropriations to rebuild all Federal buildings on a scale befitting the new San Francisco. We are determined to restore to the Nation its chief port on the Pacific."

THE EASY OIL.

Scott's Emulsion is "the easy oil"—easy to take, easy in action. Its use insures deliverance from the griping and nauseating sensation peculiar to the raw oil. Nobody who has any regard for the stomach thinks of taking cod liver oil in the old way when Scott's Emulsion is to be had. It is equally certain that no one whose health is properly regarded will accept a cheap emulsion or alcoholic substitute for Scott's Emulsion. It fulfills every mission of cod liver oil and more.

100 CIRCUS WAGONS TO COLLECT SUPPLIES

Special Train Will Start for San Francisco To-morrow.

THE RAILROADS WILL HELP

Money and Supplies to be Collected All Over the Country by Barnum & Bailey Agent.

One hundred big circus vans, each drawn by from four to eight horses, will start out at noon to-day to make a house-to-house canvass of the city, to gather up contributions of clothing of all kinds, any kinds of eatables not perishable, and even offerings of money. All the supplies thus gathered will be shipped as fast as possible to San Francisco by the management of the Barnum & Bailey Circus, now playing at the Madison Square Garden.

Moreover, the receipts of both performances under canvas on Monday in Brooklyn, whither the circus will move to-night, will be contributed to the relief fund for the San Francisco sufferers. The plan of relief was suggested to the circus management by L. E. Cooke, General Agent of the Barnum & Bailey Circus, and he was sent to San Francisco yesterday.

Mr. Cooke will stop at all the larger cities on his way to the coast, to organize a force of wagons and men to collect contributions in the manner in which the work is to be done in Manhattan and Brooklyn. Communication has already been had with various Mayors, and the replies have been all in favor of the plan.

The management of the circus communicated yesterday with Vice President Brown and several other officers of the New York Central relative to the contribution of special trains to carry the donations of Manhattan and Brooklyn and of the other large cities along its route. The New York Central said it would furnish a million cars if necessary, and would start a special movement to collect cars from all points along the lines of the system for that purpose. The American Express Company, it is expected, will furnish special cars to hurry to San Francisco to collect money contributions on the way.

The circus management hopes that the plan of collecting things to eat and things to wear and contributions of money from the larger cities along their routes will be carried out by all the trunk lines leaving New York and reaching San Francisco. The express companies operating along those lines have agreed to collect the money contributions free of charge and forward them to San Francisco.

Mr. Cooke will reach San Francisco about the time the trains begin to arrive with the money and supplies, and he will see to it that everything donated reaches the proper relief committees appointed by Mayor Schmitz. A telegram has already been sent to notify him of the movement.

It had been planned to start the big circus wagons on their house-to-house canvass yesterday, but the contract for a number of huge signs needed to show what the wagons were for had not been executed. The circus management, however, is confident that everything will be in readiness by noon to-day.

As the goods are collected, they will be loaded directly from the wagons into cars at Madison Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, and as soon as enough cars are filled a special train will be started for San Francisco, picking up other cars along the line. One train will start to-morrow evening.

The circus management entered enthusiastically into this plan of relief because, as Tody Hamilton said, everybody knew it would have pleased the late James A. Bailey as much as it has pleased his widow.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Mayor Schmitz sent to-night the following telegram:

Louis E. Cook, 75 East Thirty-fourth Street, New York:

Grateful for your generous telegram. California heartily thanks you. We need tents, bedding, and food supplies. We require comforters and blankets in large number. Thousands of our people are sleeping in the open air without sufficient covering.

We particularly need adequate supplies of disinfectants to establish sanitary camps; also drugs and hospital materials. A committee of fifty has been appointed. Chairmen of the sub-committees are: Commissary Committee, Rabbi Vorsanger; Housing Homeless, W. J. Barnett; Finance Committee, James D. Phelan.

All telegrams addressed to Franklin Hall, Relief Commitee, San Francisco, will have prompt atention by Chairman of proper committee.

In your telegram you speak of ready cash. Would suggest that considerable currency of small denomination be sent. This is important, as all our banking quarters are destroyed. We would greatly appreciate if New York bankers would arrange to co-operate with California bankers with a view of securing temporary relief so that fiscal operations may be resumed at the earliest date possible.

San Francisco will rebuild. We want to resume the transaction of our usual business in the shortest time possible.

INSURANCE LOSSES UNDER $200,000,000

Confidence Expressed by New York Underwriters.

TO MAKE QUICK ADJUSTMENTS

No Quibbling, Says Mr. Correa—Directors Believe Bulk of Mortgages Will Not Be Touched.

After careful perusal of the dispatches from San Francisco yesterday, the belief steadily grew among insurance men here, in view of the fact that the fire is now under control, that the damage for which the underwriters are liable cannot equal $200,000,000.

In fact, it is pretty generally believed that the total will fall some millions short of this sum. The property loss in the Chicago fire was between $165,000,000 and $170,000,000.

For the San Francisco fire $200,000,000 has been taken as the maximum sum the companies would have to pay. With the checking of the fire, underwriters hope that areas which seemed doomed may prove to have escaped the flames, thus cutting down the maximum to be paid by a good percentage.

The only reason the underwriters were not confident that the loss would be considerably less was the delay of the San Francisco representatives in sending any information. Could they have sent estimates showing any considerable saving within easy margins of comfortable payment, it is believed that they would have done so.

Preparing to Adjust Losses.

While information as to the extent of the burned areas of San Francisco was of the most meagre at the close of business here yesterday, underwriters have begun their arrangements to ascertain and adjust their losses. The choice of the adjusters is being made quickly. One New York company, which sent seven adjusters to the Baltimore fire two years ago, plans to send those seven and thirteen others to San Francisco. This is only one instance of the general course which all the large companies will pursue.

Several British managers were advised by cable that at a joint meeting in London yesterday a formal resolution was adopted, instructing the foreign underwriters to act with the American companies, as they have been accustomed to do in the past.

Benoni Lockwood, President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, said that the policy holders and the adjusters would undoubtedly find upon meeting that each would be disposed to arrive as speedily as possible at what would be the fair settlement of the loss claims.

"There will be no friction in the adjustment of the losses," declared William N. Kremer, President of the German-American Insurance Company. "Adjusters with full authority to act will be sent from the East to expedite matters. Each company will be anxious to make a record, as they were in the case of the Baltimore fire, to pay its losses quickly and to the satisfaction of the insured. We expect the City of San Francisco to rise from her ashes a bigger and better city than ever.

"If we treat our patrons well out there in their emergency we will get the business on the new and better buildings which will go up. It is to our interest, laying aside the question of humanity and accommodation to our fellow-men, to make settlements promptly.

"At the time of the Baltimore fire the insurance companies paid out $39,000,000, and the work of adjustment was carried on so fairly and promptly that we have yet to hear of any serious complaint."

Will Not Try to Quibble.

Vice President Correa of the Home Insurance Company had this to say:

"Any company which tries to avoid its liability by subterfuge in regard to the relation of the earthquake to the fire might just as well stop business. One or two of the large companies have been affected seriously, but they will not try to quibble as to their liability for fire losses. They will take their medicine and get ready to obtain new business by quick payments and fair adjustments."

Several underwriters of large companies, who went over figures as to outstanding insurance again yesterday, saw little reason for changing their previous day's method of estimating their total amount at stake in the stricken city. These estimates totaled $238,880,000. As to the percentage of loss, no company knows accurately, or can know for some days yet.

A few underwriters announced estimates of their losses, but the figures were computed upon a basis of wasted territory, which for forty-eight hours has been so far wide of the probably true mark as to make the announcements guesswork and too conservative to represent actual conditions, as shown by the news dispatches.

Many of the larger foreign companies will receive their home office reports direct from the Pacific Coast, so that their New York offices cannot give any idea as to the losses probable. Some of the American companies report to Hartford and Chicago, so that the first adequate statement of all losses is likely to come from the headquarters, which the small army of adjusters will establish in or near the wrecked city.

There seems to be little question that nearly one-third of the losses will be paid by draft upon European funds under instructions from home offices of foreign concerns. That will diminish by a considerable amount the money which would have to go from the Eastern States. A curious condition exists in regard to a few of the larger companies outside of this city. Were they called upon to pay instantly the amounts for which they now believe that they will be liable they would stand impaired. But before they can possibly ascertain what they should pay they will have completed arrangements to finance the situation, and no weakness can be developed. Upon the added investment handsome returns through new business on the strength of fair settlements and quick adjustments are expected. While there is much apprehension as to how strong some few companies may be after the settlements, underwriters expect that the full payments will be made without trouble to the policy holders.

May Disturb Few Mortgages.

Directors of a number of New York companies conferred informally yesterday as to the most expedient methods of preparing to pay the losses the moment the adjusters learn what the losses are. The opinion was expressed by the Chairman of one company's Finance Committee that quickly marketable assets are sufficiently large to leave the great bulk of mortgage investments undisturbed.

Everywhere the one comparison made was with the Chicago fire. While the San Francisco loss promises to exceed the Chicago loss by millions, the companies of the present are tremendously stronger and better able to pay. In 1871, only forty companies were able to pay their losses in full, while fifty-seven companies went to the wall. The number of companies was 335, but of this total many were so weak as to be unable to face any conflagration. By consolidation and growth, the number is much less to-day, and the individual company is far more than proportionately stronger.

To-day the companies are figuring on how to pay quickly, while in 1871 many small concerns were so embarrassed that they never figured what their total liability was.

Amounts Paid at Chicago.

The forty companies which paid Chicago losses in full, and the amounts they paid, follow:

Adriatic	$8,500	Howard	473,110

Home	2,139,203	Sterling	7,500
		W'msburg C'y.	60,000
		Total	$7,262,201

It was this conflagration which taught the underwriters how to prepare for successive conflagrations which they have weathered in recent years, including the Baltimore fire, and bringing them in good condition to the San Francisco disaster.

BRITISH COMPANIES STRONG.

Preparing for Big Remittances to America—Insurance Shares Fall.

Special Cables to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

LONDON, Saturday, April 21.—The London insurance experts say that the British fire companies will have no difficulty in promptly meeting all obligations arising from the San Francisco disaster, and will come out of the ordeal with their soundness unimpaired.

The Times in its city article suggests that the effect of the disaster on the financial strength of the British companies easily may be exaggerated.

"Even suppose," it says, "that at the worst the British companies affected had to pay eventually £10,000,000 of their total liabilities in San Francisco. This amount represents only six months' net premium income.

"During the past three years, in spite of the Baltimore and Ottawa conflagrations, the reserves of the companies have been strengthened by fully £6,750,000. Of the amounts paid in dividends, about £2,000,000 are derived from interest on earnings. The reserves and paid-up capital of about £40,000,000 can bear even such an unlikely drain as the loss at San Francisco of £10,000,000, and dividends in most cases will not be materially affected."

I have heard no expression of doubt as to the ability of the companies to meet their obligations, but there was an emphatic expression on the Stock Exchange to-day of the conviction that shares in the companies carrying San Francisco risks are not as valuable as they were before the earthquake.

London Assurance, which sold on April 12 at 73-5, sold to-day at 60-5; Commercial Union fell from 92-3 to 82-4; North British and Mercantile, from 44-6 to 39-4; Phoenix, 41-3 to 32-5; Royal Exchange, 319-24 to 300-10; Liverpool and London and Globe, 52-4 to 43-5. It is reported that the sales were made by timid shareholders who are rated as outsiders and that the holdings they disposed of were not heavy. Some companies were sellers to-day of gilt-edged stocks, their managers holding it wise to make early provision for San Francisco claims.

There also was selling of these same stocks by bears, who rather count on a depression in this market as a consequence of the American disaster. They know at least one thing for a certainty, and that is that large remittances are bound to go from London to New York to settle the obligations of the British companies in San Francisco. They believe there is some danger of a panic in New York, which would precipitate hasty withdrawals of gold from London.

The Times expresses the hope that the ultimate effect of the disaster will be to check speculation in the United States and so moderate the monetary needs of the country.

UNDERWRITERS FEARED IT.

Said Last Fall That a San Francisco Conflagration Would Come.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, April 20.—The National Board of Underwriters warned the people of San Francisco last Fall that the city was in danger of being wiped out.

Among the fire insurance men now in Cleveland are the members of the Committee of Twenty of the National Board of Underwriters. For the last two months this committee has been at work in Cleveland studying fire conditions. Last October they spent two months in San Francisco studying conditions. After speaking of bad fire conditions in San Francisco the report says:

"In fact, San Francisco has violated all underwriting traditions and precedent by not burning up. That it has not done so is largely due to the vigilance of the Fire Department, which cannot be relied upon indefinitely to stave off the inevitable."

READY FOR BUSINESS.

Just Waiting Until "She Gets Cool," American Surety Man Says.

Already the business men of San Francisco are taking steps to resume business in the ruined city. In most cases, of course, no trace is left of former offices. Some companies have opened temporary offices in the homes of some of their officers while awaiting a chance to get more appropriate quarters. Among the New York companies represented in San Francisco which have been left without the means of conducting business except in the crudest way is the American Surety Company.

The results of the fire upon that company's operations in San Francisco and the condition in which its representatives have been left are probably typical of many others. The company's New York office received yesterday this dispatch from H. W. Lobb, its general agent on the Pacific Coast, dated on Thursday from Alameda, across the bay from San Francisco:

> San Francisco devastated by earthquake and destroyed by fire. Still burning fiercely. City under martial law and no one allowed to enter. All business absolutely abandoned. Our office and records totally destroyed and no office buildings standing. Will use my home as temporary office until possible to make better arrangements. Send mail to 1,611 Santa Clara Avenue, Alameda. Will need duplicates of all records. Banks out of business temporarily. Better send money to make new beginning and authority to hire and furnish new quarters, if any can be found. Furniture insured. Will do business again as soon as she gets cool.

WILL REBUILD AT ONCE.

The Roeblings to Reconstruct Their Stores in San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 20.—The John A. Roebling's Sons' Company of this city received a telegram from San Francisco to-day announcing the total destruction of their store and warehouses in that city, extending from Fremont to Beale Street. The loss amounted to $500,000. The concern immediately passed a resolution to rebuild at once the burned properties.

Metz Hears of a Personal Loss.

Controller Herman A. Metz received a telegram yesterday from the Western manager of the Herman A. Metz Company, manufacturers of chemicals, stating that the company's San Francisco office, on Second Street, had been destroyed. The loss will be between $35,000 and $50,000.

Tuckahoe Man Hurt in 'Frisco.

The wife of Judge H. J. Cuthbert of Grifford Park, Tuckahoe, received a telegram from her husband yesterday which said that he had been slightly hurt in the fire that destroyed the Palace Hotel, San Francisco. He says he is coming home at once. He lost all he had with him, including four large trunks containing silver plate belonging to a company of Meriden, Conn., which he represented.

A NEW CHINATOWN TO RISE ON PACIFIC

Hongkong Syndicates Planning to Rebuild Their City.

FIRE CAUGHT GREAT CROWD

Quarter's Population Unprecedented This Spring—Many Chinamen May Come East—Exclusionists Feared.

With San Francisco's Chinatown, the largest Chinese settlement outside of China, destroyed—it occupied ten square blocks in the city's heart—a new Chinese city will be built on the Pacific Coast. A site will be purchased by a syndicate of Hongkong merchants, who already have the scheme well under way.

This information came to the Chinese merchants of New York yesterday. They were asked to lend a helping hand, so that the work of laying the foundation of the new city could be begun immediately. Tai Y. Hee of the importing house of Phong, Fat & Co., at 30 West Twenty-second Street, who has been named to head a Chinese relief committee here, said yesterday that the new Chinese city would probably be built at a point near San Francisco right on the beach.

Mr. Tai said that while many Chinamen were among those who had perished in the ruins of San Francisco, 20,000 had managed to get across the bay to Oakland, where some found accommodations in Oakland's Chinese quarter. The majority of the rich merchants of San Francisco's Chinatown, Mr. Tai said, were importing agents for large syndicates in China, and it was on these syndicates that much of the loss would fall. However, many of San Francisco's Chinese importers had lost every dollar they possessed, for some of them carried stocks of gold and silver jewelry of great value.

BIG CHINESE LOSSES.

"The firm of Sing Fat & Co., at 614 Dupont Street, of which my cousin is a member," said Mr. Tai, "was probably the largest firm of its kind in the world, and carried a stock valued at a million and a half dollars. They were in the heart of Chinatown in San Francisco, and were completely burned out.

"The firm of Wing Chong Wo, flour merchants, were at 716 Sacramento Street. They are the owners of big flour mills at Seattle, Portland, and Oakland, but their main headquarters were in San Francisco. As they were right in the line of the fire they probably lost half a million dollars.

"Sun Kam Wah, the Chinese millionaire of San Francisco, was at 716 Dupont Street, and his losses will foot up half a million. In fact, most all the importers and exporters along Dupont, Commercial, Clay, Washington, Jackson, Pacific, and Stockton Streets, Waverly Place, and Washington Alley have suffered losses that will amount to more than $10,000 each, and in many instances to $100,000. Chy Lung, at 640 Sacramento Street, did a great business with China, but from private information which I have received he has suffered great loss.

"Many of the Chinamen in San Francisco owned real estate in Chinatown, but some of them were backed by Hongkong syndicates, who will start them again in new buildings as soon as the work of erecting the new city gets under way."

Chinatown in San Francisco was bounded by California and Pacific Streets, and Kearney and Stockton Streets.

About 21,000 Chinamen lived there, many of whom had gone West only recently to work in the salmon fisheries. The normal population of Chinatown was about 17,000, but with the advent of Spring many Chinamen from other parts of the country had arrived, intending to remain for a few weeks. In fact, there were more Chinamen in San Francisco on the day of the disaster than had ever assembled there before. Not only was the Chinese quarter filled to overflowing, but in addition to the 3,000 employed as cooks and in laundries and in the twenty-four branches of the building trades, there were 4,000 others from the East who had gotten employment in the factories last month.

According to Le Compte, the Western Union telegraph operator who was the last to remain on duty, even after the city was in flames, many of the Chinamen gathered up their belongings and went up to the Golden Gate Park, where they camped out, but about 300 remained on guard in their shops until the roofs of the buildings caught fire.

Only a few of those who remained behind are believed to have escaped death, as they sat behind barred windows guarding their poultry and smoked fish until they themselves were smoked to death. Of couse, they were Chinamen of the lower class.

The bankers and traders were among the first to flee, and they are now safely housed with friends in Oakland. Some of them will make their homes in Oakland in the future, but the majority will go to the new Chinese city as soon as it is completed, because they will be able to transact their business as well in a new settlement as anywhere else, for the reason that much of their business consists of trade with China.

CHINESE WIVES TO GO EAST.

One of the big importers in New York's Chinatown said yesterday that several thousand of the burned-out Chinamen would probably come East and settle in New York. If they do this, he said, they would undoubtedly bring their Chinese wives, so that, instead of having half a dozen Chinese women here, New Yorkers would see four or five hundred. The Chinese women of San Francisco dressed very gaudily, with loose-fitting blouses of generous dimensions. They painted their faces so that the paint was easily discernible.

The destruction of San Francisco's Chinatown was discussed yesterday in New York's Chinatown by young and old, who, as they ate their rice and drank their tea, questioned each other as to the latest news. Every man in New York's Chinatown had sent a telegram to some friend or relative in San Francisco, but none had received answers.

This fact caused much worriment to the biggest part of our Chinatown's population, as the ignorant and innocent believed that no answer to a telegram meant that the person to whom it had been sent was dead. Consequently there was much wailing and weeping in the joss houses and groceries along Pell, Mott and Doyers Streets. Now and then some out-of-town Chinaman arrived to inquire as to the fate of a cousin in San Francisco. While the merchants explained that no news was good news, many of the visitors were of the opinion that no news meant that all San Francisco's Chinese population had been wiped out.

A NEW CHINATOWN.

Quan Shing, an up-State Chinaman, who had come into New York to inquire about his brother, who was in San Francisco, said that the only thing left for the burned-out Chinamen was to found a new city on the Pacific Coast, to take the place of San Francisco's Chinatown. He said that, while men of other nationalities would be able to go to other cities and begin life anew, the Chinamen of San Francisco would be hounded to death if they appeared in any great numbers in any particular city.

This, he said, was a grave side of the present situation. Even Oakland, which now has a Chinese population of almost 10,000, would probably not stand for 30,000 more Chinamen. So it would be absolutely necessary to build a city of their own. This man also believed that a committee of prominent Chinese merchants would call upon the United States authorities for permission to organize a municipality to be conducted by Chinamen, with Chinese officials appointed by the United States.

Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco had always favored a plan to establish a Chinese colony on the Pacific Coast away from the whites, and such a colony, it was believed, would thrive and prosper.

Although the Kearney period of Chinese hatred in California reached its height about 1880, it has not fallen off any since, the exclusionists being in favor of ridding the State entirely of the Chinese. They would vote for a measure sharply penalizing the return of Chinamen who once left California and prohibiting the coming of any others.

The League of Deliverance may be reorganized now that the opportunity presents itself, but the non-exclusionists would hail such a movement as at such a time as this, when 30,000 Chinamen have been made homeless, as sure to result in a boomerang favorable to the Chinese. But out of the ashes of San Francisco will come a Chinese city, say the Chinamen of New York.

LEAVENWORTH SENDS TENTS.

Every Piece of Canvas in the Fort Hurried to San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 20.—Six hundred tents belonging to the Quartermaster's Department at Fort Leavenworth were hurriedly sent to San Francisco from Fort Leavenworth this morning as the result of a telegram from Division Headquarters, ordering all shelter canvas in the army to be sent to that city. The message came at 11 o'clock, and by 1:30 o'clock the tents had been loaded into army wagons, hauled two miles across the reservation and loaded into three express cars of the Santa Fé. A special engine took the cars to Holliday, Kan., to catch a main line special train.

When the order was received at Fort Leavenworth, a battalion of the Eighteenth Infantry had just gone into camp at the Target Range for a month's shooting. The last pegs had hardly been driven before the bugle was blown to take down tents, and within less than half an hour every tent was rolled up and ready for wagons to take them to the train. There is not a piece of canvas left in the big army post to-night, except the dog tents of the privates.

BUSINESS STIRS AGAIN.

Bank of California Sends for $1,000,000—Many Banking Losses Expected.

One of the first signs indicating that the business interests of San Francisco were beginning to recover was a telegram received yesterday by Laidlaw & Co., New York correspondents of the Bank of California. The dispatch asked for $1,000,000, which was immediately transferred by Laidlaw & Co. through the Sub-Treasury.

The money will simply be placed to the bank's credit in the San Francisco mint, which is doing duty as a Sub-Treasury, and held till called for. Laidlaw & Co. sent another $1,000,000 to the Pacific Coast yesterday by express. Some of this went to the National Bank of D. O. Mills & Co. of San Francisco and some to Tacoma and other points.

A round of the principal banking institutions representing San Francisco banks in New York failed to bring to light any other direct news from the banking houses of the stricken city.

Some bankers expressed the view yesterday that there could be no doubt that the disaster in California would result in serious losses for most of the banks in San Francisco. It was thought that most, if not all, of them would be able to stand the strain to which they will undoubtedly be put; but the opinion expressed by these bankers was that many of the loans which they are now carrying would have to be marked off their books.

The point was made that advances which had been made to merchants who have lost their entire stock, which in some cases may have been very inadequately covered by insurance, may have to be continued indefinitely—if, indeed, the borrowers are ever able to pay. The view was expressed, however, that the banks of San Francisco will extend every accommodation possible to those to whom they have made advances.

"This is no time," one banker said, "for a bank to hesitate about its duty. It happens that my bank is carrying a demand loan of $40,000 made to a San Francisco banker, but I would no sooner think of calling in that loan now than I would of cutting off my right hand. I would call every other loan that this bank is carrying before I would make an effort to collect that one."

Union Prayer Service in Harlem.

Resolutions expressing sympathy for the San Francisco sufferers were adopted at a meeting of the Lenox Avenue Church of the Disciples of Christ last evening. A special appeal was issued to the people of Harlem to attend a great union service to be held in the Harlem Opera House next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

THE OPERA TROUPE HAS STARTED EAST

Nobody Hurt, But Loss of About $150,000 to Members.

SEMBRICH SAVED HER JEWELRY

Caruso Ran with a Valise—Friends Cared for Mme. Eames—Prima Donnas Showed Courage.

OAKLAND, April 20.—The members of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, all of whom suffered from the great disaster, are leaving to-day for the East.

Some of the principals, including Mme. Sembrich and Messrs. Caruso, Campanari, Dippel, and Bars, and Conductor Hertz, started at 11 o'clock this morning on the Southern Pacific overland train, by way of Ogden and Chicago.

The greater part of the company, including the chorus and musicians, will travel by a special train by way of New Orleans. With this party are Miss Walker, Mme. Rappold, Messrs. Plançon, Scotti, and Reiss; C. H. Meltzer, press representative, and Conductor Franko. Conductor Vigna left last night, and some of the principals not named are traveling apart from the company.

All of the splendid scenery, stage fittings, costumes, and musical instruments were lost in the fire which destroyed the Grand Opera House, where the season had just opened to splendid audiences. No one of the company was injured, but nearly all of them lost their personal effects.

Mme. Sembrich Saved Her Pearls.

Mme. Sembrich placed her loss by the destruction of her elegant costumes at $20,000. She was fortunate enough to save her valuable pearls. The total loss to the members of the organization may reach $150,000.

For the last two days the singers and musicians have been living with friends or camping out in the parks and on the hillsides of San Francisco. Some were quartered at the Chutes.

When they were seen in their special cars to-day the operatic stars gave an interesting account of their experiences.

On the morning of the earthquake the members of the company were distributed among the different hotels, most of them being at the Palace, St. Francis, and the Oaks. Messrs. Caruso and Scotti, and Misses Walker, Abott, Jacoby, and other principals were at the Palace. Messrs. Plançon and Dippel and Mme. Sembrich were at the St. Francis, and the musicians and the chorus at the Oaks. Mme. Eames, Miss Fremstad, and several others were at private hotels or residences.

Caruso Guarded His Valise.

The sudden shock brought the singers out of their bedrooms in all kinds of attire. The women were in their night dresses, the men in pajamas. none paused to dress.

Ten minutes later Mr. Caruso was seen seated on his valise in the middle of the street. Many of the others had rushed to open squares or other places of supposed safety. Even then it was difficult to avoid the débris falling from the crumbling walls.

A few had time and presence of mind to pack up some necessary articles before the outbreak of fires in all directions barred them from returning to their rooms, but very few saved anything except what they had stood in.

Several of those stopping in the Oaks were awakened by plaster from the ceiling falling on their beds, and had barely time to flee for their lives.

One singer was seen standing in the street, barefoot and clad only in his underwear, but clutching a favorite violin which he had carried with him in his flight. The first impulse of many was to rush for their trains, which, however, happened to be across the bay.

Scared Singer Sang In Street.

Mr. Rossi, the basso, though almost in tears, was heard trying his voice on a corner near the Palace Hotel.

Gradually calm was restored, and taking a lesson from the coolness of the Californians, the artists began to regard their plight as less serious than it might have been.

Nearly all suffered more or less from the sudden stoppage of the food supply. A rush was made for the nearest grocery stores, and baskets were quickly filled with provisions and what wine could be secured before the closing of the liquor establishments. The next day many were reduced to a diet of bread, chocolate, and sardines.

Ernest Goerlitz, general manager of the company, until the Grand Opera House was actually reached by the flames, had hoped to give the proposed matinee performance of "The Marriage of Figaro." He and a few others thought the playhouse was fire-proof, and not ten minutes before the building went up in smoke some of the musicians were dissuaded from trying to save their instruments.

Hertz Slept Near the Lions.

Alfred Hertz, the conductor, was one of those quartered at the Chutes after the earthquake. He slept near the Zoo.

"To my dying day I will never forget my experience when I was awakened by the roaring of lions. I knew not that I was in a jungle or den of wild beasts," he said to-day.

Mr. Campanari, the baritone, resembled an immigrant when he boarded the overland train. He carried his kit in a gay-colored blanket on his shoulder, but was in good spirits.

"It is such a change," was all he said.

Another one of the party wore the flowing garb of an Arab chief, and all were more or less picturesquely costumed. A charming contralto had been compelled to don trousers and other men's garments.

Mr. Parvis, Mr. Dufriche, the baritone and stage manager, and Mme. Dufriche, the harpist, narrowly escaped death when the Oaks collapsed. Mme. Dufriche lost her precious Arard harp in the fire at the Opera House.

Mr. Paroli, one of the tenors, was missing this morning, but no anxiety was felt regarding his fate. He was seen after the earthquake, and it was supposed he became confused and failed to find his train.

Singers Showed Courage.

The courage displayed by some of the artists, notably the Misses Edyth Walker and Bessie Abott, helped largely to quiet the fears of their comrades, and their kindness to the chorus was highly appreciated.

After the earthquake, Mme. Eames and Mme. Sembrich found refuge at the home of Dr. Harry Tevis, but this later was burned, and they were then cared for by other friends.

Miss Olive Fremstad, who had apartments at the St. Dunstan, was fortunate to escape with her life, the building being badly shattered by the earthquake.

The guests at the Palace Hotel, among them being the Misses Walker and Abott, who were on the top floor when the great shock came, took it for granted that death was inevitable. The regular swaying of the walls and the pitching of the floor they compared to the motion of an ocean steamer in a storm. Yet, until destroyed by fire, the big hotel stood firmly on its foundation.

Caruso Thought of Vesuvius.

Speaking of the disaster, Mr. Caruso said:

"It instantly recalled the horrors of my native Naples, of which I have been reading. I have no doubt that the earthquake here has some relation to the eruption of Vesuvius."

Miss Walker said:

"We are too happy to have saved our lives to think of our dresses."

Mr. Dippel spoke in the same strain, though he lost costumes valued at $15,000.

Mr. Meltzer, the press representative, said:

"The members of the company desire to express their gratitude to the people of San Francisco, who, although themselves wholly or partially ruined, seemed to forget their own troubles. Speaking for the artists, I will say that nothing could have been more sensible or level-headed than the conduct of Manager Goerlitz and Local Manager Charles W. Strine in this great emergency. Everything that human effort could do was done to minimize the distress of all and to get the people to their homes in comfort."

Mr. Goerlitz added a warm tribute to the kindness of the citizens of San Francisco and the general calmness manifested by the members of the company.

Mr. Conried Is Reassured.

Heinrich Conried received advices from General Passenger Agent Nutting of the Southern Pacific Railway early yesterday afternoon that the train carrying part of the opera singers had left Los Angeles for El Paso, Texas, en route for the East. From another source Herr Conried learned that part of the members of the opera company had left Oakland by special train for Chicago yesterday morning.

The only dispatch received from a member of the organization was from Nahan Franko, conductor. The telegram, which came at noon, read:

"I escaped to Oakland. Members of the company all safe. Lost everything. Members suffering from lack of food and shelter."

At the same time Mrs. Franko received the following telegram from her husband:

"Send $300. Cannot explain agonies. I and Goldman escaped to Oakland together."

LOST ALL HIS BALLOONS.

Baldwin, the Aeronaut, Has an Airship East, However.

Tom Baldwin, the airship man, arrived in New York yesterday, and said that all of his balloons, including the big airship which he used in the Portland (Oregon) Exhibition last season and other aeronautical accumulations of the last dozen years, have been destroyed in the San Francisco disaster.

Mr. Baldwin left Los Angeles about three weeks ago, bringing with him one airship, a new California Arrow, with which he is making arrangements to give a series of flights in the East this season. This machine is now at Hammondsport, N. Y., where it is being fitted out for use. This is all the aeronaut has saved from San Francisco.

"My balloons were stored in a building I erected some time ago at Seventh and Market Streets, almost opposite the City Hall," said Mr. Baldwin. "I had there five ordinary balloons, the largest being a captive balloon, holding 100,000 cubic feet of gas and capable of carrying several persons. The greatest loss is that of my big airship, which was built last year. The tests that I had made with it, equipped with a seven horse power engine, were very successful, but I believed that with a larger engine it would beat anything of its kind yet seen in the world, and I had been making plans to bring it East this season for tests. My loss will probably amount to $8,000. I did not have a cent of insurance. There is no necessity of going back, for I couldn't do any good there. I shall continue my work with my new California Arrow."

PRAYER FOR THE VICTIMS.

A Form of Supplication to be Used in Episcopal Churches.

Bishop Coadjutor Greer of the Protestant Episcopal Church of this diocese has authorized this prayer for use in the Episcopal churches of the diocese:

"O Father of mercy and God of all comfort, our only help in time of need, look down from heaven, we humbly beseech Thee, behold, visit, and relieve Thy servants to whom such great and grievous loss and suffering have come through the earthquake and the fire. In Thy wisdom Thou hast seen fit to visit them with trouble and to bring distress upon them. Remember them, O Lord, in mercy, and endue their souls with patience under this affliction. Though they be perplexed and troubled on every side, save them from despair, and suffer not their faith and trust in Thee to fail.

"In this hour of darkness, when Thou hast made the earth to tremble and the mountains thereof to shake, be Thou, O God, their Refuge and their Strength, and their present help in trouble. And, forasmuch as Thou alone canst bring light out of darkness and good out of evil, let the light of Thy loving countenance shine upon them through the cloud; let the angel of Thy presence be with them in their sorrow, to comfort and support them, giving strength to the weak, courage to the faint, and consolation to the dying. We ask it in the name of Him, Who in all our afflictions is afflicted with us, Thy Son, our Saviour, Jesus Christ. Amen."

KEPT FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

Immigrants Won't Be Allowed to Go There Yet.

Robert Watchorn, Commissioner of Immigration, announced yesterday that he had received word from Secretary Metcalf of the Department of Commerce and Labor, at Washington, not to allow any more tickets to be sold to immigrants who may desire to go through to San Francisco, until further word is sent him from Washington.

Twenty-five Italian immigrants who arrived here last Monday on the White Star liner Republic, from Liverpool, held a prayer meeting on Ellis Island on Thursday night, giving thanks for their deliverance from the disaster in San Francisco. They had intended to go through to the coast, but when they arrived here they found the fare was more than they expected. They were kept on Ellis Island until they could raise the money.

Newark Man in the Agnew Asylum.

Among the inmates of the insane asylum at Agnew, Cal., which collapsed in the earthquake was John M. Chaplin, who was once a well-known lumber merchant in Newark, N. J. His wife, who lives on Mount Prospect Avenue, has made fruitless attempts to learn if he was among the many who perished there.

RAILROADS TO 'FRISCO ARE NOT MUCH DAMAGED

Atchison Resumes Its Schedule—Southern Pacific Running.

CARRYING REFUGEES FREE

Western Traffic Managers Will Declare Low Rate on All Freight to San Francisco.

Reassuring news began to come into the New York offices of the Southern Pacific and Atchison systems yesterday which showed that the first returns of the damage to the two great railroad systems of San Francisco had been greatly overestimated.

Except for a spur of the Southern Pacific system running through the Santa Clara Valley to Hollister, about 100 miles southeast of San Francisco, reports are in from practically all of the road's mileage in California showing everything in working order. Only about fifty miles of the spur from San José south to the end of the line are cut off from communication, and it was said at the Southern Pacific offices yesterday that the silence down the line may mean nothing more serious than a freight wreck.

The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé system has resumed schedule time to and from its terminal at Port Richmond, across the bay from San Francisco, and Controller Gallup said at the New York office yesterday that his road was ready to accept freight for San Francisco delivery. The ferry terminals on the San Francisco water front are undamaged, he said, and the boats have been in regular service since yesterday morning.

While Mr. Gallup could not tell the damage sustained by the Atchison in the city itself, he said he thought a conservative estimate would be somewhere under the half-million mark.

Arthur Wells, the Santa Fé's General Manager at Los Angeles, was ordered to San Francisco Thursday afternoon to take charge. The news of the resumption of traffic came from him. Early in the day he wired that the company's big freight yards in the city proper, at the foot of Spear Street, had been saved and were out of danger, and that the China Basin yards were also practically undamaged.

The Southern Pacific's docks, freight yards, and steamships on the city side of the bay were saved also. General Passenger Agent Nutting of the Harriman Lines received the following dispatch from Oakland yesterday, which gives a concise account of the railroad situation:

"The freight sheds and passenger buildings, located at Third and Townsend Streets, are not very much damaged and are considered safe. The old general office building has been completely destroyed. Forty cars were burned at Vallejo Street; wooden buildings and freight sheds at Vallejo Street were also destroyed. The ferry buildings at the foot of Market Street and all the ferry slips are all right.

"All local and main line passenger trains are running O. K. No through freight business was started East last night on account of no business from San Francisco. All through freight from the East for San Francisco and local shipments, including live stock and perishable goods for San Francisco, have been held up at Fresno, on the Coast and San Joaquin Division, until situation improves at San Francisco.

"The local ferry steamers in passenger service from Oakland and San Francisco are running on regular schedule. It is expected to resume service to Alameda here sometime in the course of Friday. On the Western Division the damage consists principally of the destruction of water supply tanks at various stations.

"I think we will be able to handle all freight and possible traffic for Third and Townsend Streets, San Francisco, as soon as the excitement subsides. Some damage has occurred to the Mission Bay Slip and have asked the Harbor Commissioners to allow us to make necessary repairs, so that our freight can be loaded in San Francisco at the earliest possible moment."

Dispatches from the Southern Pacific traffic officials gave some hint, even in their terse telegraphic form, of the wild panic at the height of the fire. Brief mention was made of the work done by the Southern Pacific steamers Newark and Apache when thousands of men, women, and children were driven before the flames to the water front and cut off from escape by land. The two steamers were put in service, taking the refugees from the sea wall and the beaches to places of safety across the bay. The steamer Modoc, the dispatch says, has been turned into a hospital boat.

The Coast Division of the Southern Pacific, which runs south from the city through the seaboard towns, is running frequent trains crowded with refugees out of the city and distributing the people among the smaller towns, where they can be housed and fed.

None of the roads is charging for the transportation of the fire sufferers. Controller Gallup of the Atchison said yesterday that the San Francisco railroads had no intention of profiting unduly by the needs of the city. The Western Traffic managers, who control the freight rates on the Pacific coast, would meet in Chicago in a day or two, he said, and fix a new rate to the city, which would be very low. This was not altogether philanthropy, the Controller explained, because the increased business would more than make up for the reduced rate.

The Southern Pacific and all other roads are working in conjunction with the Government authorities, and Gen. Funston has given strict orders that nobody shall be allowed to cross the bay into San Francisco unless it can be shown that he is called there by business of an urgent character.

Dispatches received yesterday from Gen. Funston declared the imperative necessity of getting food into the city as fast as possible, and the railroad officials are bending every energy to accomplish this.

EARTHQUAKE AT HONOLULU.

Vibrations for Six Minutes Cause a Panic—Little Damage Done.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A cable dispatch from Honolulu says: "For six minutes yesterday a repetition of the San Francisco disaster, which would involve the capital of the Hawaiian Islands in destruction, was feared. Vibrations which were evidently the result of seismic disorders were felt quite plainly throughout the city.

"While earthquakes are by no means infrequent in the islands, that of yesterday was much more severe than any in recent years. It caused the buildings along Fort Street and the other thoroughfares in the business district to sway to and fro and in the residence districts some buildings were partly demolished.

"The disturbances caused the water in the harbor to rise rapidly and fear was felt that a wave might sweep over the city. However, inside of six minutes the vibrations ceased and no further ones were noted during the day.

"The vibrations almost caused a panic among the inhabitants, who had learned of the catastrophe in San Francisco. Crowds rushed into the streets and endeavored to make their way out of the business district, preferring to take their chances in the sugar plantations in the open.

"Fear of possible disorders as a result of the panic caused the landing of a considerable force of marines from the men-of-war in the harbor. These, with the assistance of local police, were able to restore order shortly, and within an hour conditions had become normal.

The dispatch bearing the news of the earthquake at Honolulu came around the world, by way of Manila, Asia, and Europe. There was no communication yesterday between Honolulu and San Francisco.

TRACTION OFFICERS HOPEFUL.

Their Loss in San Francisco May Not Have Been Large.

The officers of the United Railways Investment Company and the bankers interested in that company were still without specific advices yesterday in regard to the condition of the company's property in San Francisco. The hope was entertained that the power houses of the company had escaped serious injury. In that case, it was said, the company will be able speedily to repair the damage to its property.

It was said that by far the largest part of the company's equipment must have been in the car houses outside of the zone affected by the conflagration. Moreover, the company carried a large amount of insurance on its equipment and will thus be compensated for a large part of the loss which it may have suffered.

As an offset to the loss of passenger traffic which the company will undoubtedly suffer, at least during the early period of the reconstruction of the city, it was said yesterday that there was probably a very good chance to make up a large percentage of this loss by using the company's lines as soon as they are repaired for the clearing away of débris and later on for the transportation of materials.

The stock of the United Railways Investment Company suffered a further sharp decline yesterday morning, but recovered a large part of the loss before the end of the day. The preferred, in fact, closed with a net gain of 4½ points, at 65. The common, which sold as low as 50, closed at 59, which was 6 points below Thursday's final price. The recovery in the stocks was helped by the realization of the fact that the company has a large source of earning power in the control of the Philadelphia Company in Pittsburg, which is held by the United Railways Investment Company along with the street railway system of San Francisco.

WASHINGTON CONCERNED.

Disaster Causes Society Families to Withdraw for the Season.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Washington society is deeply affected by the disaster on the Pacific Coast. It has already brought great sorrow to many well-known homes and caused the retirement of nearly a score of families from the Spring season.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Metcalf, who were to have entertained this evening in honor of their guest, Miss Louise Jones of Milwaukee, canceled their invitations, while the round of entertainments in honor of the marriage of Miss Marie McKenna, daughter of Justice McKenna, has also been suspended. The marriage of Miss McKenna to Davenport Brown of Boston will take place on April 25.

Mrs. Henry May, who was a Miss Cokman of San Francisco, has suffered great financial loss, while among other heretofore wealthy Californians residing in Washington who have received or are anticipating great reverses are Senator Newlands, whose three daughters are deeply interested in the estate of their grandfather, the late Senator Sharon. These young women, who were regarded as Washington's greatest heiresses, are Mrs. Charles Johnson and Mrs. William B. Johnson, who married brothers of this city, and Frau von Bredow of Berlin. Lieut. von Bredow was formerly Attaché of the German Embassy in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy T. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Hannan Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Henley Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Williams, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Perkins, Capt. and Mrs. Richardson Clover, Mrs. D. D. Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Truxtun Beall, who were living at the Palace Hotel; Mr. and Mrs. M. Wallach and Major and Mrs. George M. Dunn, the latter a daughter of Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania, are among the Washingtonians who were in San Francisco.

DEATH FROM ANXIETY.

Worry for Relatives in San Francisco Kills Samuel Menges.

Samuel Manges of 1,047 Forty-first Street, Brooklyn, who was a member of the firm of Charles B. Flugge at 259 Canal Street, Manhattan, had relatives in San Francisco, from whom he was unable to hear after the earthquake disaster. The uncertainty so worried him that yesterday afternoon as he was getting off a train at the Thirty-ninth Street station at Brooklyn, where the elevated road runs down upon the surface, he collapsed on the downtown track.

Christopher Hanseon of 157 Twenty-second Street, a fellow-passenger on the train, ran an Manges's aid and pulled him off the track just as a train was about to run over him. He died in a few moments. Dr. Livingston of the Norwegian Hospital said that death was due to heart disease, exaggerated by anxiety.

HAWAIIAN CABLE UNBROKEN.

Operators Now in the Landing Hut at San Francisco.

MANILA, April 20.—Honolulu reported at noon to-day that tests showed the San Francisco cable to be intact, but that San Francisco apparently had no instruments.

Thousands of Americans here who have relatives in California are exceedingly anxious for news of their safety.

The Honolulu office of the Commercial Cable Company got into communication with the cable hut at San Francisco last night, and a message came around the world to New York. Traffic Manager Clapperton said after he received the message:

"The cable service between the hut and Honolulu is resumed. As far as communication with the actual City of San Francisco is concerned it does not mean much, for the end of the cable now is a good way from the city. But it will enable the Philippines and the East in general to hear of the disaster, and for that reason the resumption of communication is very important."

What probably happened to the Hawaiian cable, which has been useless since Wednesday, was explained yesterday by officials of the Commercial Cable Company.

When the cable comes out of the Pacific it enters a little building known as the Hut, near the water's edge, which provides a covering for the junction of the sea wire with the wire that runs to the centre of the city. The real terminus of the cable was the Postal Telegraph Building.

When on Wednesday the operators in San Francisco told New York that the city was coming down about their heads, this order was sent:

"Take your instruments and go out to the Hut."

The Postal officials applied to the War Department for aid yesterday, asking that the Government boat carry batteries and instruments around to the Hut.

ZETA PSI SENDS SYMPATHY.

Telegraphs Leland Stanford and California University Chapters.

Telegrams of sympathy were sent last night by the Zeta Psi Fraternity to their brethren of the Mu Chapter of the Leland Stanford University and the Iota Chapter of the University of California at Berkeley. The members of the fraternity were gathered at the Hotel Astor at a dinner in honor of William T. Cobb, Governor of Maine. The telegrams ran:

"Zetas of New York and vicinity, in reunion assembled in honor of Phi Alpha, Brother Cobb, send loving greetings and heart-felt sympathy."

The annual convention of the fraternity was to have been held in San Francisco on Sept. 7 and 8. Special cars were to have been run from New York for the convenience of the fraternity, and an elaborate programme had been arranged. It included visits to the Leland Stanford University and the University of California chapters, excursion to Redwood Grove and Mount Tamalpais, and a "bull's-head breakfast," at which an ox would have been roasted whole, upon the beach, a mile of which a member of the fraternity owns. But Frank P. Derring, with whom all the arrangements rested, has had his offices in the Union Trust Building, Market and Montgomery Streets, burned to the ground, and the fraternity does not know at present whether it will be possible to carry out even a part of its programme.

William H. McElroy presided at the dinner last night and introduced Gov. Cobb. Gov. Cobb, in returning thanks for the honor bestowed on him, said:

"I am loyal to Bowdoin College, and I agree with that man who said that in a large college a man went through more college, but in a small college more college went through him."

Speeches were made by Augustus Van Wyck, James H. Dodge, the Rev. Dr. T. C. McClelland, and others.

DISASTER REPORTED BY THE OPERATORS

News of the Day as It Came Here in Bulletins.

THE TELEGRAPHERS COOL

One of Them Described an Earthquake Shock as a "Dandy"—The Later News Hopeful.

Bulletins descriptive of the San Francisco disaster and of the resulting distress came at short intervals over the Western Union wires all day yesterday. One wire was devoted to nothing else but these bulletins, running direct from the Market Street ferryhouse in San Francisco into the office of Assistant General Manager Barclay on the sixth floor at 195 Broadway.

The Western Union has fifty-four wires running out of San Francisco. This enabled the company to keep one entirely clear for the news dispatches to New York.

The Postal stopped the issue of bulletins in the middle of the day. At Vice President Bradley's office this statement was given out:

"As the newspapers throughout the country are now receiving and publishing all information from the Pacific Coast that it is possible to obtain, the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company will devote its entire facilities to the handling of important telegrams for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers and for its patrons, and will not issue any further bulletins unless some important change occurs in existing conditions."

The Western Union's sender of bulletins did not confine himself to the businesslike phraseology which one would expect from a telegraph operator. Once he described an earthquake shock as a "dandy." He also told, with no ejaculation marks, how the ceiling fell down upon him while he was at his key.

One of the bulletins told of Gen. Funston's changing the headquarters of the army, Division of the Pacific, to Fort Mason. The regular army headquarters, at New Montgomery and Mission Streets, were destroyed by the fire.

The first bulletin yesterday morning reached Mr. Barclay's office at 6 o'clock (3 o'clock, San Francisco time.) It was as follows:

"The fire, which had crept around the base of Telegraph Hill and had left a few houses standing there, has worked its way back from the west and is now in full possession of the houses that had previously escaped. The fire will doubtless take everything in its path down to the water's edge on Van Ness Avenue and west of there. The main fire has reached Octavia Street, and is traveling at a very fast rate. I have had no callers since midnight.

"At that time the fire started afresh on the south end of the line of destruction and was burning furiously. The ferry house presents a fearful scene this morning. It is filled with women and children who have but few articles that they have saved from the ruin. They are waiting to leave the city by the first boat they can get away on. The road leading north and around the shore of the bay as far as Fort Mason is littered with all sorts of vehicles that broke down under their loads. They consist of baby carriages, wheelbarrows, and toy carts that were too weak to stand the weight of the articles with which they were loaded. Some of the abandoned vehicles still contain the effects of the fugitive citizens.

"The fire came very close to Fort Mason last night, and the big Fantana warehouse and near-by canneries will doubtless be destroyed to-day.

"I think the fire will make a clean sweep of everything as far as Golden Gate Park. I would not be surprised to see it take the eucalyptus trees that line the Panhandle and park and destroy the shrubbery in the park clear down to the ocean beach. This is about all that can be told as to conditions at the present time until I can get information from people from other parts of the city."

Chief Operator Wildman sent this bulletin to Mr. Barclay's office at 10:20 A. M.:

"Gen. Funston is giving out thousands of tents and is doing everything possible to relieve suffering. I had an escort take me through the parks last night. The people seeking safety there were fairly comfortable, but the heavy fog and dew at night is causing great distress. Tens of thousands of refugees are flocking into Oakland and the other towns across the bay. They had been without food and water since the outbreak of the fire. All the bakeries in the small towns are being worked to their fullest capacity. The people still in the city are living on what canned stuff they can obtain, with a limited number of crackers. The Chinamen, whose settlement was wiped out by the flames, are in evidence by the thousands this morning. They carry big bundles, and are waiting for the first boat to get to a place of safety. The scene in the extreme west end of the city, where thousands are camped in the vacant spaces and the parks, will be frightful when the fire, which is fast approaching that section, drives them out of the shelter they have there."

Just before noon came the following:

"The fire has been stopped at Octavia Street and is now confined to Telegraph Hill. There is a large burned space between the present fire and where it did not go further west. I do not think the fire will start again unless some ignorant persons try to light stoves in their stores. There is not a chimney in town that is safe to trust for the use of stove fires."

This came at 2:05 P. M.:

"We expect to get between five and six million gallons of water from the Spring Valley main to-day. The homeless people are gathered in three camps, one being located in Golden Gate Park, a second at Fort Mason, and a third in the Potrero district. Thus far fifty of the three hundred employes at our offices have reported. Do not believe that any of the missing have been lost. Some are taking care of their families. The fire is still being held in check at Octavia Street.

In this bulletin, which arrived at 2:30 o'clock, tells how the Western Union Building rocked when the earth shook:

"The earthquake wrecked the business and residential portions of the city alike, but on the hills the land did not sink or blow up. The shocks occurred prior to the fire. All made ground sank some in consequence of the quaking, but on the high ground the upper parts of the buildings were the only portions wrecked. I notice on Montgomery Street, half a block from the main office of the Western Union Company, that the middle of the street was cracked and blown up. On the hills the buildings were wrecked, mostly by the chimneys being tumbled off the frame houses. Down the hill the ground sank and also the sidewalk. Up Pine Street about four blocks from the office and about five blocks toward Main Street the land sunk some.

"The shock which struck the Western Union Building was a dandy. The entire building shook and wabbled and rocked like a boat. Only the top stories were cracked. The ceiling of the operating room fell down on me. The big clock of old standing, and known as the landmark, fell about ten feet toward Montgomery Street and broke into pieces."

The Western Union gave out this at 3:40 P. M.:

"The latest reliable information from San Francisco is that the residence district from Post to Union Streets and from Octavia to the Ocean is intact, and is believed to be safe. The exodus has now swelled the population of Oakland until it is greater than that of San Francisco. Relief trains are arriving with provisions and tents, which will greatly mitigate the sufferings of both cities."

At 4:55, in the following bulletin, came a report that the fire was under control:

"Probably one-fourth of the city lying west of Franklin Street, and known as "the western addition," and northwest to the Presidio, will be saved. The stand made at Van Ness Avenue was generally successful, the flames crossing the street to the west side in but few places. The The strongest fire at noon to-day was toward North Beach, east of Van Ness Avenue, but it will be controlled.

"Relief measures are being taken by the military and civil authorities, but lack of a food supply still makes the situation grave. The thousands camped in the parks and along the water front must be fed at once. Several boats and trains arrived at Oakland with supplies from the interior, and these will be taken across the bay. Thousands are pouring into the city looking for friends."

A TRUNK LINE MESSAGE.

Special Dispatch Tells of the Territory Burned Over.

This special dispatch came over a private wire from the Trunk Line Association to its agent here at 5:30 P. M., New York time, yesterday:

At this hour the latest reliable information from San Francisco is that the residence district from Post to Union Streets and from Octavia Street to the ocean shore is intact and, it is expected, will be saved. The exodus has now swelled the population of Oakland to greater than San Francisco. Trains are arriving with provisions and shelter materials every minute.

SLOCUM SURVIVORS CONDOLE

Send a Message of Sympathy to San Francisco.

The Organization of the General Slocum Survivors sent to Mayor Schmitz yesterday resolutions of sympathy for San Francisco. The letter was signed by Charles Dersch, President, and Fred W. Hotz, Secretary. A preamble to the resolution says:

"We, realizing and mindful of the terrible disaster of the steamboat General Slocum, over a year ago, in which over 1,000 lives were lost through others' neglect, while your loss was through the elements, be it resolved," &c.

Cigar Stores Men Confident.

The United Cigar Stores Company makes announcement to-day that, although ten of its San Francisco stores were destroyed at a loss of $300,000, it will immediately construct twenty in their place. Steel frames will be used. Such is its belief in the future of a new San Francisco that it is willing to spend money on it.

RUSHING TELEGRAMS INTO SAN FRANCISCO

But New Yorkers Can't Be Assured of Prompt Delivery.

DIFFICULTIES OF COMPANIES

They Are Making Every Effort to Restore Communications—Extra Operators Hurried to the West.

With thousands of messages directed to San Francisco piling up in their offices, the Western Union and the Postal Telegraph Companies are facing probably the most difficult task since the invention of telegraphy.

There is no way to deliver the dispatches in San Francisco—for most of the addresses to which they are directed are wiped out. Yet, despite the news of the exodus of the population from the city, half-crazed citizens of New York continue to pour into the telegraph offices and insist upon sending messages to their kinsfolk and friends.

J. C. Barclay, Assistant General Manager of the Western Union, was perhaps the hardest-worked man in New York yesterday. His job looked overwhelming, but he stuck to it. Everybody that asked to have a message sent was told that the Western Union would "do the best it could," but not to expect prompt delivery.

"I never saw anything like the flood of messages," said Mr. Barclay yesterday afternoon. "There are thousands of them. They are not all words, either—there is plenty of money going over the wire. Nobody in San Francisco is wanting for a dollar, I believe. They are getting all the money they need.

"We are making the most desperate efforts to deliver the messages. Of course we can't carry them to the offices or homes to which they are addressed when those offices and homes are not in existence, but we try to get the people to call for their messages.

"One way is to post lists of all the persons to whom telegrams are directed. In this way anybody that has reason to expect one will get it, because he will certainly make a search for his name in the list. This system cannot be thoroughly satisfactory, of course, because so many thousands of people to whom messages are sent have gone to places miles away.

"Besides posting the list of messages received, we are going to publish them to-morrow in all the Oakland newspapers, and tell the addressees to call for them. In the case of money transmission, of course, there will have to be satisfactory identification."

The Postal Telegraph Company, whose building was destroyed by the earthquake and fire Wednesday, announced yesterday that it had established an office at one of the Southern Pacific Railroad's piers on the bay. This office works in conjunction with a new Goat Island station, established in this way:

Goat Island, the seat of the big United States Government training school, is about half a mile out in the bay from Oakland. The wires, north-bound from San Francisco, running to Portland, Seattle, and other cities in that direction, pass directly by this island in a cable. The Postal taps the cable, clips the wires, and instals instruments. The Government, through the Secretary of War, has put launches and tugs at the service of the company to carry messages between Goat Island and Oakland and between Goat Island and the Southern Pacific pier in San Francisco. There are no wires from Oakland to Goat Island.

The Postal, with the San Francisco-bound messages piling up just as they are in the Western Union offices, is making the same strenuous efforts to have them reach their destination. This statement was given out at the Postal offices yesterday:

"Owing to the destruction of San Francisco and the consequent scattering of its people, it is as yet almost impossible to find individuals in San Francisco to whom telegrams are addressed, and all telegrams are still subject to indefinite delay. This company is, however, sparing no money or effort to re-establish effective telegraphic service.

"We have arranged to open an office at the Market Street Ferry Building, San Francisco, where telegrams for that city will be sent. It is impossible to make deliveries, but we will placard the city, announcing the opening of this office and requesting any one expecting telegrams to inquire there for them. The same course will be pursued at Oakland with all telegrams which cannot be delivered there."

The work to be done at San Francisco and the near by towns has made it necessary to send a small army of extra operators there. Mr. Barclay said yesterday that he had already ordered 100 Western Union men to California, and would send more if necessary. He has also arranged to have a second office, a little way up Market Street from the big ferry. In it will be twenty operators. Arrangements have been made to provide the operators with tents and plenty of food.

In sending messages from New York yesterday men and women had no regard for cost. They knew that the messages might never be delivered, yet they wrote long ones and paid the charges without a murmur. They said they would take the chances of delivery.

The companies both have a corps of extra men on duty in New York, and will work them, by relays, day and night and all day Sunday.

Col. Robert C. Clowry, President and General Manager of the Western Union, left for Europe yesterday afternoon on the White Star liner Celtic. Just before he departed he said:

"While I am on the ocean I will keep myself informed of the situation at San Francisco by wireless. The company has done everything it could and will continue. I want to express my admiration at the action of the Government officers in San Francisco. They have helped valiantly to take care of the people and to get messages through to and from the rest of the world."

George C. Thomas, partner in the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., called at the Postal offices yesterday and asked on behalf of the Domestic and Foreign Mission Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church to have messages sent free of charge to some eighty Bishops throughout the country, informing them that all contributions for San Francisco should be sent to 281 Fourth Avenue. Mr. Thomas's request was granted.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—Hundreds of persons in Los Angeles, many of them residents of other parts of the country, have been trying their best to get private messages through to Oakland to relatives and friends known by them to have been in San Francisco when the earthquake began.

Last night at the Postal Telegraph office 1,000 of these telegrams were stacked with only a prospect of their being sent and slight hope of their ever being delivered. Perhaps 60 per cent. of these carry individual succor.

NO WORD FROM FRIENDS.

Anxiety for Many New Yorkers Who Were in San Francisco.

Not only in business circles is alarm felt for missing friends and associates who were in San Francisco at the time the earthquake occurred. The greatest anxiety is being experienced by churchmen for the safety of their religious brothers on the Pacific Coast. Although the clergy of St. Patrick's Cathedral have heard of the safety of their friends, and Mgr. Lavelle has received assurances by telegraph, other bodies are still in doubt.

Until yesterday the Paulist Fathers in West Sixtieth Street had received no word from the Paulist community in San Francisco. The Jesuit body in San Francisco has also failed to communicate with Father Hearn of St. Francis Xavier's, in Sixteenth Street, although the latter has telegraphed repeatedly.

Gen. Ballington Booth, the head of the Volunteers of America, said yesterday that, although they had tried to get into communication with Col. and Mrs. Walter Duncan, the head of the organization in California, so far they had received no reply. Col. and Mrs. Duncan had their headquarters near the destroyed City Hall, and grave fears are felt for their safety.

Much of the anxiety felt in business circles was relieved yesterday by the receipt of telegrams from missing friends and agents. Wells, Fargo & Co., while hearing that their employes were safe, at the same time learned that their new million-dollar building in San Francisco had been burned out. The walls were left, however, and it is thought that they can be used in a new building. The company regrets the loss of the contents, as they included many relics of the West's pioneer days.

Ruhlman & Co., fruit dealers, of 261 Washington Street, heard from a fruit company in Sacramento that little damage had been done at that point and that the fruit crop was not injured. This was corroborated by a dispatch from the California Friut Company.

The Southern Pacific Company learned definitely yesterday that its fine offices at California and Montgomery Streets, San Francisco, had been destroyed.

Much anxiety is still felt for Hermann Oelrichs, who was staying at the Hotel St. Francis, one of the hotels destroyed. Gustav H. Schwab of the North German Lloyd Line, Charles Oelrichs, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, and her sister, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., have telegraphed in vain for news of him. It is thought likely that he is merely unable to get a message transmitted.

W. A. Boland, a banker, of 81 Nassau Street, is telegraphing night and day for news of his wife and two daughters, who arrived at the California Hotel, San Francisco, the night before the earthquake. The upper walls and floors of the hotel collapsed. Searching parties are now trying to find if Mrs. Boland and her children were in it at the time.

Inspector McLaughlin received word from Detective Sergeant Snyder, who was sent to San Francisco a week ago to bring back a prisoner wanted in New York. Snyder telegraphed that he was safe, but did not say he had his prisoner.

Earthquake Record in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, April 20.—The seismograph in the Government observatory recorded the San Francisco earthquake at 6:42:56 and 5:57 Mexican local time. Points on the Pacific Coast of this republic report no disturbance on the earth's crust.

HEAVY LOSSES TO CHURCHES.

Catholics, Presbyterians, and Episcopalians Had Much Property Burned.

Financial interests of all religious bodies which centre in this city are awaiting anxiously details from San Francisco.

St. Mary's Roman Catholic Cathedral was on Van Ness Avenue, at O'Farrell Street, and was worth almost as much, from a financial standpoint, as the more pretentious St. Ignatius Church, located further south on the same avenue. Old St. Patrick's Church, in Mission Street; St. Bridget's, in Van Ness Avenue, at Broadway, and the fine St. Francis Church, at Montgomery and Vallejo, are known to have been demolished or burned. The losses to the Catholics can hardly be less than $10,000,000, it is said.

The finest Presbyterian Church in the city was Calvary, which was quite new, and the next was the First, which was blown up on Thursday in the effort to save buildings further west. The Rev. Dr. Robert McKenzie of this city was formerly pastor of the First Church.

The Presbyterian Boards of Foreign Missions and Home Missions had important property interests, especially in the Chinese quarters, where among other work was a home for Chinese women. Presbyterian property values will foot up into the millions.

The First Congregational Church was downtown, not far from Union Square, and in the vicinity of the clubs and the Central Young Men's Christian Association building. It had a property worth $150,000, and had declined to move west, as many other downtown churches had done.

The First Baptist Church of San Francisco, on Eddy Street, and in the ruined quarter, was the mother of Baptist churches on the coast.

The Episcopal Church suffered heavily, both in San Francisco and in towns around it. The Episcopal headquarters in San Francisco were destroyed, and so were St. Luke's, Grace, the Advent, and the Good Samaritan. It is possible that Trinity Church, the one in which the General Convention was held five years ago, was saved.

The First Methodist Church was well downtown, on Stockton Street. It is destroyed, and so is the Howard Street Church, back of the Palace Hotel. The Central is also gone. Methodist headquarters on the coast were in a fine building on Market Street, some distance southwest of the Call Building. This building is destroyed.

San Francisco to Be Rebuilt.

We have had ten of our stores and a warehouse destroyed in San Francisco (fortunately among our own people no lives were lost). Our own loss of close to $300,000.00 measures small in our grief and sympathy for our friends and customers. However, this is our policy: We have sent ten of our best men, including our Treasurer, Director of Construction, and General Superintendent there, with orders to open TWENTY new stores immediately. We believe the city will be rebuilt at once. We understand the damage from earthquake was small, and in the rebuilding steel construction will undoubtedly remove the possibility of future disaster from fire or earthquake. WE WANT TO BE PART OF THE BIG BOOM the NEW SAN FRANCISCO will have.

We believe it will be a better and greater city than ever, and we will back our judgment with our money.

SAN FRANCISCO THEATRES WILL LOSE $2,000,000

Managers Here Predict They Will Soon Be Running Again.

BENEFITS WELL UNDER WAY

Over $3,000 Realized by Maude Adams—Performances Arranged for Most of the City Theatres.

Yesterday brought scant relief to the scores of anxious theatrical people along Broadway who haunted the bulletins and telegraph offices hoping for news of relatives and friends in the devastated city. Although the general reports of the progress of the fire were slightly less alarming, only in a very few cases was any direct personal word from families or friends received. The stories of famine and hardship among the survivors were anything but reassuring.

But no private telegrams were needed to confirm the heavy property losses of the theatrical interests of San Francisco. New York managers who knew the city agreed last night that the destruction of theatrical property would amount to fully $2,000,000.

David Belasco said last night that he had heard absolutely nothing from his father and brothers. This satisfied him that they must be in the city itself. For Mrs. Belasco had received a telegram from her mother and sisters which was sent from Berkeley. It said only:

"Family completely burned out, but escaped in a boat to Berkeley.

"It will be several years before San Francisco can have a theatrical season again," said Mr. Belasco, sadly. "But," he continued, "it will have to have amusements before then. I believe the city will go through a kind of childhood again.

"To-morrow and for many days you will find the men of San Francisco, tradesmen and millionaires, toiling away in blue shirts and living in tents and shanties. It will be a kind of return to the old '49 days. There will be little grocery shacks and cabins of general stores. The big merchants who owned great modern shops and magazines will begin again in tents and board shanties.

"They will go back to the old '49 amusements. For a while San Francisco theatres will be only little side shows to relieve the scant leisure of men who are working hard to restore a city. Then, in a few years—a new San Francisco."

John Cort, a well-known theatrical manager of the Pacific Coast, who is now in New York with the Florence Roberts Company, is even more sanguine:

"I'll wager within thirty days there will be tents up in San Francisco and big shows going on inside. You can't down a Westerner. Why, we built the Grand Opera House in Seattle in fourteen weeks, and it seats 2,200. When Seattle was burned it wasn't a week before lumber and canvas and a few arc lights were put together to make a theatre that served us until we could get something better.

"The California circuit will probably not be popular among the Eastern companies for a while. But by the first of next January there will be an up-to-date theatre in San Francisco."

Mr. Cort said he had received a telegram yesterday from his agent at San Francisco which had evidently been telephoned over to Oakland. The message said that all Miss Roberts's property, including a storehouse of theatrical material on Sutter Street, valued at $75,000, has been destroyed, but that her mother and sister are safe. Miss Roberts had stocks and bonds to the amount of $200,000 in the vaults of the Anglo-Californian Bank. The bank was in the centre of the burned district.

Edward Price, manager for Fred Belasco, who controlled the Alcazar and Alhambra Theatres in San Francisco, is now in New York with Mrs. Price. They have three children in the stricken city, from whom not a word has been received since the catastrophe. Mrs. Price is prostrated with worry and anxiety, and Mr. Price spends his time between the telegraph office and Belasco Theatre hoping for news.

Henry B. Harris received a telegram yesterday saying that "The Lion and the Mouse" company was safe and would play in Fresno last night.

At the Frohman offices word was received yesterday that the Collier company was safe, but had probably lost all their baggage. It is as yet uncertain whether they can sail to Australia, as nothing is known of the movements of steamers from San Francisco.

Harry J. Seamon of the firm of Hurtig & Seamon received a telegram from his sister, Mrs. David Sickell, 3,936 Seventeenth Street, San Francisco, last evening which read:

"Terrible earthquake. Don't worry. All safe."

ACTORS DOING GOOD WORK.

Over $3,000 Raised by Maude Adams—Other Benefits in Preparation.

It took Maude Adams ten minutes to raise $80 for the San Francisco relief fund last night at the Empire Theatre. Just before the curtain went up one of Mr. Frohman's representatives went to Miss Adams's dressing room carrying twenty-five lithographs of the actress for her to sign. Miss Adams quickly did this, while Stage Manager William Seymour went in front of the curtain, and announced that between the first and second acts the pictures would be put on sale in the auditorium.

Sam Meyer, manager of the company, and Thomas Nelson, Treasurer of the house, went into the orchestra after the curtain fell, and in a few minutes had disposed of the twenty-five pictures for $80, each bringing from $2 to $5.

The total receipts from the performance of "Peter Pan" netted $3,407.50, which will be turned over to the Relief Fund for the San Francisco sufferers. Of the above amount, $1,000 was given by Miss Adams, $1,737 was the receipts of the house, $250 was sent by J. M. Barrie, $158.75 was collected from the members of the company, $111.80 from the employes of the theatre, $80 came from pictures sold between the acts, and $70 from the hotels.

David Belasco announces a special performance of "The Music Master" at the Bijou Theatre Thursday afternoon, May 3, the receipts to be sent to the California sufferers. A benefit performance of "The Girl of the Golden West" will be held at the Belasco Theatre on May 1.

Joe Weber and his company will set up a bazaar for the benefit of the sufferers in the big storeroom of the Gilsey House. Yesterday Marie Dressler, Flora Zabelle, Bonnie Magin, and the other principals of the organization visited local tradesmen for donations. Miss Dressler returned with two pianos to her credit. The company will be at the storeroom for the next week from 10 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon selling goods. The chorus girls will act as cash girls. As an extra inducement, Mr. Weber, Marie Dressler, Bonnie Magin, and Flora Zabelle will give specialties.

Last evening at the Joe Weber Music Hall, Fred Oppenheimer, who was the guest of Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs in a stage box, raised $565 in cash, and $200 in checks in an auction sale of seats for the benefit performances at the Hippodrome, to take place to-day.

James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering announce a benefit performance of "The Walls of Jericho" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, on Sunday evening next. The play will be produced in its entirety, the Mayor of Boston having granted Mr. Hackett a special license, which permits the use of scenery and accessories on Sunday.

Two big benefit performances in aid of the San Francisco sufferers will take place at the Hippodrome this afternoon and evening. All tickets sold in advance will be honored as usual, and all extra contributions will be devoted to the relief fund.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs of 1 East Fifty-seventh Street, herself one of the heaviest losers in the disaster, is in active charge of the arrangements. Students and graduates of the University of California will sell souvenir and song books at both performances.

SPORTS OFFER AID.

Boxers, Baseball Teams, and Billiardists Will Give Benefits.

Sporting men in New York are organizing movements to aid in the relief of San Francisco. The first formal step was taken last night by various well-known boxers, and a mammoth benefit was arranged to take place next Wednesday evening by the Consolidated Athletic Club. Robert Fitzsimmons, James J. Corbett, Kid McCoy, Gus Ruhlin, Jake Kilrain, Tom Sharkey, and Frank Erne have volunteered their service for short exhibition bouts. Grand Central Palace will probably be offered for the purpose.

There is talk of a baseball game in Brooklyn on Sunday between the World's Champions and the Brooklyn team for the same cause. President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn team announced that a game would be played at Washington Park on Sunday and that the entire receipts would be contributed to San Francisco. The effort to secure the co-operation of the New York team will be made, and will no doubt be successful.

At Madison Square Garden, in the Concert Hall, the seven billiardists who have been contesting for the international championship will give an exhibition on Tuesday night for the cause. The entire receipts will be turned over to the fund. Short games of probably 100 points each will be played by the different experts, and cushion carrom matches and corner games contested. Besides these Maurice Daly will give an exhibition of his famous fancy shots. Schaefer, Slosson, Hoppe, Sutton, Cure, Cutler, and Morningstar will play.

RACING MEN HELP.

Bookmakers Give $5,000—Jockey Club Will Act, Too.

The bookmakers and betting men at the Aqueduct race track, in anticipation of action by the race-track owners, made a contribution yesterday to the fund for the relief of the sufferers from the effects of the earthquake. The bookmakers of the Metropolitan Turf Association were the first to act. They agreed to give $5,000 to the fund, and at once signed for $1,000, as much as can be appropriated by the Finance Committee without sanction of a general meeting of the club. The rest was pledged by all the members at the race track.

A second fund was started by the Turf Benevolent Association, an organization of bookmakers' clerks, and a sum between $800 and $1,000 was raised at once. The subscription list is to remain open to-day.

Under the arrangements made it is probable that no racing benefit day will be set aside, the track owners having agreed to await the action of the Coney Island Jockey Club, the oldest and most representative club in the East. This club will hold a meeting next Wednesday, and then will make an appropriation for the relief fund. As the lesser race tracks are to follow the lead set, it is estimated that the action of the Coney Island Club can hardly fail to net less than $25,000 in the aggregate for the relief fund.

CLEVELAND HAS A SHOCK.

No Explosion Found, so an Earthquake Was the Next Guess.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 20.—A distant shock, believed by many to have been an earthquake, was felt in various parts of Cleveland at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. A few minutes later the telephone and newspaper offices were besieged with telephone queries as to where the explosion occurred.

A report was circulated that there had been an explosion at the Austin Powder plant in Newburg, but this proved to be unfounded. Careful investigation failed to show that there had been any kind of an explosion in the city.

Forecaster Kenealy felt the shock in the Weather Bureau in the Society for Savings, but could not tell whether it was due to earthquake shock.

HOT SPRINGS GROW HOTTER.

Wyoming Rise in Temperature Dates from Vesuvian Eruption.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Wyoming, April 20.—The temperature of the water at the hot springs here is now 158 degrees, or 20 degrees hotter than ever known before. The rise in temperature began with the eruption of Vesuvius and it is known that there has been a steady and marked rise. For several days the patients and other bathers have been complaining of the intense heat of the water, but until to-day the management had not made a test, believing the complaints groundless or the trouble temporary. The water will be tested daily to ascertain whether the San Francisco earthquake had any influence upon it.

FOREIGN AID DECLINED.

Roosevelt Grateful, but Feels We Can Care for Our Own.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Offers of assistance from abroad have been very gratifying to the President, but he feels that the United States is able to care for the San Francisco sufferers, and contributions from foreign countries will be declined. Mr. Ballin of the Hamburg-American Line offered $25,000 for the California sufferers. This declination, forwarded to Mr. Hamlin by Assistant Secretary Bacon of the State Department, shows the President's appreciation of the friendliness shown by Europeans:

"The President deeply appreciates your message of sympathy and desires me to thank you heartily for the kind offer of outside aid. Although declining, the President earnestly wishes you to understand how much he appreciates your cordial and generous sympathy."

William Loeb, Jr., the President's Secretary, sent this letter to Emil L. Boas, General Manager of the line, in New York:

"The President heartily appreciates the courtesy of the Hamburg-American Line, but there will be no need to accept any help outside of our own country. Although declining, however, the President desires that you should understand how sincere is his appreciation of the generous courtesy of the offer of the Hamburg-American Line."

Los Angeles Hears News Via Berlin.

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—Edward Newman of San Francisco, unable to communicate with Black Brothers of Los Angeles by wire, cabled to Isidor Holdheim, a cousin, in Berlin, Germany, saying that the Newman family, 1,802 Summer Street was well and alive. This news was cabled back from Germany to Black Brothers, who received the information to-day.

RUSHING RELIEF TRAINS TO THE STRICKEN CITY

Specials Carrying Food, Bedding, and Clothing Dispatched.

WILL HAVE THE RIGHT OF WAY

All Parts of the Country Anxious to Aid the Sufferers in San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Three trains are on the way from Eastern army depots to Chicago, bearing tents and other Government stores for San Francisco. Advices to this effect reached Col. Robinson, Chief Quartermaster of the Department of the Lakes, to-day. He was instructed to arrange for transporting these supplies direct to the West without delay. The trains are running on special schedules under the direction of the War Department.

The Adams Express Company received fourteen cars of tents from the army supply depot at Philadelphia by way of the Pennsylvania Railroad to-day. They were forwarded over the Burlington this afternoon. The Quartermaster's Department also sent West by express last night 812 large army storage tents from the Chicago army warehouse and from Fort Sheridan. Col. Robinson received a carload of army supplies consigned to San Francisco from Cincinnati this afternoon, which was rushed forward.

Reports from the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific offices in this city say that a large amount of supplies are moving to San Francisco.

One packing house started eight cars of meat to-day on the order of the Boston committee. Minneapolis is sending flour, and, in fact, every part of the country is moving for the relief of the stricken city.

E. H. Harriman passed through this city to-day on his special train for San Francisco. He was in the city less than one hour.

"I have issued orders," he said, "that the situation in San Francisco is to be considered above everything else. All the Harriman lines and all the steamship lines in which I am interested have been instructed to do everything possible and with the utmost energy for the relief of the people of San Francisco.

"I have ordered the collection and immediate sending of supplies from Los Angeles, Sacramento, Oakland, and other points. All other shipments of whatever character that may be given to the Harriman lines for transportation to San Francisco will, of course, be handled without charge of any kind.

"I am of the confident opinion that San Francisco will be rapidly rebuilt, and will be greater than ever. I am going through as rapidly as possible on a special train, and intend to see that my orders are carried out and to aid in their execution as much as I possibly can by being on the ground myself."

A carload of provisions, clothing, and bedding purchased by the Denver Chamber of Commerce for the homeless in San Francisco, started west from Denver last night, attached to the Union Pacific overland limited passenger train. Three express cars loaded with 1,000 tents and more than 500 cots left Fort Riley on the Union Pacific, and the entire tentage and camp equipment at Fort D. A. Russell, near Cheyenne, Wyoming, were shipped. The outfit is sufficient for 2,000 persons.

Word comes from Portland, Ore., that the Southern Pacific last night started a special train of twenty-six cars for the stricken city, carrying ten physicians, twenty trained nurses, and 800,000 pounds of provisions. Twenty-six cars more will start to-day. All available blankets and mattresses in Portland are to be sent. A train load of bread and provisions will follow each day. Two cars of potatoes and one car of bread will leave Salem, Ore., this morning.

SAFELY OUT OF THE CITY.

New York Refugees Reach Los Angeles and Tulare.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 20.—The following New Yorkers have gotten out of San Francisco and arrived safely in Los Angeles: L. Mounteim, W. P. Garwin, F. J. Hanold, Fred. W. Owen, Louis Weil, T. H. Mitchell and wife, Winfield Scott and wife, Edgar Allen, Emile Lacroix, Lillian May Moller, F. A. Baker, Louis C. Hirsch, L. H. Heilbroter, J. C. Montgomery, C. E. Orr, and A. Dalrymple.

Among to-day's arivals from San Francisco are these persons from other Eastern points: Thomas H. Claggett, C. G. Littlefield and wife, Boston; F. A. Yeaton, Boston; B. A. Kaiser and wife, New Haven, and C. R. McWilliams, Syracuse.

J. W. Quinn of New York, who is injured, is on a hospital train now proceeding from Los Angeles to New York.

Others who have reached here safely are L. Montheim, W. P. Garwin, J. Hanold, Lillian M. Moller, Louis C. Hirsch, W. E. Ball, L. H. Helborner, C. E. Orr, Fred W. Owen, J. C. Montgomery, A. Dalrympa, all of New York; Thomas H. Clagett of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Littlefield of Boston, and C. R. McWilliams of Syracuse.

News began to arrive here last night of New Yorkers who were in San Francisco during the earthquake and were on their way back. From Tulare, Cal., came the information that Nicholas Madison of 772 Park Avenue, J. E. Hymes of 124 West 117th Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Rendall of 1,786 Lexington Avenue were safe and had left San Francisco on a Santa Fé train. Mr. and Mrs. Rendall were on their honeymoon. Mr. Rendall and Mr. Hymes are connected with the United Cigar Stores Company, while Mr. Madison is connected with a Philadelphia cigar company.

From Los Angeles comes the news that T. L. Briggs, H. P. Bross, J. H. Wallbrock, Edgar Allen, and F. A. Baker of New York had arrived there among the refugees.

E. W. Sutphen of the English Daimler Automobile Company, which is connected with the Decauville Automobile Company of 1,743 Broadway, was at the Palace Hotel at the time of the earthquake. A telegram was received from him yesterday, saying that he was one of the first to leave the stricken City of San Francisco and is now on his way to this city. His telegram was sent from Sacramento, and it stated that the Palace Hotel was in flames just previous to his departure.

FUNSTON TELLS OF FIRE.

Telegraphs the Extent of the Fire to Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—This telegram was received by the War Department shortly after 11 o'clock this forenoon from Gen. Funston:

"Burned district now approximately as follows: From water front up Broadway to Mason Street, thence south to California Street, thence west to Jones, thence diagonally to Van Ness and Golden Gate Avenue. All this line now actively burning. Fire on following line practically out: From Van Ness west on Golden Gate Avenue to Filmore, thence south to Market, thence on irregular line to Valencia and Twenty-sixt, thence irregular line east to bay.

"Indications are that active fire line will advance west to Van Ness and north to Union and Montgomery Avenue. About 300,000 people homeless. Everything quiet. Troops co-operating with police. Famine seems inevitable. All large supply stores burned. Most energetic efforts from outside only can prevent frightful suffering. Weather now fine, and it is expected to remain so. I request that everything possible be done in the way of food supplies, tentage, and blankets. No more troops needed at present."

HEGEMAN
NEW DRUG STORE
TIMES BUILDING TIMES SQUARE,
42d St. and Broadway.
Telephone, 4021 Bryant.

NEW YORKERS KNOW.

If a stranger were to stand on the corner of Broadway and Fourteenth Street and ask one hundred of the city's vast population taken at random as they passed by, "Where is the best drug store in New York?" the probability is that ninety-eight would answer, "Hegeman's, in the Times Building, Broadway and Forty-second Street." The other two would say, "We are strangers here; ask a policeman." And if the policeman were asked, the chances are that he would reply, "Hegeman's, Times Building, Times Square. Take a Broadway car and get off at Forty-second Street."

For nearly eighty years the name Hegeman & Co. has stood for the best in drug store goods. Purity, quality, and freshness of drugs; genuineness and perfect condition of medicines, accuracy and reliability in the compounding of prescriptions. New Yorkers know this and those who live within a radius of many blocks around Times Square have welcomed the coming of a Hegeman store.

THE NAME ON THE LABEL.

We have noticed that men and women who know exactly what they want look for the name on the label of almost everything they buy. They know that there are dealers who will not put their name on anything of doubtful quality.

In the drug line the name to look for is "Hegeman & Co." When you get a bottle of medicine, a package of drugs, a toothbrush, or a hot water bottle with Hegeman & Co. on the label, you have the best that money can buy. When you have a prescription compounded at Hegeman & Co.'s, you receive exactly what your doctor ordered, a mixture of pure ingredients, carefully weighed and measured, scientifically combined, and doubly checked to insure absolute accuracy.

Even in ordinary drugs like Epsom Salts, Licorice Powder, Bicarbonate of Soda, and the thousand and one items that make up a modern drug store stock, the Hegeman quality standard is sustained. A man may live in a cheap room, he may wear cheap clothes, he may even eat cheap food, but he cannot afford to take a chance with inferior medicines. Health is man's most valuable possession, and should be guarded with the greatest care.

NO SUBSTITUTION.

The name Hegeman & Co. is a safeguard against the evil of substitution. If there be one rule of business conduct that is more rigidly enforced than any other at Hegeman's, it is that one article must never under any circumstance be substituted for another. That is insurance worth having, and it costs nothing.

WHAT YOU WANT.

You can get anything you require in the drug line at Hegeman's; any rare chemical, any little-used drug, any medicine on the market. There is no reason why any one should waste time and effort to obtain an uncommon remedy, perhaps never heard of in the average store. Go to Hegeman's first, and if it be obtainable you will be sure to get it there. This applies to imported goods, perfumes, toilet waters, soaps, powders, as well as to standard medicines.

THE CONVENIENCE OF DEALING AT HEGEMAN & CO.'S.

A point to remember in wet weather is that the store can be reached and entered from the Subway. A request by 'phone will bring you a messenger for a prescription to be compounded. Anything can be ordered by 'phone. Suppose you want a case of mineral water, a sponge, an atomizer, a box of mustard leaves, some quinine pills, and a thermometer, all you need do is call 4021 Bryant, and give your order. The goods will be delivered promptly at your door. Try this service; you will find it a great convenience.

PLANNING ALREADY FOR THE NEW SAN FRANCISCO

It Will Be Finer and Stronger Than the Old.

STEEL CONSTRUCTION STOOD

And There Is no Doubt of the Future in the Minds of Capitalists—What They Say.

OAKLAND, April 20.—Gov. Pardee to-day established headquarters at the City Hall. All persons seeking entry into San Francisco must apply to him.

Oakland has temporarily taken the place of San Francisco as the metropolis of the Pacific Coast. Here financiers, bankers, and merchants of San Francisco are conferring and getting into shape the first plans for the rebuilding of the burned city and preventing a widespread financial panic that for the first part of the catastrophe seemed certain. In the face of enormous loss and the complete wiping out of the commercial life of the empire city of the Pacific, the leaders of trade and commerce are cheerful and confident that all will be well in the end. The Governor, the Bank Commissioners, the architects, the insurance officers, and the representatives of many of the large commercial enterprises are now in the city arranging offices and clearing the way for a smooth adjustment of affairs which will lighten the heavy hand of disaster that has leveled everything in common ruin.

Leading men of the State are here assisting in the work of reorganization. The news that the money in the vaults of the banks of San Francisco is safe and that all the banks will pay in full as soon as calm replaces disorder has done much to prevent panic.

Construction companies have opened employment offices, and to-night hundreds of survivors have been employed to be sent immediately to the quarries, that there may be no lack of building and repair material.

Already many of the buildings damaged by the earthquake of Wednesday are being repaired, and activity of a healthy and reassuring sort is stirring all about.

With yesterday's news that the fire which had so multiplied the damage of the earthquake, was at last under control, came expressions of determination that San Francisco shall be created anew, more substantial and more beautiful than it was before nature wrecked it. It will take years to do what quake and flames undid in three days, but the owners of the land now buried beneath ruins say they will do it, and the builders say they can do it.

The practical men in the big construction companies in this city have not been slow to point out that, despite all that has been said about how easily the modern tall building would be leveled by such conditions as have been experienced in San Francisco, as a matter of fact the steel-frame buildings there were the ones which most effectually withstood the earthquake.

They also expressed confidence that many of this city's skyscrapers would have survived such a catastrophe and that with some extra precautions for strength in the outer walls the rebuilding of the Pacific Coast metropolis with structures that will withstand such an earthquake as that of Wednesday morning is perfectly feasible.

A Better, Stronger City.

In the rebuilding of San Francisco it is probable that an effort will be made to lay out the new city on different lines, so that the new structures for the business district may be provided with good foundations such as could not be obtained within the area of the made ground formerly occupied by the business section.

D. Ogden Mills, Col. Dudley Evans, President of Wells, Fargo & Co.; Archer M. Huntington, Isaac Guggenheim, and other New Yorkers who have lost heavily in the destruction of San Francisco, all expressed yesterday their conviction that the city would recuperate from this disaster and rise from the ruins more beautiful and more prosperous than ever. None of them seemed concerned about their personal losses, Mr. Mills saying that he did not know whether his loss would reach $8,000,000, and he could not make an estimate, but he was certain that to let the ruins lie piled upon the ground would be to throw away money, and that none of the losers was going to do that.

What D. O. Mills Says.

"I have not heard a word from my agent," said Mr. Mills, "and I fear that he is dead. I do not even know that my building, the Mills Building, a strong, ten-story structure, is standing. In spite of the uncertainty, one thing, however, is sure, the city will be rebuilt. If San Francisco alone was destroyed, there would be some sense in talk of leaving the city to lie in its ashes, but you see the shocks have extended over a large section of the State; so, really, if it comes to the point of abandoning San Francisco it comes to the point of abandoning California. I think no one considers such a tragic possibility."

If the ideas of Col. Evans, an old-time Californian, in the matter of rebuilding the city come to pass, the interesting fact will obtain that the disaster has shaken the places of the rich into the places of the poor, and vice versa. Col. Evans says that in rebuilding the city the business section should be laid out south of Market Street, where the poor have lived. There is better foundation to be had there.

Will Rise Phoenixlike.

"You may say for me, if my opinion is worth anything, that San Francisco will rise Phoenixlike from the ashes of her ruins. The present generation is imbued with the spirit of courage exhibited by their forefathers in their sturdy fight during the pioneer days of '49.

"In my opinion, San Francisco in a few years will be a greater and grander city than it ever was before. I do hope, however, that there will be some method arranged to keep the merchants from building on that dangerous spot of made ground.

"There the damage is always greatest, because there is no foundation, practically, for the immense buildings erected there necessary for the wholesale purposes. It is quite probable, though, that with the knowledge of the danger to be incurred by building there, the merchants will shun that portion of town and reconstruck on solid ground formerly known as Tar Flat, south of Market Street, where the poorer classes have heretofore lived."

The Logical Metropolis.

"All talk of abandoning the city for some such place as Seattle is foolish," said Archer M. Huntington, whose San Francisco residence containing many valuable paintings was destroyed. "San Francisco is the logical metropolis west of the Rockies. The city will be rebuilt at once, and it will be an improved city."

William H. Crocker, one of the great capitalists of San Francisco, who reached New York several days ago, and whose losses will be enormous, said yesterday:

"In five years San Francisco will be greater, finer, and more beautiful than ever. It is preposterous to think of abandoning the city. D. O. Mills, the Spreckels family—everybody I know—is determined to rebuild at once. The present calamity, frightful as it is, only clears the way for a city to be built on better plans and more beautiful."

Isaac Guggenheim of M. Guggenheim's Sons showed that his confidence of a new San Francisco is of a practical sort when he announced that orders had been issued to proceed as soon as possible with the construction of a new smelting plant planned recently for the city.

"We have every confidence in the city's recuperative power," he said. "Our losses have been fairly large, but so trifling in the face of the larger losses that I decline to discuss them."

Engineers and contractors are already sending representatives to the ruined city, where the results architecturally will be studied. The reports of these experts will have a great deal to do with the constructing business of the future. The George H. Fuller Company and the Thompson-Starrett Company have already started their men.

Why the Chronicle Building Stood.

Theodore Starrett, President of the Thompson-Starrett Company, called attention to the fact that the San Francisco Chronicle Building passed safely through the earthquake, although it was subsequently destroyed by fire. Mr. Starrett, nearly twenty years ago, when the Chronicle Building was put up, was the engineer for the firm of architects in charge of the job. He told yesterday his theories as to why the structure withstood the earthquake shock.

"When that building was put up," said Mr. Starrett, "the earthquake of 1873 was still fairly fresh in the minds of San Franciscans, and while the structure was not of the modern steel skeleton type, it contained one structural feature which, I am confident, saved it on Wednesday so far as the jarring of the earth was concerned.

"At every floor level and in some instances between floor levels there were imbedded in the outer walls courses of rails and I beams, extending entirely around the building and giving it greatly increased stability.

"The newspaper dispatches have indicated that the steel frame of The Call Building stood up in good shape and that The Chronicle Building was all right until the fire reached it, so that, so far as an earthquake is concerned, a union of these two types of building—that is, a steel frame with reinforced walls—should afford effective resistance."

Architect Francis H. Kimball, who designed the Empire and Trinity Buildings on lower Broadway, was quite decided in his belief that many of New York's tall buildings would have survived the San Francisco shock without serious injury.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Kimball, "that the foundations of many of our buildings, carried down by caissons to bedrock, would afford considerably greater security against any disturbances of the earth than could be had in structures supported by one means or another on a comparatively soft bottom.

"The modern steel skyscraper," added Mr. Kimball, "is no such fragile creation as most people imagine. Properly built, it is practically a unit, or a series of units bound together—much like a basket—and I am confident that this building (the Empire) would stand a powerful racking before collapsing or coming anywhere near it.

"There is one point in connection with the San Francisco disaster, to be brought out in the later investigation of its results, that will be of interest to architects and builders. That is whether the steel frame buildings which withstood the shock have not been thrown out of plumb. If, as has been told in some of the reports, the surface of the earth has been raised or lowered six or eight feet in places, it seems quite possible that some of the tall buildings which stood up may be found to be somewhat out of vertical alignment."

William H. Chesebrough, President of the Century Realty Company, who has been identified with many of the city's largest building projects within the last five or six years, said yesterday:

"I am not inclined to share the popular apprehension as to the fate of the skyscrapers, if New York should be visited by earthquake. Take the Whitehall Building, on Battery Place, for example—and I mention it only as one of a type and because I am thoroughly familiar with its construction—I feel safe in saying that if an earthquake of the same severity as the one at San Francisco should strike New York that structure would not be seriously damaged."

Engineers Have Started West.

Several of the larger building concerns already have their engineers on the way to the ruined city. Both the Thompson-Starrett and the George A. Fuller Companies will send engineers immediately, not particularly with the idea of getting business, but to make careful examinations of the damaged buildings, as was done in the case of the Baltimore fire, and collecting data which will be of service when the rebuilding actually begins.

One contractor, Frank B. Gilbreth, who has a representative on the scene, declared yesterday that he was prepared to go ahead as soon as he received satisfactory assurances that it was the intention of capitalists to invest there. Mr. Gilbreth expressed the opinion that the new San Francisco will be built of reinforced concrete. This type of construction consists of building an entire structure—walls, supporting columns, and floors—all of concrete, with steel rods or beams running through it to provide additional strength.

Reinforced Concrete Next.

"I believe," said Mr. Gilbreth, "that the new San Francisco will be built of reinforced concrete. The lesson taught by the Baltimore fire has been repeated here, for if it had not been for the conflagration the greater part of the Californian metropolis would still be standing.

"It is safe to say that no building can be put up that will stand the strain of a heavy earthquake shock when the motion is violent and variable, but it is possible to put up a structure that can resist the ordinary shock and at the same time be absolutely fireproof. I feel sure that this will be the method of procedure in the city that is yet to be erected."

Earthquake Rivals One in Guatemala, New Zealand Observers Say.

LONDON, April 21.—The Times correspondent at Wellington telegraphs that the New Zealand Government's seismograph showed that the California earthquake was almost as bad as that in Guatemala in 1902, the instrument recording waves around the earth five times at intervals of about four hours.

The leading morning newspapers to-day give a great deal of space to dispatches from and historical sketches of San Francisco. Editorials praise without stint America's courage and independence in not seeking foreign aid, but succoring its own, saying also that a new and magnificent San Francisco is likely to arise from the ashes of the old.

SETON AND HIS GANG GET THEIR SENTENCES

Norfolk & Western Stock Swindlers Sent to Prison.

COLMEY TO SERVE 11 YEARS

Six Years and Six Months for Humphreys — Seton Let Off Easily for Aiding the Prosecution.

Sentences were imposed yesterday by Recorder Goff, in General Sessions, on the four men found guilty, by confession or by trial, of complicity in the scheme to float 500 bogus 100-share certificates of the Norfolk & Western common stock. This scheme, had it succeeded, would have resulted in the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to its victims.

The prisoners lined up before the Recorder were Charles Augustus Seton, the brains of the conspiracy, who, however, admitted having insured the success of it by consulting the still more ingenious Alfred R. Goslin; "Col." T. C. P. Colmey, alias "Kid" Murray, a former pal of "Larry" Summerfield and still under indictment for a $40,000 fraud alleged to have been carried out together with that master swindler; Samuel L. Humphreys, who says he is a former reporter, and Douglas E. Smith, who was picked up by the others to do a subsidiary part of the work.

It was learned from Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who has prosecuted those cases, that the net is still out for several men accused of trying to dispose of the bonds prepared by the head conspirators. Foremost among these, Mr. Garvan mentioned a man named Davis, an accomplice of Colmey, who is said to have raised $4,000 on one of the bonds in Cleveland.

Mr. Garvan said that the scheme undoubtedly was conceived by Seton and Humphreys. Humphreys was the man who finally destroyed the 490 bonds remaining when exposure had become inevitable. To his share in the original offense he had added a false confession, which caused the District Attorney to leave him at liberty for a while on his own promise to report when required.

Of Colmey Mr. Garvan said that he had from the very start interfered in every way with the investigation of the State and had done his utmost to foil the prosecution.

Seton was the only one who made a clean breast of it, and who helped the prosecution to bring the other conspirators to justice. This he had done after being convicted before Recorder Goff of swindling the promoters of the Houston & Galveston Interurban Railroad out of $6,800, for which crime he was also to be sentenced. The fourth prisoner, Smith, Mr. Garvan said, had got $1.05 from Seton for forging one of the needed signatures, and he had got that money in installments of from 15 to 35 cents.

Smith got off with twelve months in the penitentiary. Humphreys received a sentence of six years in Sing Sing prison.

Colmey, looking defiant to the last, was told that but for his previous bad record the fact that four years and a half in prison were already coming to him would have been a reason for clemency. As it was he got six years and six months in addition, raising the term he has to serve to eleven years.

In recognition of the service Seton had rendered the State by his confession no sentence was pronounced for the Norfolk & Western swindle, to which he had pleaded guilty. The Recorder took pains to point out that the sentence was not suspended, but merely deferred. On the grand larceny charge, of which he had been found guilty by a jury, he got eight years in State prison.

NIAGARA A NATIONAL AFFAIR.

Canadians on Waterways Commission Say It Should Be Treated as Such.

TORONTO, Ontario, April 20.—The report of the Canadian section of the International Waterways Commission has been made public. It declares the maintenance of Niagara is a national affair and should be dealt with as such.

The United States Secretary of War has enforced rules and regulations upon American companies which the commission will probably use as a foundation for regulations to be ultimately recommended to the two Governments. The whole question of riparian rights in relation to navigable streams or international waters will most likely have to be adjudged by some treaty arrangement between the two countries.

The commission passed a resolution asking that no further rights or privileges be granted regarding the water flowing out of Lake Superior.

A THREE-SIDED WRANGLE AT WOODBURY HEARING

Ivins, Rand, and Alderman Dowling Enliven the Proceedings.

STREET CLEANING EXPENSES

The Commissioner Denies That the City Is Paying for a Department Contractor's Laborers.

A controversy between counsel enlivened the investigation into the Street Cleaning Department yesterday. W. M. Ivins and William Rand held different views on the functions of the counsel for Commissioner Woodbury. Alderman Dowling, a member of the Investigating Committee, sided with Mr. Rand. Chairman Grifenhagen interfered sharply, and Mr. Dowling declared that, whatever the majority might think, he was not going to be muzzled.

The dispute arose over the contract of a man named Morrone with the Street Cleaning Department. He is supposed to pay the sinking fund of the city $1,200 a week for the privilege of trimming scows. On this sum he receives some rebates. Mr. Ivins regards these rebates with suspicion, and tried to ascertain the exact form in which they were allowed. Mr. Rand accused him of "endeavoring to cloud the issue," and then the trouble began.

"The Commissioner," Mr. Ivins said, "is using padrone labor, and he is paying for labor without making it plain to the city that he is reducing his labor bill at the expense of the sinking fund."

Mr. Rand asked Mr. Dowling to ask the witness about the practice in trimming scows at other points. Woodbury did not give exactly the answer Mr. Rand wished, and he started to ask another question.

"I don't want you to ask questions," broke in Mr. Ivins, "and above all, I don't want you to suggest the answers."

"That's very discourteous of you, Mr. Ivins," said Mr. Rand, sotto voce.

"Mr. Rand has no right to conduct a cross-examination through a committeeman," said Mr. Ivins. "He will have an opportunity to ask anything he wants when I have finished."

"You are endeavoring to cloud the issue," interjected Mr. Rand.

"I'll say right now," broke in Alderman Dowling, "no committee will stop me asking what questions I want. I'm not sitting here to be muzzled."

Chairman Grifenhagen here intervened. "I have ruled that if counsel for the witness desires to ask questions he must put them through Mr. Ivins. The Commissioner's not a lawyer, but he can understand English."

Commissioner Woodbury then gave the amount expended in four years by the department for a new plant at $1,062,508.11, and declared that he was renewing the old uncovered carts for collecting refuse with covered ones as fast as the old ones wore out.

Mr. Ivins called his attention to the number of city buildings near the West Forty-seventh Street incinerator, in lighting which he could use his wasted 250 horse power. He replied:

"I can and shall soon light De Witt Clinton Park, but cannot serve the others, because I cannot get into the conduits. I shall ask the opinion of the Corporation Counsel about the legal rights you say we have. We light the Williamsburg Bridge with what used to be thrown into the sea. That's something, isn't it?"

A return of the stables hired by the department showed that G. W. Plunkitt was the lessor of two at a rental of $4,000 and $6,000 for ten years, and that Frank D. Creamer, ex-Sheriff of Kings County and Robert Furey, a contractor, of Brooklyn, also rented stables to the city.

The Commissioner said he did not know why the number of horses disabled by sickness had increased 25 per cent. since he had been in office. The hearing was then adjourned until Monday, April 30, at 10:30 o'clock.

TAFT CHARGES WALLACE WITH TELLING UNTRUTH

Prevaricated, He Says, About Leaving Canal Well Organized.

NEW LIGHT ON HIS MOTIVES

Letter from Magoon Said Wallace Wanted $50,000 to $60,000 Salary and Limitless Power.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Secretary Taft appeared before the Canal Committee of the Senate to-day to explain the transactions of the Government in regard to the canal since May, 1904, and to urge speedy decision on the part of the Congress as to what its immediate policy in regard to the great undertaking will be. He pointed out that the work was at a point just now where it would be impossible to proceed further without definite knowledge on the part of the constructors as to whether the canal would be built at the sea level or with locks.

The statement was very voluminous, and was accompanied by numerous letters and other documentary exhibits. Though of great interest in every detail, it was particularly so in the parts referring to the events leading up to and connected with the resignation of Chief Engineer Wallace.

The Secretary told the committee of his surprise when, a few months after the return of Mr. Wallace to Panama, he received a cablegram from the Chief Engineer asking in a most urgent way, but without giving the true reason, that he be given permission to start for Washington at once. Secretary Taft handed the committee copies of a personal letter from Gov. Magoon, now made public for the first time. It was dated from the Isthmus June 11, 1905, and said in part:

> Mr. Wallace has had two conversations with me of such character that I feel obliged to communicate the substance to you. He says he has received an offer of employment in the States that affords him more pay and better opportunities than his present position. He is going to resign as Chief Engineer, but is willing to remain as a member of the commission.
>
> I was anxious to ascertain if there were anything back of it, and therefore asked if there was anything in his relations with me, personal or official or our relative standing, &c., that was objectionable. He said, "No. The trouble lies in another direction," and proceeded to object to the requirement that he should remain on the Isthmus except when given permission to leave; to receiving less salary than Shonts; and to being placed in a position subordinate to the Chairman, "who was getting the credit of bossing the job."
>
> He went on to say that the only thing that would induce him to remain was to make him Chairman, combine the two departments of which he and Shonts are the heads, and give him full power over all the work, complete and unrestricted; fix his salary at between $50,000 and $60,000, he to come to the Isthmus when he saw fit and depart as his discretion determines. The plan he has in mind is, that he is to be so completely vested with all authority that no one can doubt or question that the entire credit of the enterprise in all branches belongs to him.
>
> He made a further statement to which I attached grave significance—that he left the Illinois Central twice without telling them, directly, what he wanted, and was sent for and given three times as much as would have induced him to remain at the time he left.
>
> Evidently he considers himself essential to this enterprise, and, for the immediate present, he is.
>
> Speaking of his desire to be the head of the enterprise, he told me that he figured from the first that Admiral Walker would not last more than two years, and he had intended to have things in such shape by that time that he would be made Chairman; but the old commission went to pieces too quickly for him. When to the present development is added numerous incidents occurring during the past two months, incidents that appeared to be trivial at the time but now appear important indices, I cannot escape the conviction that he is trying to "pull off" a carefully contrived coup d'etat. I think he expects to go, but to be recalled in the future. I can readily understand that from his point of view the action and motive I attribute to him is entirely justifiable. In railroad circles, as on the Stock Exchange, it is entirely justifiable, and even commendable, to "squeeze" friend or foe when you have the chance and can profit by it.
> That something like this is in his mind is indicated by his telling me when I urged him to have a full and free talk with you that he had thought of going to Shonts and "putting it to him straight."

Referring to the assertion by Wallace that he could not have chosen a better time to resign, as the departments had been thoroughly organized and W. E. Dauchy, whom he had left in charge, was in every way equal to the task, Secretary Taft said in substance:

"These statements are utterly untrue. Instead of that [making Mr. Dauchy his assistant chief engineer] he retained him merely as resident engineer at Culebra. Nothing could more emphatically testify to the fact that Mr. Wallace did not regard Mr. Dauchy as equal to the position in which he left him.

"Mr. Wallace deserted the Government at a time when his presence on the Isthmus was indispensable, and instead of making abundant provision, as he says, for the provision of the interests of the Government, he utterly ignored those interests and selected a time for his departure that could not have been more disastrous."

Mr. Taft ended his statement with these words about the canal:

> The enterprise is now organized on business principles and it is about time for the work of construction to begin. He would be a rash man who would assert positively and unequivocally that there had not been any waste of money or any corruption of any kind in the expenditure of some seventeen or eighteen millions under the conditions of distance and the sometimes necessary freedom from the closest supervision that have obtained in this work, but it can be affirmed that in spite of all the investigations, in spite of all the publicity given in various papers, as yet there has been no proof of corruption of any sort in the enterprise since the beginning, and I certainly hope that there is and will be nothing to justify such proof.

BOY AND GIRL STABBED.

Older Victim Can Tell Only of a "Fearful, Furious Face."

A boy and girl who were temporarily left in charge of a room full of diamonds and jewelry in the establishment of Meyerowitz Brothers, on the second floor of 37 Maiden Lane, at luncheon hour yesterday were dangerously stabbed. One is Bella Hecht, 18 years old, stenographer for the firm, of 91 Court Street, Brooklyn; the other, Jacob Meyerowitz, 15 years old, a relative of the members of the firm, who only recently came to this country from Russia. The girl is strong for her years, the boy quite a little chap for his age.

The members of the firm were out of town yesterday. They left their business temporarily in charge of Miss Rose Meyerowitz, a sister of the Meyerowitz brothers. There is usually a bookkeeper there, too, but she was not in the office yesterday. So when Miss Meyerowitz went out to luncheon about 12 o'clock only Bella Hecht and the office boy, Jacob, were left in the office.

At about 12:30 o'clock piercing shrieks resounded through the building. The Superintendent, who was temporarily running an elevator, and who was making a down trip at the time, told the up-going elevator man to see what was the matter. At the second floor he saw Bella Hecht stagger out of the Meyerowitz office and collapse.

"Save him! save him!" she was screaming. She apparently meant the office boy Jacob, who was found a moment later lying on the floor just inside of the diamond establishment, almost insensible from his wounds. On a table near by lay a long knife.

The two big safes containing the diamonds, all the show cases, and everything in the office were undisturbed.

The two wounded children were taken to the Hudson Street Hospital. The girl was found to have several wounds. She was operated on, and her chances for recovery are slight. The boy also had several cuts. He probably will recover.

"I was reading," Bella Hecht told her mother. "Suddenly I saw a fearful, furious face. I was stabbed and so was 'Yakob,'" this being the name by which the little office boy was most familiar to her.

"Go in and see poor 'Yakob,'" the girl added.

When Mrs. Hecht went to the bedside of the boy all that he said was:

"Bella is better off than me. She has her mother here, but I haven't."

Police Captain Dillon will continue his investigation to-day.

SHE HORSEWHIPS MERCHANT.

Third Time Miss Kesser Has Attacked Him, Says Heine.

Sigmund B. Heine, an embroidery merchant of 503 Broadway, and his son-in-law, William A. Heilprin, who live together at 116 East Sixtieth Street, appeared in the Yorkville Court yesterday against Mary A. Kesser, a young woman who lives at 54 West 117th Street, accusing her of assault.

Heilprin said that the woman horsewhipped his father-in-law when he left his residence for his office yesterday morning, and that when he interfered in Heine's behalf, Miss Kesser used her whip upon him. He displayed three horsewhips, which he said Miss Kesser had used upon Heine on as many different occasions.

Miss Kesser is suing Heine, in the Supreme Court, for breach of promise, naming her damages at $100,000. Heine is a widower with two grown daughters. He says Miss Kesser has horsewhipped him three times and has threatened many times more to attack him again.

Magistrate Mayo put Miss Kesser under $300 bond to keep the peace for three months, and paroled her in her counsel's custody until to-day to furnish a bond.

NEGRO SAYS HE'S MURDERER.

Philadelphia Police Say They Have Man Who Did Shooting on Elevated.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—William Perry, a negro, who, according to the police, says he shot and killed Lewis and Alice Williams, also colored, at the 110th Street elevated railroad station in New York yesterday, gave himself up to the Philadelphia police early to-day. Perry, who is about 35 years of age, says he objected to the attentions Williams paid to the woman and for that reason killed him. He had not intended killing the woman, he declares.

Perry says he purchased a revolver on Wednesday and lay in wait for the couple. He boarded the elevated train with them yesterday morning and would have shot Williams on the train except for the fact that a policeman was sitting opposite them. His opportunity came, he said, when the couple left the train at 110th Street.

Perry escaped on a surface car and went to Jersey City, where he sold the revolver. He then came to Philadelphia and later went to Camden, N. J., where he spent the afternoon and evening. Perry became remorseful, returned to Philadelphia at 2 o'clock this morning, and went directly to the Central Police Station, where he gave himself up.

"I'm a murderer," he said. "I shot and killed a man and woman in New York."

He is held for the New York police.

The Philadelphia police telephoned yesterday to Inspector McLaughlin in this city telling him of Perry's arrest, and Detective Sergts. Stransky and Ware were sent over to the Quaker City to take steps to fetch the prisoner to this city.

NEGRO ATTACKS A WOMAN.

Soldiers from Fort Hamilton Called Out to Join in Search.

Miss Louise Ott, 24 years of age, who lives in the Fort Hamilton section of Brooklyn, near Eighty-third Street, was returning home from visiting friends last night when, in Eighty-fourth Street, she was attacked by a negro who afterward made his escape.

Miss Ott's screams for help were heard by Policeman Seering, who took her to the Fort Hamilton Station. Dr. Livingstone of the Norwegian Hospital, who was called, said that the young woman was suffering from shock and fright.

The reserves from the Fort Hamilton station were immediately ordered out. They were joined in their search for the negro by a party of white men, who threatened to lynch the negro if they found him.

Fort Hamilton was asked to send a few soldiers to aid the police in the search and to prevent violence.

At an early hour this morning, although the entire vicinity was being hunted over, the negro had not been found.

RESTRICTS HAGGIN SUIT.

The Readers Must Confine Themselves to Bill of Particulars.

Justice Scott handed down a decision in the Supreme Court yesterday relating to the libel suits brought by Athole B. Reader and his wife, Eleanor Rawls Reader, promoters, against James B. Haggin, the horseman, in which they seek to recover $3,150,000. According to the decision the plaintiffs will be permitted to testify at the trial only concerning the facts stated in bills of particulars furnished to Mr. Haggin at his request.

The plaintiffs declare that the defendant libeled them concerning their business methods in Peru and Santo Domingo, where he purchased gold mines which cost him over $2,000,000. The defendant says that the bills of particulars furnished did not comply with the orders of the court. He requested that the plaintiffs be prevented from giving any further evidence than contained in the bills of particulars.

Must Explain Wife's Violent Death.

Coroner Gibson of Huntington, L. I., held Charles Meineke yesterday for further examination to-day in the case of the shooting of Mrs. Elizabeth Meineke, his wife, who was found dead with a bullet wound in her heart. Meineke told the Coroner that his wife had grabbed a revolver to kill herself, and when he tried to get it away from her the weapon was discharged. The Coroner does not think the shot was fired at short range, as described by Meineke.

C. S. Francis Resigns as Regent.

ALBANY, April 20.—Charles S. Francis filed his resignation to-day with the Secretary of State as Regent of the University of the State of New York. He had ten years more to serve. Mr. Francis was recently appointed American Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, and will sail for his post April 28.

Jerome Urges Meade's Removal.

Argument was heard by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday on the application for the removal of Clarence W. Meade from the office of City Magistrate. The application was made by William Travers Jerome as a citizen. Mr. Meade is partly paralyzed, and it is contended that his illness clogs public business, and that another Magistrate should be appointed.

Bricklayers Sign Trade Agreement.

It was announced yesterday by the officers of the Bricklayers' Unions that Local 37, which had at first refused to sign the trade agreement with the Mason Builders' Association, has withdrawn its objection and signed the agreement. This agreement is for over two years and provides that the bricklayers receive 70 cents an hour for a day of eight hours.

COURT FINES RAILROAD $40,000 FOR REBATING

Two Burlington Officials Also Mulcted in $10,000 Each.

FINES PAID IMMEDIATELY

Judge Says a Penalty of Imprisonment Would Be More Effective in Preventing Such Offenses.

CHICAGO, April 20.—The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, Darius Miller, and Claude G. Burnham, officials of the road, were found guilty to-day in the Federal Court of granting rebates in violation of law. The railroad corporation was fined $40,000 and the two officials $10,000 each.

The technical charge against the railroad and against Mr. Miller, who is Traffic Manager and Vice President of the road, and Mr. Burnham, who is Foreign Manager, was that illegal rebates had been granted to the United States Steel products Export Company, which is a subsidiary company of the United States Steel Corporation in shipping tin plate from this country to Vancouver.

Chester M. Dawes, counsel for the railroad company, read a statement in which he acknowledged that the facts as charged in the indictment were correct. He admitted a technical violation of the Elkins act.

"The courts use the term 'rebate' in these cases," he said, "but there is no suggestion in this case that a rebate has been paid. The technical charge is a departure from the published tariff. Careful investigation of the prices at which tin plate was being sold in British Columbia and of the freight rates from British ports by steamers and sailing vessels convinced us that in order to compete not only would it be necessary for the American manufacturer to sell very close to the cost price, but also for the railroads to make a very considerable reduction in rates from mills to British Columbia points. The result of arrangements made by the railroads with the shipper was to promote American trade with injury to no American interest.

"When it is remembered that the Government itself gives a rebate of 99 per cent. of the duty paid on imported tin plates when they are manufactured into cans and exported in order to protect the American manufacturer against his foreign competitor, the departure from the tariff in this case finds full justification in principle, if not in law."

The case then went to the jury, District Attorney Morrison making no recommendation to the court.

A verdict of guilty was returned at once, and Judge Bethea immediately passed sentence, saying:

"Most of the suggestions made by counsel for the defendants applies to the law-making power, and not to the enforcement of the existing laws. It may be true that the law should be different, but I think it the duty of the court to enforce the law as it stands, and I must look at it in that light. There is too much practice in this country of people obeying what laws they please, and not obeying them all.

"I think there are circumstances in this case which will not prompt me to assess a heavy fine against the individuals to prevent them from repeating this offense and causing others to hesitate from following their example. It is not for me to say that a fine will accomplish this. If there was a provision for imprisonment in the penitentiary, much more in that way might be accomplished.

"The sentence of the court will be that Mr. Miller will be fined $10,000, Mr. Burnham $10,000, and the corporation $40,000 and the costs of the suit. The defendants will stand committed until fines and costs are paid."

The fine was paid promptly, the defendants going to the office of United States Marshal Ames, where a check was made out for the full amount of the three fines. Under the law, the court could have assessed a fine of from $1,000 to $20,000 under each of the six counts in the indictment.

Receiver for Hotel Rents.

Judge Clinch of the Supreme Court has appointed Henry L. Felt receiver of rents of the twelve-story apartment hotel building at the northeast corner of Columbus Avenue and Eighty-first Street, in a suit brought by the Manhattan Square Realty Company against the Eighty-first Street and Columbus Avenue Realty Company, Harry L. Fairbairn and Thomas B. Williams, to foreclose a third mortgage for $23,500, on which there is interest unpaid. The bond of the receiver was fixed at $25,000, and he agreed to serve without compensation. There are two prior mortgages.

SLICER SAYS M'CLELLAN IS FOR STERILIZED BETS

Tells a Stamford Audience Our Mayor Wrote Indorsement.

TAKES A FLING AT JEROME

Minister Exults Over Success of Jockey Club War on Poolrooms and Uses a Little Slang.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 20.—The Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, pastor of All Souls' Church, New York, was the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Congregational Club to-night, and in response to what he seemed to consider a challenge from the District Attorney's office, he departed from his prepared speech long enough to make a spirited defense of his recent action about race-track betting and to get in ever so gently, but just the same very distinctly, a couple of flings at District Attorney Jerome. Dr. Slicer was down to respond to the toast "Human Interest," and had not intended to speak about poolrooms. But Charles D. Lockwood, who is one of Jerome's assistants, was called on, and brought up the subject. He said the Constitution of New York prohibited all betting, and yet there was a law permitting it on race tracks. Then he told of Dr. Slicer's action, and, while he said he knew the clergyman's motives were good, yet it was rather an incongruous state of affairs when a rich man could legally bet but a poor man couldn't.

When Dr. Slicer was introduced he said, rather tartly, that, as regards the law, he would be glad to provide Mr. Jerome's assistant with decisions and opinions, but could not go into the subject then.

"I did deliberately make a deal with The Jockey Club Stewards," he said, "whereby I was to withdraw support from this bill prohibiting race-track betting and they were to cut off information from the poolrooms. Now, as regards the constitutional part of it, that law which they wanted to repeal was drawn up by Elihu Root, one of the most important framers of the revised Constitution. Now I am asked why I refused to line up with Peter De Lacey and The Allen and other poolroom kings to kill race-track betting. I did it because De Lacey and Allen and their like ensnare the immature and irresponsible. When I made this contract with The Jockey Club many were skeptical. Even my good friend Bill Devery remarked that this time Augey Belmont 'had' sold the Rev. Tommy a lemon. But The Jockey Club Stewards have lived up to the spirit and the letter of the contract, and there has been practically no poolroom betting this week.

"But anybody is wrong who thinks I have got fun out of this. I have had some since last Monday, I confess, but had not much before. This morning I had a letter from Mayor McClellan commending my action. I hope to get the co-operation of Gen. Bingham and Mr. Jerome."

This was all Dr. Slicer said about the poolrooms, but in speaking of policy playing he got in a slap at Jerome. He spoke of the conviction of Al. Adams, and said the late Capt. Norton Goddard supplied all the evidence in that case.

"Mr. Jerome carried that case through with signal success," he said, with emphasis on the "that." "He didn't let him off with a fine of $1,000, but he sent him to Sing Sing for two years."

The whole of Dr. Slicer's speech was in breezy style. Here is a typical passage:

"A man blew into a club around midnight, the other night, when I was talking with a couple of members. He butted into the conversation.

"'What I like about New York,' he said, 'is that you can live your own life.'

"He then described a life, but even he didn't say he lived it. When he got through, I said: 'Well, New York is so strong we could carry you, but I want to give you a rule. The question is not whether you could live that life, but whether 4,000,000 people could live it. Then we would not have New York—we would have hell, for the city would not hold together twenty-four hours.'"

DOWIE ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

Federal Authorities Invoked by Investor of $10,000 in Zion City.

CHICAGO, April 20.—James Surrock of New Mexico to-day made complaint to the Federal authorities that he had been defrauded of $10,000 by John Alexander Dowie, and that the mails had been used in the operation.

Surrock asserted that by means of letters written to him by Dowie he was induced to invest in Zion City, and that he has demanded repayment in vain.

The matter was referred to Post Office Inspector Stuart for investigation.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE
SUNDAY APRIL 22

QUESTIONS FOR THE DRINKING MAN WHO DARES OR CARES TO ANSWER THEM.

Must you have that morning drink before you begin business?

If so you have the alcoholic craving.

Do your drinking habits hinder your daily work, incapacitating you for accuracy at figures, quickness of thought, correctness of judgment or sustained effort?

That's a condition that precedes loss of employment or failure in business.

Are you ambitious to succeed, to save money, to push your advantage?

Drinking wastes instead of saving, and bars men from advancement.

Do you know that the whisper, "He's a drinking man," will bar you from lucrative positions which your ability entitles you to hold?

Has it yet been whispered of you, "He's a drinking man?"

Every bar-rail you lean on has been polished, by the elbows of "good fellows" whose wives to-day are drudges and their children neglected.

Have you a wife and children?

Do you know that medical science affirms alcoholism to be a disease, and that the disease can be promptly and perfectly cured by the

OPPENHEIMER TREATMENT?

No man can longer take refuge in the hopeless statement, "I can't stop drinking." Any man can stop who will take the OPPENHEIMER TREATMENT.

No man need shrink from the giving up of liquor through fear of shock or suffering. There is no suffering. No detention from business. No injections.

The OPPENHEIMER TREATMENT for alcoholism absolutely REMOVES ALCOHOLIC CRAVING IN FROM 12 TO 48 HOURS.

It gives a man back his interest in and enjoyment of work, it restores his energy and application, increases his value to his employer, and therefore increases his earning capacity. The tabulation of salaries of wage-earners of all classes after taking the Oppenheimer Treatment shows EARNINGS INCREASED [illegible]. Any man who wants to recover his lost value to his family, to society and his employer can do so if he will take the OPPENHEIMER TREATMENT.

Representative physicians in each city of the U. S. administer this special treatment for alcoholism or it can be obtained from your own physician under the direction of the Oppenheimer Institute.

Full particulars will be sent in plain sealed envelopes on your request. Fill out this coupon.

THE RELIEF WORK.

The relief committees would do well to consider attentively what they have undertaken to do, and how they are going to do it. Some measure of the magnitude of their undertaking will be afforded by an attempt to picture forth conditions as they exist in San Francisco to-day. That is not altogether easy, for the total destruction of so large a part of a great city is new to our experience. Here are some 200,000 persons, possibly more, who have lost their homes. They must have shelter, not in faraway towns or cities, but right there in San Francisco while the work of rebuilding goes on. They must have food. A rough idea of what all this will cost may be had from a comparison with the cost of maintaining an army of 200,000 persons in the field. The daily food requirement is immense, and unless the supply is abundant and the means of distribution ample there will be untold suffering and many persons will die of hunger. These daily supplies of food kept up during months to come will cost a great sum of money.

Multitudes of the shopkeepers and persons engaged in trade in San Francisco have lost not only their homes, but their means of livelihood. Everything has been taken from them. Weeks must pass before they will be able to earn a living. The generous people of the country must take care of them, must tide them over this time of calamity and destruction until they are able again to care for themselves.

The response to the appeal in behalf of San Francisco has been prompt and surprisingly generous. It is easy to raise three millions or five millions by the initial impulses to benefaction always brought into play by such tales of destruction and suffering as have come from San Francisco. But the first impulse will not go far enough. Very much more than five millions will be needed. To raise the great sums demanded for adequate relief organized work will be necessary. It is not alone from the rich that the money must come. It ought to be a people's movement, broad as the land itself. Wide and general participation makes the raising of the fund not a burden but a pleasure and deep satisfaction. Without organized work the people will not be effectively reached by the appeal, nor will facilities be afforded for receiving and forwarding the multitude of gifts. It is a work in which all men and women, and children too, should join and will join if only the opportunity is offered. Churches, schools, social organizations, trades, shops big and little, and all centres that bring humanity together in large or small groups can be made to co-operate if the work is properly organized from the beginning.

It will be a mistake to trust altogether to spontaneous contributions. The fund got in that way will fall far short of San Francisco's need, and bitter suffering will be entailed before the mistake can be corrected. This is the time to take a just measure of the extent of the calamity and of the demanded relief. This is the time for broad and effective organization.

A VICIOUS BILL.

The Elsberg bill is a municipal ownership wolf, and it doesn't even wear decent sheep's clothing. It is vicious, and ought to be vetoed for that; it is false in pretense, and for that it ought to be sent to the limbo of death.

It has been put before the people of this city as a measure "permitting" the separation of the contract for construction from the contract for equipment and operation of future subways "so as to let in competition against the present monopoly." The bill will not work in that way. It cuts down the term of subway leases from seventy-five years—fifty years with a twenty-five-year renewal privilege—to twenty years, with a possible renewal for twenty years more. Mr. RIVES has pointed out that this shortening of the lease would drive away competition. Capitalists and corporations would not be interested to undertake a contract requiring them to provide rolling stock and build power houses for a twenty-year privilege of operation. The Interborough Company already has power houses, and with some additions to its present rolling stock it would be in a position to operate the new subways. It could easily outbid any competitor. As a means of opening a way to competition with the present monopoly the Elsberg bill is a sham. The real purpose of the measure is revealed by its treatment of the Rapid Transit Commission. It destroys the independence of that board, robs it of power, and provides for its degradation into politics.

The Rapid Transit Commission has been an efficient public servant. Within the memory of the oldest New Yorker no Commission has served the city with a higher degree of intelligence and ability, or of that high capacity that gets things done. It gave New York the Subway. Its efficiency has sprung from its independence. Municipal elections did not affect it; it stood in terror of no politician. The Elsberg bill drags the Commission down into the mire of politics and party strife. It makes the action of the board subject to approval by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It opens the Commissionerships to the ambition of district leaders. More than that, it clears the way for dangerous and costly ventures in municipal operation.

It will be yet some years before the city will have to invite bids for the separate operation of the new subways. Three years hence a Mayor will be elected, and the municipal ownership agitators hope to get in their man. They look forward to obtaining control of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and with the power to appoint Rapid Transit Commissioners in their possession they would have a clear field. Their hopes will not come to realization, but that is what they mean. The immediate evils that would certainly flow from the placing of this measure upon the statute book are, however, great enough to make it the duty of the Mayor to withhold his approval. We hope he will send the Elsberg bill back to Albany with his veto.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Unquestionably San Francisco will be rebuilt. The domestic and foreign commerce of which it is the immediate and indispensable centre makes that entirely certain. The vast interests, productive, industrial, financial, mercantile, and connected with transportation will not be denied. And, paradoxic as it may seem, the completeness of the destruction offers to those in control of these great interests an opportunity unlike any presented to an enterprising and intelligent body of able men in the history of cities.

The nature of the opportunity is indicated in the causes of the disaster to the city. Earthquake, followed by fire, due in the first instance to the earthquake, with the breaking of the water mains by the shock, and the spread of the fire through crowded quarters, this, in brief, is the case. On the site devastated and swept clean the renewed city is to be planned and constructed, and the two prime requirements of the new task will be resistance, as far as practicable, to earthquake, and the prevention of fire, with the best possible means of suppressing it if it occur. The earthquake is the most impressive of the menacing evils, but it is not the most to be dreaded. The actual injury to property, and probably to life and limb, from this cause is relatively small. It must carefully be guarded against, but fire is the agent of the worst destruction, is most imperatively to be resisted, and, fortunately, is most within the control and practical management of human foresight and skill.

As against fire on a large scale effective safeguards are possible. Fireproof or slow-burning material, spaces adjusted to checking the spread of flames and the best methods for putting out fire—these are now all well within the scope of organized precaution. The danger to all our large cities from fire has arisen, as it arose in San Francisco, from the steady and usually inevitable accumulation of cheap and combustible structures for residence and business in certain quarters of the towns. So long as building goes on unregulated, according to the needs and means of individual owners, this cannot be helped, and regulation that would help it has heretofore been impossible. It will not be impossible, and it ought to be certain, in this case, under the pressure of the awful consequences of neglect.

Enormous wealth, in the hands of as capable men as have ever been known, is enlisted in the resurrection of San Francisco. United and organized, these men, with this wealth, can make sure that the city is rebuilt of practically fire-proof material, on a plan that will give ample spaces to resist the advance of a conflagration, should one be started, and with provision of fire-fighting methods—modern chemistry is quite equal to such provision—largely independent of the water mains. Organization is the key to the problem, and perfectly effective organization to the men who in the last three decades have done what has been done on the Pacific Coast should be feasible. A terrible catastrophe has given them a splendid opportunity.

CASTRO.

The World has a curious Washington dispatch setting forth that the egregious CIPRIANO CASTRO, sometime so-called President of the so-called Republic of Venezuela, is coming to this country, "when secret diplomatic negotiations with Washington are completed and he is assured he will be received in his official capacity."

The dispatch is curious, because our Government has already and officially been assured that CASTRO has abdicated the Presidency of Venezuela, and consequently has no "official capacity." We have been officially told that Gen. GOMEZ is, until further notice, the President of Venezuela, and that, if we have any business to transact with that republic, it is through him that we must transact it. There cannot be, at least according to international law and usage, two Presidents of Venezuela at one time. If we recognize GOMEZ officially it is manifestly impossible that we should recognize CASTRO officially.

It is quite true that CASTRO's retirement had an obvious and trailing string to it. He reserved the right to revoke or modify it at any time, even while he said that if it proved to be a good thing for Venezuela he stood ready to make it permanent. It is of course possible that he issued it with the intention of traveling abroad. There will be much curiosity to see him in this country. He is looked upon among us in the light of Artemus Ward's kangaroo, which, it may be remembered, was described as "an amoozin' but onprinsipled little cuss."

But, to be received officially it is manifestly necessary that he should dissolve his own temporary injunction against himself. Otherwise he must come incognito, a mode of travel which would give him more fun and us less trouble.

ASSURING THEIR OWN DEFEAT.

Those insurance officers who have not opposed the pending amendments of the laws owe scant thanks to those whose opposition caused the expressions printed by us yesterday from Gov. HIGGINS and Counsel HUGHES. The case called for acquiescence in the inevitable, and ordinary diplomacy suggested the presentation of as much cheerfulness as the situation permitted. Nothing would have done more to incite antagonism and relentless eviction from prostituted trusts than this final proof—for it must be final—that the Trustees regard themselves as owners, and are resolved to rule as they wish instead of as the owners, the policy holders, may freely decide.

The Trustees and officers in possession already have too much in their advantage without the expedient of keeping the policy holders disorganized, separated, and unacquainted each with the other. In that condition policy holders are the natural prey of the selfish adventurers against whom Gov. HIGGINS warned them in words it is useful to remember. Getting into touch and cooperation with each other is the only way to prevent themselves from being exploited even worse than in the past. They know more than they did, and may be safely intrusted with their own affairs. To say that they shall not be allowed to know who they are lest the possibility of such knowledge by others also might result in their being "twisted" or electioneered is foolish. Few women and fewer children are insured. Policy holders are mostly male adults in possession of their faculties and competent to guard themselves against any sort of canvassers, either regarding the election or their interests as payers of premiums. If they choose to transfer their allegiance to another company, that is their business, not the business of those seeking to act as dry nurses, after having proved themselves unworthy to be in charge of unprotected wards. The companies exist for the policy holders, not the policy holders for the companies, and especially not the policy holders for the officers. If the policy holders choose to vote for others than the regular candidates, or even to nominate opposition candidates, that also is their privilege, however rash it may seem to those interested in a different course. The reconsideration of the proposed and defeated amendment, and the substitution of a compromise which Senator ARMSTRONG supports, save the situation, and even perhaps improve it, by making it sure that no more tricks will be tried in the further progress of the bill.

LOSS AND RECOVERY.

It is inopportune to dispute the material losses by California's calamity, but it is possible, and in a way a duty, to seek for encouragement if any may be found reasonably. In the first place it is to be remarked that the money market's recent chief anxiety is at an end for a double reason. Money will be poured out like water, and the demand for money for speculative purposes will be reduced to a point worrying nobody. Foreign insurance companies must send us over $25,000,000, and they are realizing such foreign resources as consols for this purpose. This must be distinguished from selling here generally like that of Thursday, which was likelier to be to prevent losses or to lay a basis for profit in repurchases. Insurance companies are under no instant necessity of selling in a bad market. Their first payments are likely to be financed by loans, and sales made to advantage when opportunity serves and necessity impels as losses are adjusted. Moreover, taking the worst estimate of local losses, it does not appear that the fundamentals of National values are involved to any serious extent.

The reflex and sympathetic effect is severe, but this does not diminish values as distinguished from prices apart from the stricken area. If sufferers must sell securities to live, or if sales are forced to relieve speculative commitments, buyers at the lower price of securities whose worth is untouched by such considerations are likelier to get their money's worth than as though they bought in an artificial boom. The speculative situation in the cotton market was even more strained than in the security market, and only encouragement can be drawn from its prompt softening. The weakness in the grain markets is partly due to the excellent crop outlook, and obviously this is in no degree open to alteration by any occurrences in any city.

Finally it is worth remarking that this disaster is happening in 1906, at a time of great wealth and prosperity, and not at a time of depression and strain. Thus ability to withstand loss is good, and disposition to make the best instead of the worst of things counts for something. "The worst is not the worst, if 'tis the worst." Just as soon as the worst is known recuperation will begin.

THE SELF-SUPPORTING BLIND.

We are informed that the New York Association for the Blind is now fairly organized, is incorporated, and is ready to carry on its beneficent work as thoroughly as contributions will permit.

The prime object of the Association is effectively to aid the blind, so far as practicable, to support themselves. For this purpose, it provides a system of instruction at night and at the homes of those helped, a workshop for men engaged especially in broommaking, chair caning, &c.; a census and employment bureau to keep track of the blind and to aid them in getting work, and, in addition, such effort as is practicable to prevent blindness, often due to neglect in the first stages of eye disease. The Association is in the hands of highly intelligent and experienced men and women, who can be relied on to make excellent use of any funds intrusted to their care. There is a considerable and definite field for the labor they have undertaken which is of a peculiarly satisfactory and sensible sort. Both as to the saving to the community made by enabling those to sustain themselves who otherwise would be a charge on the public, and as to the inestimable kindness to the sufferers themselves in relieving the gloom of a sightless existence, deepened by helplessness and dependence, the work of the Association is extremely appealing. Contributions may be sent to Mr. HERBERT S. BARNES, Treasurer, 35 Wall Street.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Always in Danger of Famine. It was noted long ago by Archbishop WHATELY that the provisioning of London, though a task probably beyond the ability of the greatest of commissary officers, backed up by the power of the greatest of Governments, was daily performed, perfectly and easily, by utterly unknown persons, not one of whom, so far as anybody ever heard, was able to look more than four inches ahead of his nose. Others have discussed the same curious subject, but one's wonder is excited anew whenever attention is attracted to it. Every war has shown that the feeding of a few thousand men, once they are taken out of the established routine of urban and rural life, is an enormously difficult problem—so difficult that it is never performed more than fairly well, and usually the performance is tragically bad. Now out in San Francisco the same problem has arisen, and within two days, simply because the established lines of supply are broken, the fear of dying from hunger and thirst has fallen upon those whom the earthquake and the fire have spared. A strange phase of the case is that practically nothing in the way of help is to be obtained, or even to be expected, from the men who have hitherto done the work so efficiently. They acted under no sense of responsibility; they were "in business," like other men, and none of them hesitated to abandon his part of the huge machine if any motive of taste or profit suggested a change. And yet the machine worked smoothly; close to exactly enough of everything needed was brought in and distributed in forms and amounts to suit every purse, and the thought that the city was constantly within two or three days of a famine occurred to none of its inhabitants. They are all thinking of it now, and as many as can are hurrying away to places where the butchers and bakers and grocers are still busy about their accustomed traffic without the slightest consciousness of all that depends upon its uninterrupted conduct. But the provisioning of San Francisco is child's play compared with that of New York and its immediate vicinity. There are more millions here than hundreds of thousands there, and all the necessities of life are much further away. Yet the thing is done, by whom few know and fewer care, for no higher reason than that the doing pays—as a general rule, though by no means always and to all engaged in it.

Resenting a Charge of Reform. A certain irritation, possibly significant and possibly only amusing, is betrayed by The Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier at some comments made by The Boston (Mass.) Herald on a small story about two Representatives, one of Arkansas and one of North Carolina. The Arkansas man, it seems, recently enlivened the tedium of Congressional debate by saying to him of North Carolina: "I don't consider you a gentleman." To which the other replied: "Oh, well, I'll try and survive that." This tale moved The Herald to declare: "Time was when the remark of the Arkansas member would have been promptly met by the North Carolina member with a personal altercation on the floor of the House or outside the chamber. Evidently the old plantation method of procedure has gone by for good. This furnishes occasion for National congratulation." Several people living outside of Boston might have regarded The Herald's statement as fairly accurate, though of no measurable importance, but The News and Courier gets almost excited over the reference to "plantation methods." It sternly asks the rash Bostonian if he knows of any personal altercation, the Brooks-Sumner affair excepted, which was so started, and, not content with that question, asks several more—thus: "Does The Herald know of any better manners than the old plantation manners which it is inclined to decry at times, for no better reason that we can imagine than to say a bright thing? Does The Herald think that the changes that have taken place in the character and ability of Southern representation, in fact, 'furnishes occasion for National congratulation'? What is there in the manners of the present South that is in any sense more admirable than there was in the manners of the South of the past? Would such an incident as that described by our contemporary have been possible in former times? Why will so appreciative a newspaper as The Herald be so vulgar in its reflections upon the South simply because a vulgar fellow from Arkansas forgot himself in the heat of debate?" Here, now, is a chance for merry oratory—several chances. Boston can reply with suavity and still be exasperating, while "a vulgar fellow from Arkansas" is in duty bound to prove the characterization a misfit.

Earthquakes Here and in Russia. MAXIM GORKY has broken the sudden silence that recently fell upon him by contributing to one of our neighbors some thoughts awakened in his mind by the disaster on the Pacific Coast. The translator, unfortunately, was unable or unwilling to put them into English idioms as well as into the English language, but there is no obscurity of meaning, and the sympathy with our great sorrow is evidently as sincere as it is eloquent. One of the ideas is equally admirable and characteristic. GORKY emphasizes the fact that all of this loss and suffering and death is mitigated and made easier to bear because none of it is the work of man, but is the result of the blind working of natural forces. And he adds: "I cannot console myself with such a thought. My native land shudders in convulsive suffering by the will of men. In Russia perish thousands by the will of men who wish power and nothing more. Russia suffers from evil and harsh men, and this fills my soul with sadness and horror. I am overthrown on that side of the ocean by an earthquake which has been caused by the evil power of men, and not by an element which knows not what she is doing. But men know, and knowingly create evil and crime, covering the earth of my native land with the blood of its people." Both the similarity and the contrast here noted are obvious—now that GORKY has called attention to them—but to see them required the element of genius which some see in much of GORKY's work as a writer.

"AN IMPERIAL SOCIALIST."

The President, Like the Kaiser, Wants "Unlimited Power to Control Affairs."

From The New Orleans Picayune.

President Roosevelt is far from being a Socialist in the ordinary meaning of the term. He is the same sort of Socialist with the German Kaiser. He wants practically unlimited power to control affairs and to distribute favors and benefits broadcast in a paternal way. His is the imperialistic sort of Socialism, not the sort that would be administered by the multitude—a sort of mob government, in which every individual would have a say.

From The Columbia State.

The American press is practically unanimous in the view that Mr. Roosevelt's well-advertised speech on "The Man with the Muck-Rake" fell almost flat, but that his utterance with respect to the problem of great fortunes amassed in this country was radical, socialistic, revolutionary. The President is generally considered to have ranged himself fully and frankly with the extreme wing of Socialistic sentiment in regard to the confiscation of private wealth by the State. It is agreed that this is a position far in advance of any theory or policy that has been espoused by the Bryan or by the Hearst wing of the Democracy or by the Populists, or even by the more conservative of the Socialists.

From The Chicago Chronicle.

One excellent way to guard against the evils of excessive fortunes would be to repeal the laws which enable one interest to tax all others.

From The Charleston News and Courier.

In other words, if any rich man suffers the disgrace of not dying poor, Mr. Roosevelt would have the stain removed from his heirs.

The President and Judge Humphrey.

From The Pittsburg Gazette.

President Roosevelt's message to Congress is pretty certain to start another National controversy. His attack upon Judge Humphrey is savage, we believe unwarrantably so. His defense of Commissioner Garfield is unnecessary to those who are doing their own thinking, independent of the man with the muck-rake. The Commissioner did his duty as intended by Congress; Judge Humphrey construed the law in line with the precedents.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

The President's message to Congress on the decision of Judge Humphrey in the beef packers' cases has its humorous Rooseveltian aspects, as well as its serious phase. It is made plain that if the President could overrule the District Court that decision would not stand. In default of being able to do so, the President sends a message to Congress, the first instance, we believe, in which the Executive has made a decision of the judiciary the subject of a State paper.

Busy Mr. Tillman.

From The Providence Journal.

Senator Tillman's activity, which, in the opinion of many of his colleagues, is pernicious, in the direction of fathering every known complaint and asking the Senate to investigate it, is apt to destroy much of his value as a legislator. His course is suggestive of the juggler who attempts to keep three balls circulating in the air at one time, then four, then five, and so on until the overloaded hand misses one and all fall in a confused heap. The South Carolina Senator has had at least three balls going all Winter, and pretty successfully. But his attempt to prevent the confirmation of Mr. Barnes as Postmaster at Washington because he happened to be Assistant Secretary to the President when Mrs. Morris was ejected from the White House vestibule adds a ball that bids fair to break the chain. The Senator has filed his charges and specifications; but the Senate apparently believes that, like the flowers that bloom in the Spring, they have nothing to do with the case.

The Original of "John Doe."

From the London Chronicle.

The news that "John Doe" proceedings are to be taken, for the purpose of procuring evidence for the American insurance prosecutions, revives memories of a fictitious personage well known to English law before the Common Law Procedure act of 1852 abolished him. He figured in the old-fashioned ejectment action, for the recovery of the possession of land, together with damages for the wrongful withholding thereof. For various reasons of convenience and history, dating from the reign of Edward III., A did not proceed against B directly in such a case. Instead A delivered to B an entirely false statement from the fictitious John Doe that A had devised the land to John for a term of years, and John had been ousted from it by the equally fictitious Richard Roe. Then Richard informed B that he was not going to defend the action himself, but B must do it, and so on. Occasionally, by way of variety, John Doe gave place to one Goodtitle.

Antony and Cleopatra.

From La Revue de Paris.

Antony and Cleopatra, who, according to Shakespeare, expended kingdoms in kisses, were married like two good bourgeois. M. Letronne has had the merit of throwing light by the aid of coins on a point which the writers have left obscure. At the beginning of the year 36, Antony, by his marriage with the Queen, became King of Egypt. He apparently needed the riches of Cleopatra to carry on his Persian campaign.

"Retrievers."

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

President Roosevelt's idea seems to be that the principal purpose of the muck-rake is to pick up game that has previously been brought down by the big stick.

SAN FRANCISCO RELIEF.

"He Gives Twice Who Gives Quickly"—Some Appeals to Charity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a guest of your city and as a citizen of the Pacific Coast, I appeal to the people, not only of this great-hearted city, but to all the people of our dear land, in behalf of the hundreds of thousands of stricken people of San Francisco and California.

That calamity, although confined within the area of hardly more than a modern city's limits, and within the period of forty-eight hours, is as great as all the dire results of the recent war between Russia and Japan, extending over two great empires and over a period of many months. Is ask that the brotherhood ow man on this coming Sunday be exemplified by every congregation offering up their heartfelt prayers for the stricken people of our Pacific Coast, and the earnestness of their prayers may be manifested in the generosity of their contributions, so generous as to mean that they pray God to spare them and their homes such dire calamity.

He gives twice who gives quickly.

FREDERICK MOTTET.

New York, April 20, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The magnificent gifts contributed for the relief of the sufferers at San Francisco need to be supplemented by more individual work, which can best be done through the churches or through committees of well-known and trusted private citizens.

The Unitarian churches at Oakland, Alameda, and Berkeley are now in use day and night as relief stations, refuges, and hospitals. The work of caring for the injured, the hungry, and the homeless is regardless of creed or color, but is conducted with the touch of personal sympathy and the care impossible for the public officials. The work is in charge of efficient committees under the direction of the Rev. George W. Stone, Field Secretary for the American Unitarian Association. Similar relief bureaus will be opened in San Francisco itself as soon as circumstances permit.

All who wish to make their contributions for the relief of the suffering in this more personal way are invited to send their contributions to the undersigned at 104 East Twentieth Street, New York.

SAMUEL A. ELIOT,
Pres'd't American Unitarian Association.

New York, April 20, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While our men are getting together and raising large sums for the sufferers in San Francisco the women of the city might get together a large sum by calling on the members of clubs, associations, &c., to give a small sum, even though the men of the family have already contributed. Twenty-five cents each (which every woman can afford to give) from the many thousands of club women would amount to thousands of dollars.

I wish to suggest that the President of every organization or club send a notice to her members asking for a contribution from each, either to the Red Cross direct or through the club Treasurer, of money and clothing. It is a time of laying away Winter clothes. Let us send them instead to San Francisco, where they will be needed.

The New York section of the Council of Jewish Women has already sent a call to its members, and its President sends the suggestion to other Presidents. It has also sent $50 from its treasury.

Let women's organizations prove themselves an effective machinery for aid in time of emergency.

SADIE AMERICAN,
President New York Section, Council of Jewish Women.

New York, April 20, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading the account of the San Francisco disaster my heart yearns—not for the dead—but for the living, who are in an infinitely more deplorable condition. THE TIMES says there are at least 50,000 people homeless and destitute. Do your readers realize what this means? But how many of the destitute will accept charitable gifts without a sense of the deepest humiliation?

Putting myself, in thought, in the position of one of those San Francisco people I came to the following conclusion as being the more agreeable way to solve the problem:

Some of the millionaires should open a "free bank" and loan, say $1,000, to every one of the unfortunate people who has enough life left to begin over again, and who would gladly accept an honorable loan from a banker, who would expect every one of his customers to pay back the capital when and how he can, not urging for repayment nor demanding a percentage on such loan.

If I am not mistaken there would be few men accepting such a loan from a generous banker with the intention to retain it to forget the banker and his just claim on the capital advanced.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May not we Christians learn something from the act of the sons of Philadelphia? It is a lesson in doing things versus guff.

Fancy the feelings of the Mayor of San Francisco on receiving those other messages: "If we can be of help," &c.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If all the churches next Sunday would take up contributions for the San Francisco relief fund it would materially help. I suggest this.

Oh, for a Word!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Adolph Ruger asks for a word to express the anticipation of a postponement. It would seem that "antedate" should serve his purpose, if he wants a word in common use. "Antephone" is an old word that has become obsolete and is not, as he supposes, of his own coinage. There would seem to be no reason why it should not be revived if in demand.

CHARLES J. BATES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to your correspondent who asks for a word having the opposite meaning to "postpone," I would suggest the word "advance."

New York, April 19, 1906. C. K.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If Adolph Ruger can use the new word forefix, or attach some other end to the "fore," he might have a word in opposite meaning to "postpone." HERMANN SCHERER.

"Fired Out" an Americanism?

Commenting on the use of the expression "fired out" by the Vienna correspondent of The London Times, with reference to President Roosevelt's dismissal of the American Ambassador in that city, The Pall Mall Gazette declares it to be an Americanism. Yet, adds The London Chronicle, in Shakespeare's Sonnets we find:

Yet this shall I ne'er know, but live in doubt,
Till my bad angel fire my good one out.

But the metaphor is here from driving out with fire, as when Lear says to Cordelia:

He that parts us shall bring a brand from heaven,
And fire us hence like foxes.

The modern "fired out," however, is a metaphor from a cannon ball, almost certainly, and a genuine Americanism. Shakespeare anticipated modern slang quite as accidentally as Pope did when he wrote:

Hear how the birds, on every blooming spray,
With joyous music wake the dawning day.

EARTH AND THE MAN.

The San Francisco Disaster Stirs Curiosity and Trepidation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When in school the writer was taught that the highest mountains were of the most recent geological formation, the upheaval creating them being more violent, owing to the greater thickness of the earth's crust at a late geological period.

While agreeing as to the higher elevations of the earth's surface being of the most recent formation, geologists and other scientists are now telling us that the crust of the earth in California is comparatively thin; hence the tendency to earthquakes in that section of our country.

California being a mountainous region, the writer would be interested to know which theory as to the thickness of the earth's crust is the correct one.

AN EARTHLY QUAKER.

New York, April 20, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Less than twenty years ago New Yorkers watched with interest the novelty of a skyscraper raising its roof above the steeple of Trinity Church. Since that time every new building, in order to compete, has been compelled to improve upon its neighbor. It certainly would be wise at this time to pause and ask all thinking, and even enterprising, citizens whether there is not a limit to the height of buildings beyond which none should be permitted.

This question is quite important enough without the added terror of the San Francisco earthquake fresh on our minds. Is it not time to ascertain the public sentiment thereon?

More Views of Gorky.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Nothing in my opinion could better illustrate the intellectual poverty, moral shallowness, and the hopeless hypocrisy of the average man and woman than the outrageous treatment accorded to Maxim Gorky, one of the world's genuine geniuses, one of nature's true noblemen.

What crime has Gorky committed that, one day a lion, he should be regarded the next day as a leper; one day with the city at his feet, he should be the next day a beggar with no place where to lay his head?

Maxim Gorky was married to his first wife in 1896. Three years later, for reasons best known to themselves, and which are nobody's business, the couple decided to separate. They wanted a divorce, but the Synod, which bore a grudge against Gorky for his liberal ideas, refused to grant a divorce. What were Gorky and his present wife to do?

WILLIAM J. ROBINSON, M. D.

New York, April 19, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Gorky has come here with an appeal for a cause the justice of which nobody denies. Somebody discovers that Gorky has offended our feelings on a certain question.

We will do nothing for his brethren, who are appealing to us for sympathy. We will ignore him and them. Poor Justice—with one eye open!

ALEX. GOLDMAN.

New York, April 19, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The people of Russia can count upon the deep and practical sympathy of the American public, but Russia cannot expect aid through such a man as Gorky, who does violence to the moral sentiment of the American community. The factors which work toward the uplifting of human character may be classed as religious, political, and social, and not the least of these is the social.

E. E. H.

New York, April 19, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I feel inclined to agree with your criticism of Maxim Gorky's political wisdom in bringing Mme. Gorky II. with him to this country, but for a reason very different from yours. He erred, I think, chiefly in laying himself open to a plausible accusation of immorality, but to say he has violated and defied our National morals is ridiculous. Divorces and remarriage are recognized by our customs; our Legislatures have framed laws safeguarding them.

Did Maxim Gorky come among us the apostle of a new faith, preaching libertinism and exhorting us all to follow his example, there might be ground for vigorous objection. But such is not the case. He comes to us humbly as a political exile, as a man on a par with those we call the Fathers of our Country, working steadfastly as they did to give men light and liberty against a despotism far heavier, far crueler, far bloodier than any of England's. He comes to us seeking aid in his labor to change the customs of his people, not trying to change ours. He brings with him a woman as surely his wife in the eyes of God and reason as any second wife, and yet because of the imperfection of the Russian law he is doing his best to change he is put out on the sidewalk at midnight.

Origin of "Chauffeur."

From The Paris Figaro.

There were chauffeurs long before automobiles. History tells us that about the year 1795 men strangely accoutred, their faces covered with soot and their eyes carefully disguised, entered by night farms and lonely habitations and committed all sorts of depredations. They garrotted their victims, dragged them before a great fire, where they burned the soles of their feet, and demanded information as to the whereabouts of their money and jewels. Hence they were called "chauffeurs," a name which frightened so much our good grandmothers.

Seems Fair.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It seems from the divorce decision of the United States Supreme Court that it also takes two to unmake a bargain.

THE YARN OF THE "LET-HER-RIP."

"The learnedest crew that I ever knew was the crew of the Let-Her-Rip;
They all read books in secluded nooks and wholly ignored the ship;
At the boatswain's beck on the after-deck they would sit in a seething gale
And learnedly rant concerning Kant, forgetting to reef a sail.

But the skipper, alas! was extremely crass—at maritime Kants he shied.
So they pummeled his head till he cried "I'm dead!"—which they presently verified—
And they buried him deep for his final sleep in the waters so green and cool,
While the boatswain said—he was very well read—"Sic transit a blamed old fool."

Then the cook for an hour read Schopenhauer—a book which he always kept—
And the crew all cried: "Give us suicide!"—but, as nobody did, they wept.
Then, immersed in gloom, from the long jibboom, while a tear down his features stole,
One sailor sunk to his death—kerplunk!—with a yell of "What is the Soul?"

And the boatswain cries: "Ay, wot is it, b'ys?" and the sailors, despairing, weep,
Till seventeen more, with a hopeless roar, plunge into the ocean deep.
So the scared cook reads some pleasanter creeds—the sailors new courage get—
And the suicide men, bobbing up again, are rescued, extremely wet.

Now all this may do in one gale or two, but it's bad as a steady thing;
So the Let-Her-Rip on a reef went "zip!" and split with a frightful "bing!"
And the crew all drowned with a look profound, expressive of "We don't care!"
And the solemn old mate just gurgled "Fate!" when he ceased to encounter air.

$4,500,000 IN DEAL FOR STEWART SITE

Isman Gets Plot Often Talked of for Municipal Structure.

DECLINES A MILLION PROFIT

A. T. Stewart Paid $65,000 for This Broadway and Chambers Street Site in 1848.

Felix Isman of Philadelphia has bought from the Hilton estate the Stewart Building, known as 280 Broadway, and covering the entire block front on the east side of that thoroughfare between Chambers and Reade Streets.

The price paid for the property was about $4,500,000, and it is said that within a few minutes after signing the contract for the purchase Mr. Isman declined an offer of $1,000,000 profit for his bargain.

The Stewart Building is a seven-story marble-front structure fronting 151 feet on Broadway and extending 225 feet in depth on both Chambers and Reade Streets. A. T. Stewart bought the site in 1848 for $65,000 and erected the building which housed his dry goods establishment until the structure at Broadway and Ninth and Tenth Streets, was built in 1862.

Prior to Mr. Stewart's purchase, the Broadway and Chambers Street corner had been for many years the site of Washington Hall, one of the city's fashionable resorts in the early part of the last century.

In recent years various city departments have occupied much space in the Stewart Building—so much that a plan has been frequently agitated providing for the purchase of the building and all of the adjoining property facing City Hall Park, as far east as the Hall of Records, as the site for an immense municipal office structure. No definite action toward the carrying out of this scheme, however, has yet been taken.

This purchase by Mr. Isman is only one of several large real estate operations in this city in which the Philadelphian has engaged within the last few months. It is only a few weeks since he bought the Bennett Building, at Fulton, Ann, and Nassau Streets, from the New York Life Insurance Company for $1,000,000. His other recent purchases have included 252 Fifth Avenue and an entire block front on that thoroughfare between 106th and 107th Streets. He also took over, under a long lease, with an option of purchase, a group of properties at the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-third Street, while he controls the old Parker House, on the north side of Thirty-ninth Street, just east of Broadway, as well as several parcels forming an "L" around the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh Street.

Mr. Isman sailed for Europe yesterday afternoon on the Celtic, and decided only at the last minute to add the Stewart Building to his holdings, with the idea of demonstrating the truth of his recent dictum that "a man can be 75 per cent. wrong and only 25 per cent. right and still make money in Manhattan real estate."

KILLED ON FRENCH WARSHIP.

Three Dead, Many Injured, in Gunnery Accident on Training Vessel.

TOULON, France, April 20.—Three men were killed and five were mortally injured as the result of a gunnery accident to-day on board the cadet training ship Couronne.

Sixteen other men were seriously hurt.

ALL THERE BUT THE SMELL.

Modern Artificiality Extends Even to Dogwood Blossoms.

A florist's wagon standing at the corner of Twenty-third Street and Broadway yesterday contained such a gorgeous display of pink and white dogwood blossoms that many women and men stopped to look upon them with delight. The branches were so large and heavily laden with blossoms that the back of the wagon was completely filled by the blooms.

"Oh, dear!" said one woman, "I want to stick my nose into those be-e-e-eautiful blossoms."

She went to the rear of the wagon and stuck her pretty nose to the flowers, but withdrew it quickly. As she hopped back to the sidewalk she said:

"Of all the signs of artificiality in city life, this is the worst! They are imitation blossoms on real boughs!"

Judicial Districts Bill Signed.

ALBANY, April 20.—Gov. Higgins tonight signed the bill of Senator Carpenter, dividing the Second Judicial District into two judicial districts, one to continue as the Second, and the other to be known as the Ninth. The Second will include Kings, Queens, Richmond, Nassau, and Suffolk Counties; the Ninth, Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Orange, and Rockland.

Alpha Delta Phi Dinner to Mr. Choate.

The Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity will give a dinner at Delmonico's in honor of Joseph H. Choate, ex-Ambassador to England, on Tuesday evening, April 24. Mr. Choate was for three years President of the fraternity, and for ten years President of the Alpha Delta Phi Club.

Russian Transport on a Reef.

COLOMBO, Ceylon, April 20.—The Russian Volunteer Fleet steamer Kazan, bound from Odessa for Vladivostok to bring home troops, is ashore on a reef near this port, and it is expected will be a total wreck. The crew were brought here. The Kazan was used as a hospital ship throughout the siege of Port Arthur.

To Increase Egyptian Garrison.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 20.—The British Government has decided to increase the British garrison in Egypt, owing to the attitude of the Turkish Government in the Tabah boundary dispute and its possible effect on the Islamic population.

To Investigate New Yorker's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 20.—The Central police have asked the Coroner to inquire into the death of J. H. Hargreaves of 75 West Seventy-first Street, New York, which occurred last night in a Pine Street saloon. Hargreaves was stopping while here at the Planters' Hotel. His effects are still there.

NO ASTOR MARRIAGE.

Announcement That Waldorf Astor Wedded Mrs. Shaw Premature.

LONDON, April 20.—There is no truth in the announcement made in the United States that Waldorf Astor was married here yesterday to Mrs. Nannie Langhorne Shaw.

Mrs. Shaw to-day authorized the statement that no date has yet been fixed for the wedding, which probably will take place the end of May.

COUNT KELLER CAUGHT BOMB.

Thrown at Him While He Was Out Riding, It Failed to Explode.

KALISZ, Russian Poland, April 20.—While Count Keller, commander of the garrison here, was driving with his wife in the main street of this city to-day a bomb was thrown at his carriage.

Count Keller caught the missile in his hand, and it failed to explode.

The man who threw the bomb escaped.

Count Keller was a cousin of Lieut. Gen. Count Keller, who was killed on July 29, 1904, while repelling a Japanese attack on Yangze Pass, Manchuria.

DEL-NERO BRONZES.

Original Designs, Copies of Famous Pieces, &c., in the Windsor Arcade.

In the old studio of the sculptor George Barnard, next the Fencers Club, on the upper floor of the Windsor Arcade, is a very interesting exhibit for a fortnight of curious and beautiful objects due to the cleverness, zeal, and industry of Signor Angelo del Nero of Rome. He conducts at home a number of ateliers for the applied arts in Rome, and his ideal for a number of years has been to establish there a completely appointed centre for craftsmen in bronze, pottery, carving in stone and wood, weaving, and other handicrafts which might revive the noble personal work of the Renaissance.

This time he brings a more varied and interesting record of his many activities. There are fine drums in Giallo Antico marble, with groups carved in relief, suitable for jardinières and small fountains. He shows the designs for a small fountain for a greenhouse, with three nude figures, and a plaster sketch for part of a monument at Harvard University. Taking figures by Fontana, such as "Tiber Urchin" and "Genius of Agriculture," he casts them in bronze by the wax process and gives them highly interesting patinas. Or he borrows a situation from one of the centaur groups surviving in Athens from the Parthenon and models for bronze a little, bushy-bearded centaur carrying off a lady during the famous marriage feast of the Lapithae. These bronze casts are certainly the most varied and attractive part of the exhibition, though there are others in silver and lead.

His "Dancing Faun," after the original found in Pompeii, has been cast with a blend of copper, silver, and gold, and then skillfully worn down in places, so that the result is a triumph of smooth surfaces which catch the light and darker, rougher parts. Another good piece is the so-called Narcissus of Pompeii, now believed to be a statuette of the young Bacchus; others are the Winged Nikè and Silenus, also discovered in the town destroyed by Vesuvius.

An experiment in lead is a reduction of the Venus of the Esquiline found in 1874, a marble statue of a Greek maiden. We have the figure of the Greek athlete assigned to the famous school of sculptors in little Sicyon, on the Corinthian Gulf, and the Discus Thrower in bronze, believed to be by Myron; we have several examples of Tanagra figurines, carried out in bronze, and the little figure of the Runner in Heavy Armor, found in German soil, with its pointed beard and action as of a man all ready for the word to go.

The large studio is hung with fine old tapestries lent by Mr. Henry O. Watson, Flemish and French. There are small pieces of silver and bronze in cases, bits of textiles, wood carvings in walnut, birch, pear, and chestnut, and samples of velvets, brocades, and damasks made on looms in Rome.

Signor del Nero's Roman workshops are in the Via Flaminia and his forges Via del Greci. His assistant in sculpture and carving is Carlo Alberto Petrucci, and in embroideries and textiles Signorina Emma del Nero. Mr. del Nero's father was a well-known antiquarian, and he himself, beginning life as a business man, soon took to the interesting profession he now follows. The Ministry of Public Instruction and Fine Arts has decreed him a gold medal for his efforts to raise the standards of the applied arts in Italy.

RECENT PURCHASE ON VIEW.

Exhibition Containing Forty New Paintings at the Metropolitan.

An exhibition of more than forty paintings opened with a private view and reception yesterday at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The exhibition includes some of the most important paintings recently acquired by the museum and several works of art loaned by J. P. Morgan and Henry C. Frick. Gallery 24, where the pictures are on view, has been redecorated in white and gold, and the pictures are hung against a golden brown background. The lighting system is admirable, and shows most of the pictures to the best advantage.

A "Kitchen Interior" by Jan Steen, an example of the early Dutch school, purchased through the Rogers Fund, is one of the new pictures shown. The scene is a simple one of the Dutch peasant type, and shows a maid standing in a kitchen near a table laden with implements and game. A classical landscape of the English school by Richard Wilson, considered a good example of this artist's work, is the picture sent by Mr. Morgan. Another rare work on view is a portrait of Pietro Aretino by Titian, lent to the museum by Henry C. Frick. The portrait represents Aretino dressed in an orange silk robe surmounted with a fur cape.

Other pictures of note in the new gallery are "The Holy Family," by Peter Paul Rubens, presented to the museum by J. Henry Smith in 1902; "The Nativity," by El Greco, which was purchased with the Rogers Fund last year; the famous portrait of James Stuart, Duke of Richmond, by Van Dyck; "Scenes in the Life of Primitive Man," by Puvis De Chavannes; Rembrandt's "Portrait of a Man," and "St. John the Evangelist," by Murillo. The reason for the exhibition is explained in the preface of the catalogue as follows:

"The main idea has been to bring together those pictures likely to be of interest to serious students of art, and to recommend them to the study of those who without having any special knowledge, may yet desire to become more intimately acquainted with the great expressions of creative thought in painting. The exhibition has been arranged as a temporary effort toward a more appropriate classification and display of the pictures in the Metropolitan Museum."

FRANKLIN MEDAL GIFT OF NATION TO FRANCE

Secretary Root Presents It at Ceremony in Philadelphia.

M. JUSSERAND ACCEPTS IT

Says It Tells of a Name Ever Venerated and Admired in His Native Land.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—Representatives of nearly every civilized nation were in attendance to-day when the United States presented to France a magnificent gold medal in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin. The presentation was made by Secretary of State Elihu Root at the direction of President Roosevelt, and Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador, received the medal for his Government. Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania presided.

Ex-Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, Dr. Charles William Eliot, President of Harvard University, and Dr. Horace Howard Furness of this city delivered addresses.

Dr. Eliot spoke on "Franklin as Printer and Philosopher."

"One would get a wrong impression of Franklin's career as a printer," he said, "if he failed to observe that he constantly used his connection with a printing office to facilitate his remarkable work as an author, editor, and publisher."

As a philosopher, Dr. Eliot said Franklin taught and illustrated four perennial subjects of human interest—education, natural science, politics, and morals.

"Franklin as a Citizen and a Philanthropist" was the topic assigned Dr. Furness. In concluding his address the doctor said of Franklin:

"The demi-god of peace, who scattered plenty over a smiling land and brought into millions of homes honesty, and frugality, and sterling virtue, lies, as he wished to lie, in the heart, and in the hearts of the city that he loved, under the humble walls of the churchyard of Christ Church."

Mr. Choate, in his address, dealt with "Franklin the Diplomat." He said in part:

"It is the fate of the average Ambassador or Minister to foreign countries to become generally subject to the influence of his new surroundings and to look sometimes through foreign spectacles at public and social questions, and unduly to admire the rules and institutions of the nations which welcome them so warmly and honor them so highly.

"But it was the unique merit of Franklin to be so intensely American that no foreign influence could touch him. Jefferson argued that it spoiled an American diplomatist to keep him abroad seven years—and I think many instances could be cited in support of his argument. One who narrowly escaped the forbidden limit may at least say that.

"But Jefferson took care to add that this did not apply to Franklin, who, he says, was America itself when in France, not subjecting himself to French influence, but subjecting France to American influence, and I am sure that this is true of him in his long stay in England."

In accepting the gold medal, on behalf of France, Ambassador Jusserand said:

"Everything in such a gift powerfully appeals to a French heart. It tells of a man ever venerated and admired in my country, the scientist, the philosopher, the inventor, the leader of men, the one who gave to France her first notion of what Americans were.

"The gift is offered in this town of Philadelphia, where there exists a hall the very name of which is especially dear to every American and every French heart, the Hall of Independence.

"Your gift will be sent to France, to be harbored in that unique museum, her Museum of Medals, where her history is, so to say, written in gold and bronze, from the fifteenth century up to now, without any ruler, any great event being omitted. Some of the American past is also written there—that period so glorious when French and American history were the same history, when first rose a nation that has never since ceased to rise."

The medal, which was struck by Tiffany & Co. of New York, was designed by Louis and Augustus St. Gaudens. It measures four inches in diameter, and contains 412 dwts. of 18-karat gold. The obverse shows a profile bust of Franklin, with a branch of palm on either side, and the inscription, "Benjamin Franklin—Printer, Philosopher, Scientist, Statesman, Diplomatist—1706-1790." A group of figures forms the chief decorative feature on the reverse of the medal. Clio, symbolizing History, is pictured writing upon her shield the legend "Eripuit coelo fulmen sceptrum que tyranno"—"He drew the lightning from the sky and wrested the sceptre from the tyrant." In the foreground are figures symbolic of literature, philosophy, and science bringing tributes to be embodied in the record of the great American. In the open spaces above and below the figures are the words—"History, Science, Philosophy—Struck by Act of Congress to Commemmorate the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of Benjamin Frankline, MCMVI."

PROTEST BY ROOSEVELT.

His Talk with Argentine Minister Garbled and Published as Official.

BUENOS AYRES, April 20.—Local papers here to-day publish a statement that Charles D. White, the American Chargé d'Affaires, has presented to the Argentine Government, on behalf of President Roosevelt, a protest against the publication in the official bulletin of the Foreign Office of an alleged conversation between President Roosevelt and Garcia Merou, late Argentine Minister at Washington, on March 31, 1905, relating to Argentine and other North and Central American republics.

The dispatch published refers to the phenomenal progress of Argentina and the drawbacks under which other republics labor. The note of protest contains President Roosevelt's denial of many of the utterances attributed to him and of the publication of other matters communicated confidentially to Señor Merou.

The Prenza and the Nacion published the mere announcement without comment. The Diario described the Foreign Office in this matter as grossly indiscreet. The Buenos Ayres Herald attacks the Foreign Office, suggesting a difficulty regarding future communications between heads of foreign States and Argentine diplomats, adding the suggestion that the dispatch as published was edited and revised at the Foreign Office here.

Mr. White declined to impart further information than the admission of the presentation of the note.

Its chief manufactures were shoes and other leather goods. In the neighborhood are the medicinal iron springs of Chorillo.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Mrs. Richard Townsend and Miss Townsend, who will sail for Europe May 10, have received invitations to attend the marriage of the King of Spain and Princess Ena of Battenberg, which takes place in Madrid on June 2. Mrs. Townsend, who is among the foremost hostesses of Washington, is a daughter of the late William L. Scott of Erie, Penn., and widow of Richard Townsend of this city. Miss Townsend made her début two years ago and has received much attention at home and abroad. The coming visit to Spain is by many of her friends regarded as evidence that she has decided to accept the suit of the Duke d'Albe, a high dignitary of King Alfonso's Court, whose devotion to her in Paris last Autumn led to the announcement of their engagement. The report was subsequently denied by Miss Townsend.

The Naval Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau von Rebbinghaus entertained at dinner this evening, as also did Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lee.

Miss Cannon, daughter of the Speaker, and Mrs. Alger, wife of the Senator from Michigan, entertained at luncheon to-day.

Miss Grace Potter and Miss Corinne Robinson, a daughter of Douglas Robinson of New York, are guests at the White House.

Ex-Vice President Morton gave a dinner to-day at his former residence here in honor of Vice President Fairbanks and of the Senators who were in Congress during his term as Vice President.

KNOX SEES PRESIDENT ON RATE BILL AGAIN

Reopens Negotiations After Interval of Several Weeks.

ALDRICH PLANS A TRAP

He Would Pass Hepburn Measure with Hazy Review Clause, and Embarrass the Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Senators Knox and Crane have opened negotiations again with the President on the Rate bill. They went to the White House last night and had a long conference in regard to the situation and the possible way out of it.

This is the first time in several weeks that the Pennsylvania Senator has talked with Mr. Roosevelt on the bill. Heretofore they had met as associates in the effort to secure a law that would be of benefit to the whole country and remedy the evils complained of by shippers and consumers. Senator Knox now occupies the attitude of a follower of Senator Aldrich. Little could be learned from Republican Senators to-day as to the nature of the propositions submitted at the conference or the position taken by the President. From overtures made during the day to the Democratic leaders, however, the situation as discussed at the White House is fully reflected.

The Republican leaders have practically decided to draw the Democrats into the trap that Aldrich all the time has been setting for them and pass the Hepburn bill without amendment. The Rhode Island Senator has most adroitly led the Democrats on by pretending to oppose the bill, until they have come to the point where they are willing to vote for it as the best they can hope to get this session. The Senators who stand with Aldrich would like to put in a broad court-review clause, but do not see enough votes in sight for that, and, having been told that the Hepburn bill as it stands has a court-review element in it, and that this court-review feature, if it exists at all, is of the broadest sort, will take the bill as it stands, with all the gratifying contingencies of possible unconstitutionality and administrative shortcomings.

Senator Carter, who is making the effort to align the Republicans on a compromise that will meet the approval of the President, made absolutely no progress to-day toward that end. He meets with opposition on every side to the Bailey amendment forbidding temporary injunctions and with a disposition to fall back on the unadulterated Hepburn bill.

The La Follette speech has met with great favor among the Democrats. One of the leaders on that side said to-day:

"If there were only sixteen or seventeen Republicans like La Follette, who are as well informed on this subject and as honest and as able to go home after it is all over and explain to their people the reason for their action, I would guarantee the defeat of the Hepburn bill, and we would pass no bill at all and let the whole matter go over to the next Presidential campaign as an issue to be decided then."

GROSVENOR AND CLARK CLASH

Ohio Congressman Menaced by the Representative from Florida.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Congressman Clark of Florida and Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio clashed on the floor of the House to-day. A serious altercation was only prevented by the diplomacy of the minority leader, Mr. Williams of Mississippi, who secured unanimous consent to have the unparliamentary language indulged in by the parties to the quarrel stricken from the record.

Mr. Clark made a speech regarding the alleged mismanagement at St. Elizabeth's Insane Asylum and charged Mr. Grosvenor with preparing a resolution based on newspaper stories.

Mr. Grosvenor angrily responded that Mr. Clark was "purposely misrepresenting him."

"I ask that the language of the gentleman be taken down," Mr. Clark called out. He then said that Mr. Grosvenor dare not use that language to him outside the chamber, at the same time shaking his fist at the member from Ohio. Instantly the House was in confusion, Mr. Keifer of Ohio in the midst of the noise calling Mr. Clark to order.

"As for menacing me with personal violence," said Mr. Grosvenor, "it need not be taken down."

Then came the intervention of Mr. Williams and the restoration of peace.

DOUBT IF GIRL IS DEAD PUTS OFF HER FUNERAL

Postponement Ordered When Hearse Was at the Door.

PRIEST SENT FOR DOCTOR

Child's Arm Was Limp—Other Signs of Death Lacking—Two Doctors Say Veronica Is Dead, Though.

Little Veronica McCann, the eleven-year-old daughter of John McCann, of 218 West Eighteenth Street, was to have been buried yesterday afternoon, but she wasn't. The hearse was waiting at the door of the house, when the family physician ordered the funeral postponed.

Father McGrath of St. Francis Xavier's Church, who had administered the last rites, took up the child's arm and noticed that it was extremely limp, and that the fingers lacked the rigidity that death should have given them. Other customary signs of death had not appeared, although the child was supposed to have died early last Wednesday morning. The priest advised the family to call the physician.

Dr. Joshua M. Fraser, whose address was said to be the Bartholdi Hotel, but who could not be found there last night, was called. He had previously certified to the girl's death, and after a second examination he again pronounced her dead. In order to satisfy the parents, another physician was called in consultation. He agreed with Dr. Fraser that Veronica was dead, but both physicians admitted that, while there were no evidences of life, the absence of several of the usual signs of death and the lifelike appearance of the body made it wise to postpone the funeral for another twenty-four hours.

The hearse was sent away, and the mourners who had gathered returned to their homes. There was a crowd in the street, and when it became known that the doctors had sent the undertaker away there was great excitement in the district.

Rumors of all sorts arose. "The child came back to life! She opened her eyes and spoke to her father! To think she would have been buried alive!" These were a few of the remarks that were heard, but as a matter of fact nothing so extraordinary had taken place. Father McGrath was surprised to learn that Veronica had not been buried. He had not heard of the doctor's decision.

"The child seemed to me to be dead without any question," he said, "and I made no such statement as reported, that the funeral ought not to take place. I noticed that the child's arm appeared unusually limp and lifelike, and advised that a doctor look at her as a precaution."

Veronica McCann, who was a very pretty, fair-haired girl, had been ill for some months with articular rheumatism and oedema. Every arrangement had been made for the funeral, and the coffin was decorated with masses of flowers sent by friends of the family, when the doctors decided to postpone the burial. They are to examine the body again this morning, and will report the matter to the Board of Health.

BIG INSURANCE BILL PUT THROUGH SENATE

Republicans Protest Bitterly in Passing Publicity Measure.

SENATE VOTE IS 42 TO 2

White and Malby Say the Measure Will Permit Blackmail, and Is Hysterical Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 20.—Another stormy session, marked throughout by much bitter talk from members of the majority, against the party whip, and Senator Grady using every opportunity to denounce his colleagues for placing party above conscience, witnessed the final passage by the Senate to-day of the big Insurance bill, which amends the insurance laws generally.

An emergency message from the Governor aided in the bill's passage. It now goes to the Assembly for concurrent action. The Assembly will sit to-morrow for a short session to consider the bill.

"We don't want to crawfish, but we must," was the burden of the cry of the Republicans who were bound by the caucus of yesterday to put through the bill without any change other than that suggested by the amendment of Senator Armstrong.

Senator White, who introduced and has passed the amendment which would have wiped out the publicity and mutualization features of the bill, said that the caucus action was the most unjustifiable piece of work ever done to make the Republican Senators stultify themselves before their constituency and vote against their judgment.

The protesting Senators, who, however, did not carry their fight to the extent of becoming bolters, announced themselves relieved from the necessity of secrecy concerning the caucus, and told some of the things that happened behind the doors, chief among them being that it had been pointed out that the Republicans might have a hard time in the State this Fall, and so could not afford to go before the people with any change in the Insurance bill for which they might be held accountable.

"The action of invoking the caucus was the most unrighteous, the meanest, and the most unprecedented action on a measure of this kind ever carried out," said White. "I do not recede from my position taken two days ago that to adopt the compromise measure agreed upon in the caucus would lay the companies open to blackmail and make them give up their most valuable asset. The action of the caucus is utterly subversive of decent and proper legislation. It is a frenzied sensationalism that is groading the members to do that which they do not believe in and for which repentance will come all too soon."

Senator Malby said he held exactly the same views. He said the amendment of the laws on insurance was quite as important as the investigation and should have had the same time for consideration. He said the unprecedented spectacle was shown in the passage of these bills that all the new laws had been framed by the investigating committee and not one by the Legislature. Such legislation, he said, had nothing to recommend it and everything to condemn it. But, like White, Malby said he must bow to the will of the caucus.

Then Malby took a whack at the Governor by saying: "When the time of trouble comes and the people demand the repeal of much of this legislation and condemn you for doing what you have done, when you are being damned for not doing your public duty, at that time let the onus attaching to your actions to-day fall on the other fellow who has driven you into this position."

Under the roll call to reconsider the vote by which the White amendment prevailed the rest of the protestants took occasion to explain their votes and to tell that they considered themselves as much in the right to-day as they had yesterday, when they voted to emasculate the bill, but demands of party were too strong to resist. The motion to reconsider prevailed —39 to 4. Those voting in the negative were Grady, Hasenflug, Kehoe, and McCarren, Democrats.

The motion to substitute for the White amendment the one introduced by Armstrong, the provisions of which make very little change from the original draft of the bill except that after each election the list of policy holders may be withdrawn and not again filed until the next election, should there be a contest, was made the subject of a bitter attack by Grady, who said that it was insulting to the intelligence of the Senators to offer it as a compromise.

"The performance we are now witnessing," he said, "could only proceed from weak men who could never add anything of merit to the laws of the State. Sworn officials, bound by oath to do their duty as their consciences dictate, funish the spectacle of amending their views in twenty-four hours under the lash of the party whip. It is to laugh."

Grady said that if the Insurance Committee had schemed for years to put domestic corporations at a disadvantage for the benefit of foreign corporations it could not have devised a better means than this bill. He accused the majority, and especially Armstrong, of false pretense, and said that had he known that he [Grady] was playing a game with loaded dice he would have acted differently.

Armstrong made a political speech attacking Grady, and the amendment finally previled 35 to 4, the same Senators being recorded in the opposition as before.

Grady persisted in the face of the announcement by Armstrong that the bills on which there was opposition would have to be passed so that the Assembly could concur in them, and got himself on the record. Every amendment was knocked out in order, until finally the big bill was passed by a vote of yeas, 42, nays, 2, only two Senators, Grady and McCarren, voting against it.

Gov. Higgins to-day signed the sixth of the special Insurance Committee's bills, that amending the Penal Code to more effectively penalize falsification of the books and records of a corporation. This leaves one bill pending in the Governor's hands and two pending in the Legislature.

NOT LOBBYING—PEABODY.

He Denies Mutual Attempted to Change the Big Insurance Bill.

Representatives of the insurance interests were quick to deny that they had been affiliated with the New York Life in the attempt to mutilate the general bill drafted by the Armstrong Committee by striking out the requirement that lists of policy holders should be published, when they heard yesterday that the Republicans in the Legislature had been whipped into line for the passage of the original act.

President Peabody of the Mutual Life said that the Mutual had nothing to do with the pending legislation since its representatives appeared in protest at the Albany hearings in March. He said he considered that the publication of lists of policy holders was an extremely unwise measure, and thought that a much better system of elections could have been devised than the one put forward by the Armstrong Committee. It was said also that the Equitable had been doing absolutely nothing regarding the legislation since the hearings on the bills.

MINERS WON'T ARBITRATE.

Proposal of Operators in the Chief Soft Coal District Rejected.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 20.—The mineworkers' executive board to-day rejected the proposition of the operators of Western Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio, who are opposing the payment of the 1903 wage scale, and who, through J. H. L. Winder, their Chairman, offered to submit the differences to arbitration.

The reply to the operators contains a dispatch from Francis L. Robbins of the Pittsburg district, where the operators have agreed to the restoration of the 1903 scale, in which Robbins says that J. H. Winder had no authority to offer arbitration for Western Pennsylvania or the Hocking Valley since the mines there are in operation under the 1903 contract.

The reply further says that the arbitration proposition, if carried into effect, would tend to destroy the competitive conditions which have been established by years of mutual agreement. The committee, therefore, agrees to meet the operators only on condition that they sign the 1903 scale.

STRIKE DECISION NEXT WEEK.

Anthracite Operators Expect Then to Know What Is Coming.

Neither the anthracite operators nor any of their representatives would say yesterday what preparations were going on for a strike, but it was learned from authoritative outside sources that they are acting as if a strike had been declared.

They are working quietly and getting such licensed miners among their former employes as apply for work in readiness, so as not to take any risk of violating the licensing law. These men, and other miners proper with a State license who return to work will be protected at any cost, it is promised.

A. L. Barber of Alfred Barber's Son, a member of the Coal Merchants' Association, said that the general impression was that it will be known next week whether an anthracite strike will be officially declared.

Murdered His Niece.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 20.—Fred Lang of South Bethlehem, Penn., shot and killed his niece, Kittie Gordon, in front of her home at Piscatawaytown, three miles from here, early this morning. Sheriff Church of this city organized a posse at once and hunted for the murderer, but without success. John Gordon, father of the murdered girl, is a well-to-do dairy farmer. Kittie was the oldest of eleven children, the mother of whom was Lang's elder sister. A reward of $500 is offered for Lang's arrest.

William Becker of Milwaukee a Suicide

MOBILE, Ala., April 20.—William Becker, a wealthy retired tanner of Milwaukee, Wis., committed suicide here to-day by shooting himself through the head. He is known to have been despondent because of ill-health. He was 65 years of age, and is survived by his widow.

POLICEMEN BADLY BEATEN QUELLING A STRIKE RIOT

Tailors Attack Foremen's Houses in East New York.

THE MOB URGED ON BY WOMEN

Police Reserves from Three Precincts Called Out to Check the Rioting —Many Strikers Arrested.

A mob of strikers and their sympathizers from the clothing factory of J. Eisner & Co., at Sheffield and Belmont Avenues, in East New York, attacked the homes of the two foremen of the tailors who have taken the strikers' places yesterday and smashed every window in the buildings with stones, besides seriously injuring several policemen who were called to stop the disorder.

The police arrested ten women and an equal number of men. The strikers have been out more than a month, and have become desperate because the firm has refused to take them back. They sought revenge on the two foremen, who they think influenced the firm against reinstating them.

A heavy police guard has been kept at the factory ever since the strike was declared, but the attack on the homes of the two foremen, Louis Levine, at 339 Wyona Street, and Moses Halpern, at 340 Wyona Street, was entirely unexpected.

The trouble started when two women came to the foremen's houses and demanded that the two men, who were at dinner, should come out. The women stood in the front yards armed with stones and encouraged the mob of strikers assembled in the streets to wreck the places. In answer to their appeals the crowd began hurling stones through the windows. Fearing for their lives, the foremen and their families locked the doors of their houses and awaited the arrival of the police.

Roundsman Fox, who was one of the first policemen to appear, was attacked by the mob and severely beaten. A mounted policeman was hit many times by a shower of stones. The mounted man charged the crowd and drove them into the courtyards. Roundsman Fox arrested one of the ringleaders of the mob, but a woman knocked him down with a stone and the prisoner escaped. Capt. Rooney and the police reserves came up in a patrol wagon from the Liberty Avenue Station and attacked the strikers with nightsticks. The women fought them like tigresses. Four other stations were called upon for reserves before the police stopped the rioting. The prisoners were taken to the police station in patrol wagons. Everything was quiet around the factory last night, but a large force of police were on hand to prevent trouble.

MRS. COREY CHANGES PLANS.

Wife of Steel Trust's President Wants No Nevada Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—Mrs. W. E. Corey, according to an announcement made to-day by the friends of the wife of the President of the United States Steel Corporation, is not going to ask the courts of Nevada for a divorce.

The decision of the Supreme Court regarding the legal standing of divorces granted in States where only one of the parties is a legal resident has caused her to change her mind.

KIDNAPPED IN AN AUTO.

Baby Son of Dr. Richards of This City Spirited Away in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Anson Head Richards, 3 years old, was kidnapped by two men in an automobile from the walk in front of 2,661 North Forty-fourth Avenue at noon to-day. His mother is the wife of Dr. William M. Richards of New York City.

Mrs. Richards separated from her husband and came here a short time ago to live with her sister, Mrs. C. F. Hunting, at the above address. The lad was playing in front of the house, when an automobile stopped a block away and two men got out, ran up to the boy, and carried him to the machine. Then all got in and rushed away.

It was the first time the child had been permitted to go out alone. None of the Hunting family saw the abduction, but a number of people on the street gave chase before the men reached the machine, but they were too late, and the automobile got away.

The Richards family has had considerable dissension. The mother and her sister said the abduction was probably done by the father, or some of his friends.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 20.—Anson H. Richards, the three-year-old boy abducted in Chicago to-day, is the son of Dr. William M. Richards, Yale, '95, of New York City, and grandson of Prof. Eugene L. Richards of Yale, who recently retired from the mathematical Faculty.

Prof. Richards refused to-night to discuss the family affairs. Dr. William M. Richards has been in this city frequently of late. Friends of the family said Dr. Richards married Miss Rosa Head of New York, but that his wife had not been with him on his visits home. Nothing was known about any family disagreement, however.

KAISER A GREAT MECHANIC.

Sternburg Calls Him One of Germany's Foremost Technical Experts.

PITTSBURG, April 20.—In a speech delivered here to-day by Ambassador Sternburg, he referred to Emperor William of Germany as one of that nation's "most prominent technical experts and master mechanics," and the possessor of "far-seeing genius."

The Ambassador said that Germany and America lead the world in industrial expansion. There are two reasons for this. Both countries passed through the trials of a great war and came out united. This unification has been the most powerful promoter of industrial progress. In both countries scientific research has been applied to practical industrial problems. The German Government fosters testing institutions where chosen experts are employed.

"The extraordinary, rapid industrial and commercial progress of Germany," he continued, "was fostered by the master mind of Emperor William and his policy of peace, for, struck by the vast losses suffered by other nations engaged in expensive wars, he demanded a thorough change as regards size and equipment of the old testing laboratory at Charlottenburg, and approved the plans for a new laboratory, in which he has harnessed science to industry in the most economic and efficient manner.

"What both our countries need, and will need more and more every year if we do not want to damage the work we have built up, are foreign markets. These we shall easily find if we follow the great words of the lamented President McKinley, that 'no nation can be a seller if she is not a buyer.'"

ALTMAN SELLS HIS 6TH AVE. PROPERTY

Morgenthau and Greenhut Buy It —Was Held at $2,500,000.

NEW STORE NEARLY READY

The Sixth Avenue Structure Is the Second Largest Department Store in This City.

Benjamin Altman, whose new store on the east side of Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets, is nearing completion, has disposed of the buildings now occupied by his establishment on the west side of Sixth Avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, to Henry Morgenthau and J. B. Greenhut. The property has been held by Mr. Altman at $2,500,000.

The buildings have frontages of 184 feet on Sixth Avenue and extend west along the side streets a distance of about 480 feet. All of the land was owned in fee by Mr. Altman with the exception of the lots on the Sixth Avenue frontage, which he held under long leases from the Astor and Tonnele estates. Included in the deal also is the new granite-front stable in Eighteenth Street.

Messrs. Morgenthau and Greenhut have acquired the property as an investment with a view to leasing it to some large retail concern. Their belief is that with the present difficulty of getting large plots in central locations there ought to be no great delay in finding a tenant for this immense store in the heart of the retail shopping district, where eight establishments now do a business of over $50,000,000 a year. It is thought, moreover, that with the many projected transit improvements, especially the McAdoo tunnel up Sixth Avenue, this section will become even more firmly intrenched as the great shopping centre.

The Altman store covers an area of 88,000 square feet, making it the second largest department store site in the city, the Siegel-Cooper store covering about 2,000 square feet more. It is, furthermore, the third largest in the country, the first in point of size being the Marshall Field property in Chicago.

Mr. Altman began business on this site thirty-five years ago in a small store, adding adjoining property and extending his buildings as his business expanded.

20,000 CHEER GIANTS AT THE POLO GROUNDS

New Yorks Open Season at Home with 8-to-2 Victory.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLAG RAISED

Big Crowd Disappointed with the Playing of the Brooklyns—Ames Pitches Well.

Amid the roar of cannon crackers and the stirring strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," the second pennant of the New York baseball team, emblematic of their victory in the National League championship race last season, was raised at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon in the presence of a crowd of 20,000 persons. Incidentally, the opening of a new championship season was recorded, and another step taken toward a third pennant and a second world's championship title. The day, though frowning in the morning, had changed its countenance to smile on the occasion, and the enthusiasts that gathered within the big enclosure came in happy frame of mind to witness again one of those splendid exhibitions of up-to-date baseball that the Giants so well know how to give. In this alone was the crowd disappointed, for the exceedingly poor showing of their tail-end opponents robbed the game itself of all semblance of a contest and left the Champions to romp home winners with no need to exercise their finer skill to achieve a victory. The score was 8 to 2 in their favor.

In its earlier aspects the event promised to be a successful and notable opening. The crowd came early, filling the right-field bleachers first and then overflowing to the left, with a generous representation in the grandstand and upper pavilion. When the concert, given by the Catholic Protectory Band, began at 2 o'clock, the spectators in attendance might have been regarded as an excellent crowd on an ordinary day. From then until 3 o'clock, when the pennant-raising was scheduled, the people continued to file into the grounds in droves, scurrying for the desirable seats, but well ordered and good humored. All the stands were comfortably filled when the signal for the entree of the players was given, and from that time on, though the people continued to arrive, their number was small, showing plainly the conviction that on an opening day the only time to reach the ground was early or not at all.

Champions Appear on Field.

The excellent arrangements that marked the handling of the crowds was conspicuous in the ordering of the flag raising. Not a sign of a player was to be seen during the hour that the crowd listened to the inspiriting strains of popular or martial music. Suddenly, at the hour of 3, the small host of white-robed idols of the baseball "fandom" appeared in a body from the clubhouse. The crowd, bubbling over with good spirits, made their appearance the signal for a mighty shout, which swelled and spread till the entire amphitheatre was a mass of standing, flag-waving people, cheering wildly their appreciation of two seasons' great achievements. The band meantime had moved to the scene of new activity and formed in front of the players while they surrounded the huge blue pennant that lay stretched on the turf in right field, ready to be borne to its new place above the grand stand.

Besides the generous festoons of flags and banners that decorated the stands on all sides of the field and lent color to the sombre masses of black-coated people behind them there were standing on the field itself a quantity of little flags, outlining the diamond circuit. These were hastily gathered up by an attendant at the first sign of the players' appearance and carried off to left field, en route to the clubhouse. But they never reached their destination. Some "rooters," minded to have a real souvenir of the auspicious occasion, seized one from the arms of their bearer as he passed before the stand, and instantly he was set upon by a horde and flag after flag wrenched from his grasp until not a one remained. As spontaneously there began a wild waving of miniature American and Irish flags in that section of the stand, which continued incessantly until the greater pennant waved proudly from its staff.

While this bit of byplay was being enacted the members of the two teams had formed for the parade across the field and awaited the start. A figure had been noticed by the crowds in the grand stand rushing excitedly back and forth across the diamond to the pitchers' box where stood two cylinders. In these fuses were placed, and a touch of a spark sent two cannon blasts reverberating from the field and back from the surrounding heights. This was the signal for the march, and instantly the band struck up and began to wend its stately course across the field. During the progress of the group from field to grand stand the two cylinders continued to boom forth their welcome, and the crowd echoed its cannonading with a bombardment of cheers.

New Pennant Raised to Pole.

Following immediately behind the band came Manager McGraw with "Buster" Wilson, the mascot, in full uniform. Proudly, in answer to the resounding welcome as he approached, the manager, who has been so largely responsible for the Giants' success, bowed his acknowledgments. Following him came the players of the New York and Brooklyn teams, forming a solid cordon on the three sides of the great blue pennant which they bore to the staff from which it was to fly. When they reached the grandstand it took but an instant to fasten the flag to its halyards, each Giant eager for a chance to aid in the work, while Bresnahan and Gilbert, bearing small blue pennants, lettered 1904 and 1905, stood by watching. Then to the boom of the cannon and the strains of the National anthem the huge blue flag began its ascent to its proud pinnacle, unfurling and revealing in great yellow letters its legend:

GIANTS.
Champion Baseball Team of the National League, 1905.

The cheers that had gone before were as nothing to those that now rent the ambient air, the vocal expression that relieved the oppressive feeling of exultance that each chest of each loyal rooter had hitherto striven to restrain until this proper time arrived to give it vent.

While the cheers were still sounding the players of the two teams scattered for preliminary practice. This was the signal for the informal recognition of each individual favorite by name, called joyously with some timely word of greeting or advice. The first to be recognized was Mathewson, the principal idol of them all, who appeared for the first time this year in uniform, showing the effects still of his recent illness, but as he sped the ball to Bowerman manifesting no indication of weakness in his arm. The other members of the team gathered at the plate to practice batting out the benders served to them by the reserves on the pitching staff, and as each assumed his place he, too, was welcomed.

The practice season was speedily over, and the teams prepared for the start of play. Young Ames was elected to pitch for New York, while against him McIntyre was to serve. As New York took the field Umpire "Hank" O'Day approached the stand, looking expectant to a box in the upper pavilion, and the crowd, following his gaze, rose, too, to watch for the advent of the first ball. A surprise awaited them, for instead of Mayor McClellan, who had been invited to officiate, but had been obliged to decline owing to the press of official duties, arose a slender young woman, Ida Brooks Hunt. As she tossed the ball lightly to the waiting umpire she was recognized as an erstwhile stage favorite who formerly appeared in the original Woodland company some two years ago.

The game was on at last, and the crowd settled down expectantly to see a fine display. Cheers greeted Ames as he struck out the first two men and retired the third on a pop fly, but when the Giants took the bat Brooklyn immediately commenced its wretched error-making that was so outrageously amateurish as to be farcical. Those who came to cheer remained to scoff, and such expressions greeted the offending players as a typical parody of the popular song rendered—"Everybody works but the shortstop, and he muffs every ball."

As the crowd filed out of the grounds at the end of the game, overflowing in an eager throng the playing field, some wag started rolling the great pushball that the Giants had used for exercising in the South. In an instant it was seized by a hundred hands, and with a great cry they started it rolling across the sward. There was a mad scurry to avoid its path, but, constantly changing direction from each new impetus, it traversed a zigzag course until it reached the fence, keeping all on the alert to escape it. No sooner was it there than back it was rushed until it struck the grandstand. There it was lifted high in the air, in an effort to force it into the stand, but it was thrown out, and, suspended, so passed on the hands of the crowd until it crushed down on some unwitting one not agile enough to avoid it, breaking hats and prostrating figures.

So far as the playing of the champions was concerned, no criticism can be made, because they were not called upon to put forth any unusual efforts. They took every advantage of the mistakes made by the Brooklyns, and, with a large majority of basehits to their credit, they were enabled to win by a one-sided score. On the part of the Brooklyns affairs were just the reverse. They did not give to McIntyre the support that his pitching entitled him to, and in the fourth inning he was succeeded by Doescher, the left-hander.

The fielding of Lewis, particularly in the first and second innings, was of the most amateurish description—not altogether on account of his fumbling, but because he fielded too deeply and was slow in gathering and throwing the ball. It was his weak efforts, coupled with McIntyre's failure to hold a thrown ball at the plate, that gave the champions four more runs than they were entitled to in the first two innings.

While the full staff of the Giants' pitchers participated in the preliminary practice, which, of course, included Christopher Mathewson, who does not look at all well, Manager McGraw designated Ames as the pitcher, and, with the exception of two innings, he had the batsmen all at sea. These were the fifth and sixth. He gave two bases on balls in succession in the fifth, but the side was retired without scoring, while in the sixth two well-placed singles and a double gave the Brooklyns two earned runs.

Of the special incidents of the game the futile effort of "Mike" Donlin to steal home in the fourth inning was the most conspicuous. He had first sent the ball close to the ropes at right field for three bases. Believing he had an opportunity to tally because of the slow delivery of Doescher, he made a sudden dash for the plate, but was caught by a wide margin. In the seventh inning, after Lewis had fumbled his grounder, Donlin took too much ground at first and was thrown out. The very next instant the Giants claimed a balk on Doescher, and it was allowed. Browne, who was on second, was advanced to third in consequence, and he finally scored on McGann's single. Bresnahan received some hard usage behind the bat from foul balls, and in the seventh inning Marshall took his place.

Although Bresnahan made the only safe hit in the first inning, six men went to the bat, and two unearned runs were scored. Browne got first on called balls, but he was forced out by Donlin at second, Bresnahan going to third on the play. On McGann's hit to McIntyre Bresnahan was caught between third and home, but McIntyre allowed Casey's thrown ball to get away from him and two men ran home. Four singles, Lewis's slow handling of the ball, and Gessler's failure to catch a thrown ball added four more runs to the Giants' score. A base on balls and Donlin's triple gave them another tally in the fourth, and Lewis's failure to field McGann's single enabled Donlin to cross the plate.

Lumley opened for Brooklyn in the sixth inning with a single, and went to third on Maloney's double to right. Casey was retired, but Gessler scored both runners by a single to left. The score:

GIANTS DEFEAT BROOKLYN

Have No Trouble to Win First Game at Home—Boston Nationals Regain Lead.

While the Greater New Yorks were overwhelmingly defeated by the Philadelphia team yesterday, they did not lose their position in the race, being now tied with Washington, Detroit, and Chicago. The Athletics' victory placed them a clear second to Cleveland, which was not scheduled to play. In the National League the Bostons regained the lead by defeating the Philadelphias, the latter team falling back to fourth place. The champions, by defeating Brooklyn, improved their standing, being third and close to Pittsburg.

GRIFFITH'S TEAM EASY.

Athletics Bat Orth Freely and Win the Game by 11 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—The champion Athletics enjoyed a batting feast to-day at the expense of Pitcher Al Orth. When the engagement between New York and the Athletics had ended the latter had scored 11 times to New York's 3. The game was almost a farce after the sixth inning. Up to this time Orth gave some evidences of form, but in subsequent innings the champions had nothing to do but slam out singles, doubles, triples, and home runs. Coakley had the New York players guessing in every inning but the seventh, when they solved his delivery for three hits, which, with a wild throw by Brouthers and a passed ball, yielded three runs.

There was plenty of good fielding to relieve the monotony of the disproportionate score. Clever catches, fine stops, and quick throws were made by both teams. In the fifth inning Hoffman caught Orth's low drive only a few inches from the ground while running at full speed, and completed an easy double play by throwing to Davis, Kleinow being a runner at the time and having reached second base. In the same inning Conroy duplicated Hoffman's brilliant effort by taking the ball in the same manner on an equally hard chance from Hartsel's bat. Hartsel and Keeler also made splendid running catches.

The New Yorks began their seventh inning auspiciously. La Porte hit a nice single to left and was followed by a double by Conroy in the same direction. La Porte tallied on the latter's hit. Chase should have been easily retired at first, but Brouthers's wild throw enabled the runner to reach second, while Conroy crossed the plate. A passed ball put Chase on third. Kleinow was easily retired, but Davis made a bad threw of Orth's hit to the plate and Chase reached home. The score:

RUNAWAY AT HORSE SHOW.

Oakland King Caused Excitement by Bolting in Durland's Academy.

Galloping furiously around the tanbark ring, beyond the control of his rider, Peter Manning's chestnut gelding, Oakland King, created a mild sensation in the last night's judging of the Spring horse show at Durland's Riding Academy. Twelve horses were entered in the class, which was for saddle horses. As the horses were cantering around the Academy on the right rein Oakland King managed to get the bit between his teeth and bolted. The other horses quickly scattered, giving the runaway a clear space. After circling the ring twice the horse swerved against the east side, nearly unseating his rider. Many of the spectators jumped to their feet. Oakland King straightened himself out and continued his mad career. He galloped down the school and straight for the box which contained Mrs. William J. Steel and party, which was next to that occupied by Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt. The rider tugged at the reins and managed to swerve his mount just as it reached the box. Several women screamed, but the occupants of the Steel and Vanderbilt boxes remained cool. The horse galloped straight for the entrance doors, which he forced open. The impact stopped him, and as he reared on his hind legs one of the employes caught hold of the reins and brought the exciting scene to a close. Neither the horse nor the rider was injured, and the excitement quickly subsided.

The feature of the closing night's exhibition was the success of Mrs. John Gerken, who won three first prizes and one second prize. A. G. Vanderbilt was successful in one class only, while he gained second and fourth ribbons in another class.

Mrs. Gerken followed up her previous successes with Newsboy and Shopgirl by capturing the Stivers Cup for pairs of horses to runabouts from Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Company's The Spider and The Fly. Mrs. Gerken has swept everything before her at the show with her famous pair, and there was not the slightest hesitancy on the part of the judges in awarding the blue ribbon. Mrs. Gerken also won the blue ribbon for ponies under the saddle with a dashing black mare named Welsh Princess.

One of the most difficult classes of the show to judge was for trained saddle horses for park use. Out of a field of fifteen the selection, after an hour's work on the part of the judges, narrowed down to four, all of which were so nearly even on all points that the judges were in a quandary. Each horse in turn performed the necessary evolutions, which appeared to puzzle the judges all the more. The lot finally fell to Miss Rhea Reid's black mare Endoria.

For the best four-in-hands, not exceeding 15 hands, Mrs. John Gerken and the Winchester Hall Stables were the only contestants. Mrs. Gerken drove her own team and elicited applause for the clever manner in which she drove. There was little doubt from the outset, and when Mrs. Gerken's entry received the blue ribbon the applause broke out a second time.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt scored his first win of the evening in the single harness horse class with his bay mare The Youngster, which found instant favor with the judges.

ATLANTIC HOMEWARD BOUND.

The Kaiser Cup Winner Passes the Azores with Owner Aboard.

LONDON, April 20.—Wilson Marshall's three-masted auxiliary schooner yacht Atlantic, winner of the Imperor William Cup race from Sandy Hook to the Lizard in May of last year, passed St. Michaels, the Azores, to-day.

The schooner Atlantic is homeward bound, bearing Commodore Wilson Marshall and his guests, and is expected to arrive in New York about the first week in May, when the boat will be docked and overhauled preparatory to going into commission to perform her function as the flagship of the Larchmont Yacht Club, of which her owner was recently elected Commodore.

With Commodore Marshall on board are H. A. Bergman, Joseph Pearsoll, Frank Unger, George Ade, Clay M. Greene, and Morton W. Smith. The boat will be received by yachtsmen on this side of the water with the keenest interest, to see how she stood the terrific gruelling of her race across, of which such thrilling tales have been told. She is said to have been in excellent condition when she left the Mediterranean.

Cornell Tries New Football Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 20.—Twenty-five candidates reported for the first Spring football practice this afternoon at Percy Field. Passing and kicking were first practiced, after which a short time was devoted to the new game to be introduced by Coach Warner. Miniature goal posts have been erected, the object being to get the ball between these. Passing and running with the ball is permissible, but no tackling is allowed. The game is designed to add interest to the work, and give valuable practice in passing.

After this game was concluded the men lined up, and ran through a few new plays that will be used on account of the changes in rules.

CLARK GRIFFITH WON IN REAL STAKE STYLE

Baseball Horse Took the Arverne as He Pleased.

GOOD DAY FOR FAVORITES

Two-Year-Olds Were the Only Choices to Fall for Backers at the Aqueduct Track.

As results went the racegoers at the Aqueduct track yesterday showed judgment to such a degree that the bookmakers thought seriously over the question of where the advantage rested. While there was a full ring again yesterday, it was a fact that attracted notice that many men who were noted for their shrewdness as bookmakers "played the races" as simple bettors on the outside. They played so successfully, too, that the margin of credit was on their side when the day finished.

The feature event of the day, the race for the Arverne Stakes, six furlongs, for three-year-olds, provided a contest that was of tremendous importance to the betting crowd in anticipation, but in the actual running, it was interesting only for the fact that it showed a prospective rival for the star three-year-olds in Frank Farrell's colt Clark Griffith. The Farrell colt, named for the popular baseball player, already had won at Aqueduct in cheap company, and in yesterday's race got in light, though with a very much higher grade of horses. He was backed with great confidence by his stable, and justified the support he received by winning in hollow style in fast time.

Clark Griffith trailed for a little more than three furlongs, then, making a move after Green Room, the pacemaker, took the lead about as he pleased. From the quarter pole to the finish he held command with ease, and won, pulling back to the fast filly Zienap, while Jack Dolan, which came from far in the rear, was a fair third.

Toots Mook easily won the first race, and Lady Amelia quite as easily took the second event, both starting at odds on.

In the races for two-year-olds, form, as established by the few races that have been run in the East this Spring, went askew. In the first of the youngsters' contests, Blue Dale, counted a stake colt at the New Orleans Winter meeting, galloped in hand all the way, and won cleverly from Mexican Silver, over the longest course that two-years-olds have been asked to go this season in New York. WOMEN ON LAKEWOOD LINKS.

Miss Thompson Beats Male Opponent in Cup Contest—Close Matches.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 20.—Close contests and surprises marked the results of the two match play rounds concluded to-day in the golf tournament of the Country Clug of Lakewood. Wylie W. Carhart, the Yale golfer, entered from the Detroit Country Club, who won the medal on the preceding day for the lowest score, went out in the first round, after a close match with Pierre A. Proal of Seabright, the latter winning by 1 up.

Mrs. T. H. Polhemus of the Eastern Parkway Club, Brooklyn, and Miss Mabel G. Thompson, the Canadian champion, who both qualified in the fourth cup set, attracted considerable attention by their clever playing. Miss Thompson easily defeated F. F. Reid of North Jersey by 8 up and 7 to play, but in the afternoon she met defeat. Mrs. Polhemus had a good match with H. A. James of the home club, but was beaten in the first round on the home green. The results of the two rounds for the first two cups are:

H. P. Whitney Secures Jockey Lyne.

Overtures were made yesterday and an agreement practically was reached for a contract under which Lucien Lyne, the most successful of the jockeys riding at high weights this season, will be attached to the big stable of Harry Payne Whitney for the coming year. Frank Farrell in the Winter secured first call on Lyne, and so the agreement, which has not yet been completed, will give Mr. Whitney only second call on the rider, but the arrangement planned is one that will be perfectly satisfactory to Mr. Whitney, as his chief use for Lyne will be in the big two-year-old stake races in which the Farrell stable is not likely to be represented, while the make-up of the Farrell establishment is likely to give the Whitney establishment the chance to use Lyne's skill in about all the big handicaps and weight-for-age races, where the rider is able to make the weights.

Americans Wish Giants Success.

Judging by the acts of President Brush of the New York National League Club and of President Gordon of the Greater New Yorks of the American League, since the opening of the season, all the prejudices that have existed between the two organizations since the Americans invaded New York in 1901, apparently have been obliterated. When the Greater New Yorks began their championship race last week at American League Park, President Brush, from Philadelphia, extended his good wishes for a successful season for the Greater New Yorks. Yesterday President Brush received the following dispatch from President Gordon:

"Heartiest congratulations for successful and prosperous season for the Giants."

Indian Harbor's Yacht Racing Dates.

The Regatta Committee of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club has announced its programme of races for the coming season, opening on Decoration Day with a series of special races, and closing on Labor Day with the annual water sports. The feature of the schedule is a cruising race for sloops and schooners set for June 23, which is not only a distinct innovation, but if it attracts the entry expected will be one of the notable events of the year. The dates are:

May 30, races for the N. Y. Y. C. 30-footers, the raceabout class, the handicap classes, and club catboats; June 23, cruising race for schooners and sloops; July 4, races for motor boats; July 12, inter-club races for the N. Y. Y. C. 30-footers and raceabouts; July 14, annual regatta for all classes; Aug. 18, club handicap and race for club catboats; Sept. 1, Fall regatta for all classes. Sept. 3, ladies' race for club catboats and races for canoes and row-boats, and the annual water sports.

GERMAN TO MAKE ASCENSION.

Brings Balloon from Abroad and Will Go Up Next Wednesday.

Plans for another balloon ascension, to be held from the Union Gas Works, foot of East 138th Street, next Wednesday, were completed yesterday. The aeronaut will be an entirely new aspirant for honors in this country, William Hendel, a German, who came to New York about six months ago, and who has been spending the greater part of his time in that interval in making aeronautical experiments in Jersey City. Mr. Hendel will use a balloon which he brought over with him. It was made in Germany, and the foreign aeronaut said yesterday that he had made nearly twenty ascensions with it in Europe. It will hold 20,000 cubic feet of gas, and the basket will accommodate two persons.

Since the death of Paul Nocquet the Union Gas Company has made a rule that it will furnish no gas to balloonists unless the aeronauts are known to be men of experience. While the German aeronaut claims to have had all the experience nessary, he holds no pilot's certificate from any of the leading Aero Clubs abroad, and he discovered yesterday that he might have difficulty in having his balloon filled at the gas works. He endeavored to persuade Leo Stevens to go with him, but the latter is now putting the finishing touches to three big dirigible balloons that he hopes to finish next week, Major Miller's air ship being one of them, and he was unable to devote the time necessary for a successful ascension. One of his workmen, Tracy Tisdall, who has piloted balloons several times, was elected as Hendel's assistant, and as this plan was satisfactory to the gas company, the German's balloon will be filled without trouble.

Count de la Vaulx, who has had little success since his arrival in this country with ballooning, may make one or two ascensions from West Point before he sails for home on May 3. The Aero Club hopes to make arrangements for one or two flights next week. It is understood that Count de la Vaulx is very much disappointed at the general lack of interest in ballooning as a sport in America.

BEQUEST FOR MASSES VOID.

Not Within Purposes of a Hospital, Appellate Division Holds.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday by a majority vote to affirm the decision rendered by Justice McCall in Special Term, in the case of Edward S. Johnston as executor of the will of Joseph Hughes against various relatives or claimants or legatees, including Archbishop Farley and the Sisters of the Poor of St. Francis.

Three-fourths of the estate was left to "the Trustees of St. Francis Hospital in the City of New York for the benefit of the Blessed Virgin Mary Purgatorial Fund" of that hospital. The lower court held the legacy was void.

The majority of the Appellate Division affirmed this decision, declaring that "it seems clear that the object of this gift was not within any of the purposes of the corporation."

CHARGE CEMETERY ABUSES.

Lot Owners in Lutheran Burial Ground to Investigate Accounts.

Two hundred lot owners of the Lutheran Cemetery met in the Teutonia Assembly Rooms, 158 Third Avenue, last night and voted not only to have the accounts of the Trustees investigated, but also to take the matter to the Legislature in the hope of having radical changes effected in the management of the cemetery.

Magistrate Wahle, who was one of the speakers, said:

"We are anxious to find out what has become of the money that has been paid for the lots. Who has been getting the graft, the meanest kind of graft, graft derived from the dead."

WASHINGTON QUITS WORK TO TALK OF DISASTER

Californians There Are Stunned by the Calamity.

OFFERS $10,000 FOR MESSAGE

Senators Newlands, Perkins, and Flint Lose Heavily—Honolulu Gets News Via London.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Social and political activities in Washington have been paralyzed by the San Francisco disaster. As the days have passed the despondency of the thousands of people in this city having relatives and friends in the stricken California metropolis from whom they cannot hear has extended to the entire city.

The members of the California Congressional delegation are almost frantic. Three of them who had decided upon the receipt of news of the earthquake and fire that they could not reach San Francisco in time to do any good, to-day could stand the strain no longer and started for the Pacific Coast.

It was said at the Postal Telegraph Company that one wealthy resident of Washington had offered $10,000 if the postal company would transmit a dispatch to San Francisco and bring him an answer. The offer, being irregular, was declined. It has been impossible to receive more than fragmentary reports up to this time.

In the Democratic and Republican cloakrooms of the House every news agency posts its bulletins. The same conditions prevail on the Senate side. Washington is perhaps more closely related to San Francisco through social and political ties than any Eastern city. As a result all the formal social functions which were set for the latter part of this week have been abandoned.

The various embassies have regarded the San Francisco disaster as a national catastrophe, and here, too, invitations have been recalled. In each of the departments where there were Western division and bureaus, the greatest anxiety prevails. The War Department is the only department which can keep in any kind of touch with the situation.

Francis J. Heney, the Assistant Attorney General appointed to prosecute the late Senator Mitchell and others who were implicated in the Oregon land frauds, has his office in San Francisco and had just arrived to prepare for the trial of Binger Hermann, which is set for next week.

Hermann's trial has been postponed in order that Mr. Heney may return to San Francisco. He has three sisters living in the burned district, and could not proceed with his preparation of the case. The press dispatches announce that the building in which his offices are located is a total loss and both banks in which he is a depositor totally destroyed.

Senator Newlands of Nevada says the Sharon estate will be one of the heaviest losers by the disaster. The Senator married a daughter of the late Senator Sharon, and he is a trustee for the Sharon estate. Some of the largest and finest buildings in San Francisco are owned by that estate, including one large hotel. The understanding here is that the loss the estate will suffer will run into the millions.

Senators Perkins and Flint are both heavily interested in San Francisco real estate. Neither has authentic information on which to base an estimate of his losses. Representative Kahn, unable to get definite information concerning Mrs. Kahn and their children, left here last night for San Francisco. This morning his secretary received a telegram which removed all doubt as to the safety of the family. The dispatch was forwarded to the Californian at Chicago.

"Send twenty words San Francisco earthquake" was the order received by a Washington correspondent whose paper, like every paper in the United States, had printed 20,000 words at least of the horror on the Pacific Slope.

After recovering from his amazement the correspondent looked at the date of the dispatch and found that it had been sent last night from Honolulu. There is a cable from San Francisco to Honolulu, but it was disrupted by the earthquake, and nothing was known in Honolulu of the earthquake until yesterday morning, the news being doubtless received from Manila.

The business interests in Honolulu are almost exclusively in the hands of San Francisco men and San Francisco capital is most heavily invested in the Hawaiian Islands. The cablegram from Honolulu was answered by the correspondent in twenty words. It was filed at noon, and it was probably about daybreak this morning when it reached the Honolulu newspaper offices, owing to the difference in time.

The cablegram left Washington over the Postal lines to New York and thence to London. From London it went to the British lines to Lisbon, thence over the eastern extension to Aden, thence to Bombay, thence to Madras; thence to Singapore, thence to Hongkong, thence to Manila, and finally by way of Guam it reached Honolulu.

BOY LOCKED IN WITH FIRE.

Policeman Rescues Him—Says He Was Tied—Mother Denies It.

Smoke was seen to issue from the five-story apartment building 131 Edgecombe Avenue, Harlem, late yesterday afternoon by Charles Hasenbolg, who found Policeman Schumm of the West 125th Street Station. They broke in the door of the flat from which the smoke seemed to be coming. It was the one occupied by Mrs. M. G. Wooley.

In the bathroom the two men found seven-year-old Ward Wooley, after they had also broken in the door of that room to get at him. A heap of towels was burning beside him. He was rescued without being burned, and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Schumm said that he had found the boy tied to a steam pipe in the bathroom. The boy said that he had amused himself by lighting matches and touching the woodwork with them.

Mrs. Wooley told the police later that she had locked the boy in to prevent him from getting into mischief. She denied tying him. The boy was taken to the Children's Society rooms.

NO BLUE POINT FAMINE.

Seed Oysters Supplied to Make Up for Starfish Ravages.

Special to The New York Times.

BLUE POINT, L. I., April 20.—Manhattan epicures will be elated to learn that there will be no dearth of the Blue Point oyster, despite the ravages of the starfish which appeared here in the Fall. Hundreds of thousands of bushels are being planted in the bay, a large fleet of vessels being employed to transport them from their native beds in Long Island Sound.

It is said that supplying the seed oysters is affording the Sound oystermen almost as lucrative employment as furnishing the eatable size, and that many thousands of dollars are being realized in consequence.

TWO-GALLON AUTO TEST.

Contest Arranged to Show How Far a Car Can Go.

Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler, Chairman of the Contest Committee which will conduct the two-gallon efficiency test on May 5 under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America, announced the conditions yesterday, and entries will be received to-day. The entry fee for each car is $10. The entries will close on May 2. Sufficient assurances have already been made to the committee to guarantee the success of the contest, and it is confidently believed that the results will have a wide-reaching effect in demonstrating certain practical principles in the economy and endurance of motor vehicles.

Among the club members who will drive their own cars will be Gen. George Moore Smith, A. R. Shattuck, Winthrop E. Scarritt, John B. Trevor, Alan R. Hawley, Col. A. B. Hilton, Frank Eveland, Cortlandt Field Bishop, E. B. Gallaher, and A. Ward Chamberlin. The cars will be started at intervals beginning at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, May 5, from a garage near the Automobile Club, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street. They will pass the clubhouse, going up Fifth Avenue to 110th Street, then to St. Nicholas Avenue, to 155th Street, crossing Central Bridge up Jerome Avenue to Pelham Parkway, to the Shore Road, and thence through New Rochelle, Larchmont, Mamaroneck, and as far beyond as the vehicles can run on two gallons of gasoline.

Dr. Wheeler and his associates, George F. Chamberlin and Charles G. Curtis, have compiled the rules with unusual care, and the handicap allowances have been arranged so as to make the test as fair as it is possible for all classes of vehicles.

The basic rating is on cars having four or more cylinders. Two-cylinder cars will be rated as though they weighed, loaded, 75 per cent. of their actual weight, while single-cylinder cars will be rated at 70 per cent. of their actual weight. To the weight of the car, with its full quota of passengers, a handicap of 800 pounds will be added. This sum will be multiplied by the distance in miles traveled to obtain the final score of efficiency. A five-hundred-dollar silver gilt punch bowl will be the first prize, a hundred-dollar silver cup will go to the second man, and a silver medal to the third.

Any car that does not finish within five hours after starting will be disqualified. The distance traveled will only be considered, no credit being allowed for the time taken to make the run. The carburetors will be examined before starting by expert officials, and special tanks containing exactly two gallons of gasoline will be handed to each contestant when his car has passed the critical examination of the experts. An official observer will be assigned to each car. As soon as the car stops the observer will note its position, marking it upon his map, and word will be sent to the clubhouse. Automobiles carrying gasoline will precede the competing vehicles, and when they stop sufficient gasoline will be supplied to return to the city.

The committee in charge of the contest will remain in session at the clubhouse during the run, so that the records may be compiled quickly, and the final awards will be made as early as possible that evening.

STUDENTS ACT AS HOSTS.

New York University Boys Entertain "Prep" School Lads.

The New York University authorities were called upon last night to solve a novel problem, and the methods adopted were in keeping with the occasion. Nearly 150 preparatory school boys from New York and New Jersey were the guests of the university, and all the resources of the institution were taxed to meet the requirements. A general invitation was extended to several hundred schoolboys to attend a big athletic meet at University Heights, which is to be held to-day, and to come on the night before the games as the guests of the university. The invitation was generally accepted, and every effort of the university students was devoted to making the boys feel at home. It was the first visit for many of the youngsters to a real college.

A general committee was formed, with Waldo Clark as Chairman. Members of the freshman class were divided into squads under sophomore leaders. Each train and trolley reaching University Heights was met by a squad of students, and the visiting schoolboys were escorted to the gymnasium, where they registered. Here another committee was in waiting, and the lads were assigned to the various fraternity and boarding houses around the campus. Students cheerfully gave up their comfortable rooms to the visitors. Cots were brought into requisition and couches and lounges improvised for sleeping purposes. There was a general disposition on the part of the schoolboys to refuse the courtesies, and many expressed a desire to "rough it" rather than to put the students to any inconvenience. Quite a number of the boys declined to accept the sacrifice on the part of the students and spent the night in the gymnasium on cots or mats which are used in gymnastic exercises.

The students were imbued with the desire to help Alma Mater and resigned their comforts with the best possible grace. The visitors were treated with every consideration. Those entered in to-day's interscholastic meet indulged in their final work, while those without athletic inclinations were shown about the campus and buildings, and will and eager students explained to them the many advantages of the New York University.

Dinner was served in the gymnasium and other buildings, and was thoroughly enjoyed, the novelty of the situation appealing to them. Many mistakes were made, such as boys going into wrong rooms, but they were not disturbed and made themselves at home. In spite of the mistakes everything was pleasant and harmonious. After dinner the visitors and the students enjoyed an exhibition by the gymnastic team, which was followed by three wrestling bouts, light, middle, and heavyweight. The evening's entertainment closed with a cane rush between the sophomores and freshmen, which was productive of much enthusiasm and excitement.

The remainder of the schoolboy guests will arrive this morning and will witness the baseball game on Ohio Field between New York University and Trinity College. This afternoon will be devoted to athletic games for the Chancellor MacCracken Cup, on which St. Paul's and Dwight Schools have each two legs. It becomes the permanent property of the school winning it three times.

Chancellor MacCracken last night expressed himself as being delighted with the result of the experiment and thanked the students for the hearty manner in which they had entered into the project.

Among the schools that accepted the invitation were St. Paul's, Horace Mann, De Witt Clinton, Cutler, Berkeley, Montclair High School, Morris High, Montclair Military Academy, Yonkers High, Erasmus Hall, Brooklyn Boys' High, High School of Commerce, and Rutherford High.

Hummel Wins a Point.

In a decision handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, Abraham Hummel won a victory over District Attorney Jerome in the dispute over his release under bail pending the hearing of his appeal from his conviction for conspiracy. Immediately after Hummel's conviction his attorneys obtained a certificate of reasonable doubt, and he was admitted to bail pending appeal. District Attorney Jerome appealed from this order, and now loses his appeal.

SCHAEFER'S SCANT WIN OVER CHAMPION HOPPE

"Wizard" Lands Closest Match by 500 to 488.

DECIDING GAME TO-NIGHT

Slosson and Schaefer Tied for First in Billiard Tourney—Ties for Other Positions.

Jacob Schaefer last night defeated William F. Hoppe in the latter's final match of the international 18.2 billiard championship. Schaefer won by 12 points, 500 to 488, after Hoppe had manipulated the ivory spheres for a sensational run of 145 when his veteran opponent was within 6 of the end of his string. As a result Slosson and Schaefer, the two rivals of more than a hundred matches, are tied for the championship, which their contest to-night in the concert hall of the Madison Square Garden will decide. The loser will tie with Sutton for second place, while the best Hoppe can get is fourth. Hoppe's propensity to line the balls cost him the contest last night, and his victory over Schaefer would have brought about a triple, and possible a four-handed, tie in the most remarkable tournament that the game has ever experienced.

Schaefer's win of the bank at the beginning was followed by his usual misfortune of being kissed off by the red in his attempt of the regulation opening shot. Then Hoppe took his turn, and by a pleasing system of cushion carroms he counted 18 as his opening contribution before missing a single cushion shot. The "Wizard" went wide again, while the young champion added 26 to his string. This inning indicated that Hoppe was in the best of stroke, and that he was skillfully upholding an effective method of balk-line billiards. As he followed in the next inning with 22, during which he held the ivories at close range and delicately played across the face of the object balls, the crowd which packed the hall demonstrated its interest and approval of the young billiardist in no uncertain manner.

In his portion of the third inning Schaefer counted his first carroms, 4 in number, and the last was a spectacular three-cushion follow in which his cue ball and the white completely circled the table in a race to meet the red, all settling snugly in one corner. It was a great opportunity for Schaefer, but he let loose a massé before he was actually in position, and the red was omitted from the necessary combination. Two turns later Schaefer managed to steady himself and persuaded the rolling spheres to yield 50 carroms for him. All of this run was negotiated by an amazing sequence of difficult open-table shots in which Schaefer's inability to hold or control the balls at any stage caused his admirers considerable concern. Schaefer was nearly even with Hoppe at this stage, the beginning of the sixth inning, the score being in the latter's favor by 78 to 72.

The weak spot in Hoppe's manipulation showed itself repeatedly in the way of the lining of the balls during the following four innings in which he counted. Each time a splendid opportunity for close range play and a big run was spoiled by his inability to overcome the difficult problem. Hoppe was the first to turn the hundred mark, which he accomplished in his ninth inning with a run of 67, which up to this time was his best effort of the match. The youthful aspirant for honors adroitly used the short rail for close range billiards during this bit of manipulation, and as he backed it with 46 he obtained a lead of 79 over his veteran opponent.

From the moment Schaefer began on his eleventh turn at the table, showing his tricks of English and reverse with marvelous effect, the crowd audibly approved as it realized that some more of "The Wizard's" fine work was to be displayed, possibly a great run. The latter was the case, for Schaefer soon coaxed the balls to the short rail and seductively leading them for periods of nursing between the rail an dthe unlimited centre panel, accumulated 171 carroms before carelessly missing a draw shot. Schaefer displayed perfection at the massé to its fuliest degree during this run. He also used the bank so deftly as to call forth from the crowd lively and continuous applause. The result of this splendidly managed cluster was to put Schaefer in the lead at 290, leaving Hoppe at 209.

Schaefer bungled a cushion carrom when within six of the end of his string, and, following with a zero, afforded Hoppe the chance he was eager for. The youth played ball-to-ball billiards of a steady and sensational character along the head of the table until the crowd was keyed up as he began to near the finish mark. His speed was excellent but at times uncertain, and after the one hundred and forty-fifth count the spheres lined along the cushion and he missed an attempt at a kiss shot when within twelve points of winning. Schaefer wasted no time, but by straight billiards counted his necessary six and won the match. The summary:

Schaefer, 0 0 4 18 50 0 16 0 28 3 171 16 5 39 14 59 35 42 0 6. Total, 500. Average, 25; high runs, 171, 59, and 50.

Committee Plans for Football Officials.

The sub-committee of the American Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee, having in charge the organization and direction of the Central Board of Officials which will instruct and supervise the officials to serve at the various games played next Fall, met at the Murray Hill Hotel last evening and formulated its general plan of action. At another meeting to be held on Friday, May 4, the various sectional committees which are to operate under it will be announced and the work which they will do marked out. The plan adopted will be announced to-day by Chairman Babbitt.

Three of the five members of the committee were in attendance last night. Chairman Babbitt of Haverford, Prof. C. W. Savage of Oberlin, and Walter Camp of Yale. Prof. L. M. Dennis of Cornell sent on the outline of the plan which he favored, which concurred with that adopted, while Prof. J. B. Fine of Princeton sent a general acquiescence in whatever was to be done. The plan approved was sent to him at Princeton for his formal approbation.

New York Horses Win More Blues.

BOSTON, April 20.—New York owners were again the leaders in the Boston horse show yesterday. In the light harness class Judge Moore received the blue, and the highsteppers of Reginald Vanderbilt won, but both were beaten by Miss Gertrude Gilbert in the class for lightweight pairs. George Watson won two blues in the heavy harness classes in the morning.

E. D. Jordan's great Hildred won again in hackney class, and Glenwood M. took the blue among the trotters. Both were championship classes. The Union County Hunt's pack of hounds from West Orange, N. J., was beaten in the hunt club competition by the Middlesex hounds.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Necklaces Held Dutiable as Jewelry—Other Decisions.

In a decision by T. S. Sharretts the Board of United States General Appraisers overruled yesterday a claim filed by M. Wolff & Co. of New York regarding the rate of duty applicable to completed necklaces composed in chief value of beads and long pins with fancy beads. The board affirms the action of the Collector in returning the merchandise for duty as "jewelry" at 60 per cent. ad valorem. Several claims for lower duty were made by the importers, but none of them is held by the board to possess merit.

General Appraiser Fischer wrote a decision for the board denying a contention raised by Ludwig Victor of New York regarding the customs classification of nickel-plated zinc sheets. Collector Stranahan held the articles dutiable at 45 per cent. under the provision in the tariff law for manufactures of metal.

Other importers' claims overruled were filed by Balfour, Williamson & Co. and F. H. Petry & Co., New York; Reina Brothers, Tampa; F. W. Myers & Co., Plattsburg, N. Y.; Edson, Keith & Co., Chicago; William C. Schoenemann and Winters & Reincke, Philadelphia.

The board sustained protests filed by John Baird & Sons, Blumenthal & Co., and others, New York.

The Middle States had 52, New England 22, Southern 33, Western 43, Northwestern 9, Pacific 6, and Territories 2. Canada had 22, against 15 for the preceding week. About 90 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 9 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

CONDITION OF TRADE.

Despite the widened breach between anthracite coal miners and operators and the devastation of the California cities, general trade conditions outside of the localities immediately affected are, according to Dun's Review, exceeding best expectations. Dun's says:

> The Nation as a whole is responsive to the favorable influence of good weather for Spring business, agricultural undertakings, and building operations—all of which are on a scale never before approached. Retail distribution of dry goods, millinery, and kindred lines is surpassing sanguine expectations, and mercantile collections are prompt as a rule. A special canvass of the Winter wheat situation by this paper shows little injury and large acreage, and structural work is not checked by the high prices of building materials. Manufacturing plants are fully occupied, except some dependent upon hard coal, and the chief complaint in most industries pertains to the supply of labor. Immigration beyond all precedent should relieve this difficulty, if it can be properly distributed.

Bradstreet's says:

> Retail trade shows considerable stimulus as the result of warmer weather, and this in turn has resulted in much reordering to fill in stocks. Traveling men now on the road are sending in good advance orders for Fall delivery, the indications being for a good trade. Railway earnings are heavy. Collections tend to improve, and money is certainly easier, though still in active demand. Country roads for the most part are in better condition.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held March 30, 1906, the following petition was received:

To the Honorable, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment:

The petition of the Williams Terminal Railway Company respectfully shows:

1. That your petitioner is a street surface railway corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having filed its certificate of incorporation in the office of the Secretary of State of New York on the 29th day of July, 1905, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and operating a street surface railway in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York.

2. That your petitioner desires to obtain from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York its consent to and a grant of the right, privileges, and franchise to use a portion of Bowne Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, for street railway purposes, and for the construction, maintenance and operation of a single track street surface railway upon and along the surface of said Bowne Street, a description of such proposed railway being as follows: Beginning at a point southeast of Imlay Street, where it will connect with the track of the New York Dock Company, and running southeasterly along Bowne Street to and into the property of J. H. Williams & Co., on the easterly side of Richards Street, the entire length of said road not to exceed nine hundred feet, together with the necessary connections, switches, sidings, turn-outs, turn-tables, cross-overs, and suitable stands necessary for the accommodation and operation of the said railroad by the overhead system of electricity, or other power lawfully employed by connecting railroads, all in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York.

3. Your petitioner further shows that there is no adequate means of transportation provided between the termini of the proposed railroad, and your petitioner believes there is a public demand for the construction and operation of this proposed railroad, and that such construction and operation will be a public convenience and benefit, the said railroad to be used for freight only.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays that the notice of the time and place when and where this application will be first considered be given, pursuant to provisions of Section 92 of the Railroad Law, and all other laws applicable thereto, and that consent or grant be given in the form of an ordinance subject to the laws and ordinances applicable thereto, and upon terms and conditions to be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Greater New York Charter.

Stocks Recover — Call Money Rates 4@6 Per Cent.

Over $6,300,000 Gold Engaged for Import—Heavy Shipments to West.

After a morning of irregularity, in which the contending forces upon prices were a continuation of the liquidation so marked on Thursday, although upon a much smaller scale, and the substantial support accorded to many issues, the stock market slowly developed strength, the first impulse toward recovery coming from dispatches reporting that control of the fires in San Francisco had been effected. As the day wore on the news from the afflicted city became more and more cheering, reductions being made in the estimates of the area burned over, and therefore in the losses suffered through the destruction of property, and prices of securities reflected this favorable turn in affairs by steady gains, which at the close of the day ran from 1 to 3 points throughout the active list. Another matter working toward the dissemination of cheerfulness was the announcement, shortly after the noon hour, of the engagement of $6,370,000 gold in London for import, deposit of approved securities being made at the Sub-Treasury, in accordance with Secretary Shaw's plan, whereby amounts equal to the gold engaged were secured at once from the Government institution. Announcement was also made of the intention of several of the largest English fire insurance companies to secure funds to meet their losses in San Francisco through withdrawals of capital from their home offices rather than by means of sales of American securities, and the drawing of exchange in anticipation of the payments which must be made by foreign underwriters explained, in large measure, the sharp break in the foreign exchange market, both these matters contributing to the better sentiment of the day. Foremost in the advance which attended these various developments were Reading, which rose 3⅝ points; Union Pacific, 2⅝ points; Great Northern and Northern Pacific, 2¼ and 3¼ points, respectively, and Amalgamated Copper, which, after opening at 107, closed at 110⅝. The steel shares were firm throughout, and rose vigorously in the afternoon, this movement, as well as that in Colorado Fuel and Iron, reflecting the prospects of heavy demands for structural materials for reconstruction purposes in San Francisco.

Outside of the engagement of gold in London and the break in exchange the developments of interest in the money market were further heavy shipments to various points on the Pacific Coast, through the Sub-Treasury and by express, certain shipments to Chicago representing payment for drafts which had already been forwarded from that city to Pacific Coast cities for local account, and a rise in call money rates to 6 per cent. Preliminary estimates of the currency movements of the week, which have been, of course, unusually confused, foreshadowed a gain by the banks of from $15,000,000 to $16,000,000, all but a small part of this coming, of course, from the Sub-Treasury in the shape of deposits to be returned upon the receipt of gold in transit. Inasmuch as the heavy gains in cash made on Saturday of last week will count, of course, fully, in to-day's bank statement, and since the transfer of $3,000,000 to San Francisco on Thursday is offset by the $6,000,000 gained through gold engagements, it is probable that to-day's bank statement will be a favorable document.

$4,500,000 SENT WEST FROM HERE YESTERDAY

Total of $10,000,000 Since San Francisco Fire Began.

$6,370,000 GOLD ENGAGED

The News That the Fire Was Checked Helped Stock Market, Which Closed Strong.

The predicted gold engagements, which Wall Street expected as an offset to the loss in cash caused by the shipments to the Pacific Coast, were formally announced yesterday to the amount of $6,370,000. This more than equaled the day's transfers of currency to San Francisco and other Pacific Coast points. Moreover, the position of the foreign exchange market at the close of the day gave promise of further gold engagements to-day or early next week.

The Sub-Treasury transferred by telegraph to San Francisco $1,500,000, of which $1,000,000 was sent forward by the banking house of Laidlaw & Co. The same house sent another $1,000,000 by express to various points on the Pacific Coast, including Sacramento in California and Seattle in Washington.

The Metropolitan Trust Company forwarded $300,000 by express to one of its correspondents in Sacramento. Other shipments by various banks made known during the day brought the total of these direct shipments by express up to about $3,000,000. Taking into account the $1,500,000 transferred through the Sub-Treasury, New York's contributions in cash to the needs of the Pacific Coast banks yesterday amounted to $4,500,000.

The previous day $3,000,000 had been sent to San Francisco through the Sub-Treasury, and other large shipments were made direct. It is estimated that since the news of the San Francisco catastrophe reached this city on Wednesday banks and bankers in New York have sent a total of about $10,000,000 to the Pacific Coast.

In addition to the money sent to the Pacific Coast, the Sub-Treasury transferred by telegraph $250,000 to Chicago. Dispatches from that city reported that the banks there were sending large sums to their correspondents in San Francisco and other California cities. The transfer from this city to Chicago probably reflected withdrawals by Chicago banks to offset partially the money they had to send to the Pacific Coast.

The stock market showed considerable improvement yesterday after much irregularity in the early part of the day. The news from San Francisco received early in the afternoon that the fire had been checked and the announcement of large engagements of gold abroad were helpful factors.

The market during the early part of the day was feverish, but in the last hour became strong, and closed with net advances in nearly all the active stocks. United Railways Investment preferred, which suffered so heavily the day before, yesterday made a net gain of 4½ points. The common, although it recovered substantially from the low price of the day, showed a further net loss of 6 points compared with Thursday's price.

Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and Atchison, the three railroad stocks most directly affected by the Pacific Coast calamity, all showed net gains. That in Union Pacific amounted to 2⅝ points. Other advances, varying from 1 to 2 points, took place in a majority of the active stocks, including the standard Eastern railroad stocks, which on Thursday had suffered sharp declines along with the rest of the market.

The engagement of $6,370,000 gold abroad for import to this country was made known through the deposits of bonds at the Sub-Treasury to cover special deposits made by the Government with the National banks against gold engagements, in accordance with the plan announced by Secretary Shaw last week. The names of the banks which obtained cash equal in amount to the gold engagements were not given out by the Sub-Treasury officials. It was learned that the banks which received the special deposits were the National City Bank, the Chase National, and the National Bank of Commerce. The Bank of Comerce got $370,000, which was taken for the account of the Guaranty Trust Company. The $6,000,000, representing the bulk of the day's engagements, was divided between the two other banks.

The total amount of money which has now been advanced by the Sub-Treasury against gold imports since a week ago last Thursday, when these special deposits were authorized by Secretary Shaw, is $19,470,000. The Sub-Treasury has thus advanced close to the total amount which it has been authorized by Secretary Shaw to deposit with the banks against gold imports. The limit may be raised by an additional ruling of the Secretary, but on the other hand it was thought yesterday that there might be no need of raising the amount inasmuch as over $6,000,000 in gold is due to arrive to-day.

The Campania of the Cunard Line, due to-day from Liverpool, and La Savoie of the French Line, from Havre, have on board $5,150,000 consigned to the National City Bank, and smaller amounts consigned to other importers. The arrival of this gold will reduce by so much the indebtedness of the banks to the Government on the score of special deposits secured against gold imports.

Call money was firmer yesterday, advancing at one time to 6 per cent., but most of the day's loans were at 4 per cent. Time money was also firmer, 5½ per cent. being bid for all periods up to six months. While money rates were growing firmer, the foreign exchange market moved very erratically. Demand sterling opened at 4.84, a decline of about 50 points from the previous day's final rate, and then on the news of gold engagements rose to 4.8475. There was heavy selling of bills on the advance, and the market quickly receded again to the low point of the day. Demand sterling at the close was quoted at varying figures, from about 4.84 to 4.8415. Drafts drawn against shipments of securities were still much in evidence in yesterday's business in foreign exchange. Another factor in the exchange market was the announcement by some of the foreign insurance companies which carried heavy risks in San Francisco that all their losses would be paid from the home offices, and that their American resources would not be drawn on at all to meet the losses incurred in the San Francisco conflagration.

Leading international bankers were inclined yesterday to regard as conservative the estimates that the foreign fire insurance companies will be called upon to pay at least $50,000,000 to policy holders in California.

EFFECT ON WORLD FINANCE.

German Insurance Companies May Be Heavy Losers by Earthquake.

BERLIN, April 20.—In German financial circles some concern is felt as to the possible effects of the San Francisco disaster on the international money markets. One newspaper here estimates the amount of German fire insurance in California at over $350,000,000, including the risks of one Austrian company, but this estimate probably is excessive.

Nevertheless, gold exports from London, and probably from Germany, are looked for, as New York exchange is rising, cable transfers to-day reaching 4.22, which permits profitable gold export. Various American railway stocks and bonds were sold heavily to-day on the Boerse, and the shares of several fire insurance companies doing business in California scored big drops upon prospective losses.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

San Francisco Disaster Is Expected to Result in Large Orders.

San Francisco's disaster is looked upon in the steel trade as an advertisement. The buildings which proved themselves best suited to withstand earthquake shock were the few structures of steel construction the city boasted, and it is confidently believed that the new city will be very largely composed of steel frame buildings, which will add greatly to the demands on the mills already producing up to the limit of their capacity.

March records of the United States Steel Corporation exceed all previous figures in every department, and are the largest in the history of the industry. The blast furnaces of the corporation now number eighty-nine, and only one of these is out of blast for repairs. A similar remarkable report has come from the Crucible Steel interests. For the first time in many months, despite increased production, there has arisen a scarcity of crucible steel that is causing generally higher prices.

The demand for steel rails has made another defection in the producers of steel billets in the shifting of the Youngstown mill of the Carnegie Company to rails, scheduled for May 1. This shift will increase the scarcity of raw steel, which is becoming acute.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, April 20.—Money was scarce in the market to-day and rates were firm, being affected by the withdrawal of Japanese balances. The San Francisco disaster also depressed the market. Discounts grew firmer owing to the drain of gold and the condition of French exchange.

The tone on the Stock Exchange was gloomy on account of the calamity at San Francisco, and remained dull almost throughout the day. There was a better feeling toward the end, and the market closed quietly steady.

Consols were depressed on account of fears that the insurance companies would be obliged to realize on their holdings, and closed a fraction above the lowest quotations. Home rails were heavy.

Americans opened flat, and the drop in prices enabled the bears to realize, which caused them to rally somewhat on fair support and moderate business. But they reacted on the receipt of New York's opening, were very irregular during the last hour, and closed firmer. The other sections were practically featureless.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 101¼.

Bar silver steady at 9⅞d. per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15.15; Lisbon, 4.

Bullion amounting to £52,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to the United States.

$547,000

New Orleans & Northeastern Railroad

4½% Equipment Gold Notes

Dated Apr. 9th, 1906. Maturing semi-annually from Oct. 1st, 1906, to Apr. 1st, 1913. The first installment being $40,000, and all others $39,000 each.

These notes are secured on the following equipment, built by the American Car & Foundry Company:

450 box cars	$343,800
200 flat cars	135,800
150 coal cars	128,250

Of which amount $60,850 was paid in cash by the railroad.

The New Orleans and Northeastern Railroad operates 196 miles of road, connecting with the Alabama Great Southern Railroad at Meridian, Miss., which roads, with the Cincinnati, New Orleans, Texas and Pacific, form the well known "Queen and Crescent Route" from Cincinnati to New Orleans. The New Orleans and Northeastern Railroad gives the Southern Railway its entrance into New Orleans.

During the years from 1894 to 1896, according to various records, railways aggregating 94,000 miles, on which there were outstanding about $80,000,000 of car-trust obligations, went into the hands of receivers. In every case the holders of the equipment notes were paid in full, without the loss of a dollar, even when the roads were in default upon their first mortgage bonds.

We wish to call attention to the strategic position of the road.

We have purchased the above notes from the Railroad Company, and, having sold three-quarters of the issue, we offer the balance for sale at a price to yield 4.90%.

CURRENCY MOVEMENT.

Owing to the special deposits made at the close of last week against gold imports the record of the known movements of currency this week show a very large gain by the banks, variously estimated yesterday at from about $15,000,000 to about $16,500,000. Discussing the currency movement of the week, The Wall Street Journal says in its issue of to-day:

> The reported movements of currency this week indicate a gain in cash held by the banks of $15,020,400, of which $14,100,000 was derived from special United States deposits against the engagements of gold for import. The banks received from the interior $6,861,200, and sent to the interior $8,521,890, of which $3,000,000 was transferred through the Sub-Treasury to San Francisco and $1,338,000 National banknotes were sent to Washington for redemption. The loss to the interior was $1,710,600.
> Receipts of new gold were $1,246,600, of which $458,700 was in imported gold, $753,800 on New York Assay Office checks, $23,800 on San Francisco Mint checks, and $10,800 on Seattle Assay Office checks.
>
> The movement of currency between this city and the interior was normal last week, reflecting the usual return after the planting season, and but for the transfer of $3,000,000 to San Francisco there would have been a gain from the interior of $1,289,400. The currency movement of the ensuing week will represent chiefly the requirements of San Francisco.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—There was a continuation of the demand for United States Steel common from local commission houses to-day, the result being that this stock was the leader of the market. Late in the day the Philadelphia Company issues came into prominence, the group rallying sharply with the exception of the consolidated 5s, which sagged off ⅝. The unassented stock, after a weak opening, advanced 1⅝. The receipts, unstamped, were down 3 points, but recovered 1½, while the stamped receipts rallied a point, to 51½. Yesterday's last sale was made at 53⅛. The preferred stock was up ⅝. The late strength was due to official statements regarding the company's position, as well as more encouraging reports regarding the outlook of its new owner.

United Railways Investment Company of San Francisco, Reading, and Lehigh Valley improved, the latter a point. Cambria Steel rose ½. Philadelphia Rapid Transit 1½, and United Gas Improvement ⅞. Selling of Tonopah Mining from out-of-town holders broke the price 1¼ points, to 16⅞, but it rallied at the close to 17½. Total sales, 43,893 shares.

Substantial Recoveries in Curb Shares.

Stocks That Suffered in the General Slump Regain Lost Ground on Good News from 'Frisco.

Recovery was general yesterday in the curb securities which suffered along with the stocks on the big Exchange in the general slump following the news of the San Francisco calamity. The market opened generally strong, but very dull, and followed markedly throughout the day the fluctuations of the Stock Exchange as the rumors from the scene of disaster were disquieting or favorable. After news was received that the fire had been checked there was a noticeable recovery from the slight reaction which followed the opening, and the close was strong. Throughout the day trading was sluggish and there seemed to be very little buying on behalf of the public.

American Can, which suffered heavily Thursday, opened half a point above Thursday's close for the preferred, but sold down quickly to 60½, recovering to 61¼ at the close. The Mackay companies which, next to American Can, were the most active of the industrials, closed with fractional gains. Chicago Subway, after sales of 4,900, closed at 56¼, a gain of one point. The little activity developed in the mining shares resulted in fractional gains practically throughout the list.

An operator whose long experience of mercurial Wall Street enables him often to anticipate its moods and who can always be trusted to oppose extremes of sentiment on either side said yesterday: "Stocks were a purchase this morning, in my judgment, because nothing could be worse than the news at hand upon which people impulsively sold their securities. You see if I am not right in saying that a more bullish feeling will rapidly supplant the unreasonable dismay of the last few hours. The news from San Francisco should be better to-morrow. It cannot conceivably be any worse than it was this morning. If it improves, as I believe it will, and if we learn that in our overwrought imaginations we have anticipated more than the worst, a reaction of some importance may be looked for. The news of large gold imports, actual and probable, enough to offset the demands to be expected from San Francisco, together with estimates of the insurance loss that will fall upon foreign companies, will contribute to restore confidence. I predict, further, that in a week's time this San Francisco disaster will cease to be thought of as a factor in the stock market. Wall Street will say, and perhaps rightly, that it has not touched the prosperity of the country."

***

The recovery in prices which occurred during the afternoon will tend to revive confidence.

***

As is almost invariably the case, the unstable element of Wall Street was most hysterical yesterday morning when the news on which impulsive action might be taken was so bad that it could not grow any worse, and the change, which had to come, was therefore a change for the better. Many brokers lost their wits, and could see nothing ahead of the market but a period of disastrous liquidation. They sent out messages to that effect, and, as one who had maintained his pose said afterward, did all that they could to demoralize sentiment rather than to prevent it from running to extremes. "If I had not made up my mind firmly that the worst had been realized," said a prominent commentator later in the day, "I should have been scared blue by the messages that I found awaiting me at my office." There were many brokers who must have influenced not only liquidation of long stocks but short selling at the very lowest prices of the first hour by taking the most alarming view of the situation possible.

***

The liquidation which was in progress at the close of business on Thursday continued in the first hour of yesterday's session, but there was evidence throughout the list of organized support. Whether its presence checked the selling or whether the liquidation simply ran its course is a question that cannot be readily answered. At any rate, the lowest prices were reached in the first hour, and a substantial recovery followed. From the low prices of the forenoon there were such recoveries as 3½ points in Amalgamated Copper, 2⅞ points in Union Pacific, 2 points in Southern Pacific, 2 points in Atchison, 3½ points in Reading, and 1⅜ points in Pennsylvania. The highest prices of the day were made in the last hour. The market closed strong and active.

***

There is said to be a very large short interest in the market.

***

Low priced stocks made the best record in the break of Wednesday and Thursday, even allowing for the fact that the fluctuations of a high priced stock are normally wider than those of a low priced stock.

***

Nowhere else do people rush from one extreme to another as in a Stock Exchange community. There were bulls who held on Wednesday that the news from San Francisco was grossly exaggerated, which, of course, seemed possible, and who held, besides, that the total destruction of a city 4,000 miles away ought not to upset Wall Street. Yesterday those same bulls, having got out of their stocks at a disadvantage, were heard to proclaim that the calamity had put a bull market quite beyond the range of possibility. One position was no less untenable than the other. What most good critics now expect is a feverish market for some little time, perhaps for several weeks—a market in which fitful exhibitions of strength will alternate with spasms of fresh weakness. Even so conservative an opinion as this, however, needs to be qualified by many conditions. There are those who are so sanguine as to think that a bull market needs not necessarily be postponed. They do not try to maintain that the destruction of so much wealth is a bull argument, but they do assert that there is some compensation in the extraordinary demand for materials and labor which is thereby created. There are other forms of wealth, notably wheat, of which $200,000,000 worth could be destroyed without disastrous results. As compared with the marketable value of the country's agricultural products per year, say, $6,000,000,000, a destruction of $200,000,000 of durable wealth has not the appearance of a disaster.

***

In the light of this week's unexpected events last week's heavy engagements of gold for import seem almost providential.

***

It seems to be taken quite for granted that San Francisco will be rebuilt on a greater scale, following the precedent set recently by Baltimore, and, to go further back, by Chicago and Boston. It is the American spirit. In this light the reconstruction of the city will amount to a good deal more than the replacing of wealth destroyed. When a man tears down a building that is worth $100,000 it is a destruction of wealth, theoretically, just as much as if the building were blown down or burned, but if he replaces it with a building worth $500,000 he has added something to the sum of wealth. It was announced yesterday that D. O. Mills, who has reached his three score and ten, would begin as soon as possible to reconstruct his building at San Francisco. He was only a little less proud of his San Francisco building than of the one which stands on the east side of Broad Street, opposite the Stock Exchange, pronounced by many critics to be the finest example of architecture in the Wall Street district. William H. Crocker is quoted as having said: "Within five years San Francisco will be greater, finer, and more beautiful than ever. This calamity will only give the opportunity to make a more splendid city than people have ever dreamed of."

***

There has been not a single transaction in Tennessee Coal and Iron stock throughout the decline in prices this week.

***

There is said to be a very powerful bull pool in United States Steel common.

***

Persons whose information is usually trustworthy say that the dividend on Amalgamated Copper would have been at the rate of 8 per cent., except that the condition of the market did not justify such action from a speculative point of view. The inference is that it is intended to make the rate 8 per cent. three months hence. The stock recovered very sharply yesterday afternoon, closing well above 110, after having sold in the first hour as low as 107.

***

The actions of Consolidated Gas recently have not squared with the idea that the dividend is likely to be reduced to 4 per cent. or less. On a 4 per cent. basis, with a lot of expensive litigation ahead of the company, the security would not seem to be worth anything like 139¾, the price at which it closed yesterday. It has been very strong in the last few days. It closed at a fractional advance on Thursday, when nearly everything else broke badly. There is a very large short interest in the stock—as large, perhaps, as any that has ever existed in it. Brokers who have been buying it steadily on a scale-down have been lending it freely to the shorts. Always before the stock has been made accessible to borrowers when a short interest was being cultivated. As yet there has been no demonstration against the short account, except one that was engineered by a prominent room trader, and this in itself is a suspicious circumstance.

***

Some of the larger commission houses bought stocks on balance yesterday. It is believed in some quarters that the lower prices will attract the outside buying, which until now has been wanting. Brokers as a rule, however, are extremely conservative in their views, and less sanguine about the purely speculative possibilities of the market than they were a few days ago. A bull movement seemed just to be getting under way, hopes were reviving, and the Street was beginning to feel cheerful again—but the earth quaked. Now the bull crowd must begin all over.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Liquidation Spent, Prices Recover with Prominent Southern Buying.

The cotton market bore up well yesterday under the existing unsettled conditions. After easing off a further 5 to 7 points from Thursday's close on belated Wall Street liquidation and scattered selling from the South, prices recovered 15 points from the lowest and closed at the top.

Heavy sales of spot cotton in Liverpool at the decline and the stubbornness of Southern spot markets induced covering by local traders. Aside from this demand a very large Southern operator, not from New Orleans, bought cotton freely in the New York market.

Philadelphia spot interests were believed to have sold July moderately. This selling, it was said, was against spot purchases. Spinners did not appear, however, to be attracted by the reaction in prices. Brokers identified with Price interests, it was stated yesterday, signed most of the contracts for sales of the May delivery on Thursday, and it was thought that the clique sold all they could yesterday under cover of support.

The local market opened 3 to 5 points lower on the near months and 1 to 2 higher on new crop options. May and July declined 6 to 7 points from the previous close and then rebounded 15 points, closing at 11.18 for May and 11.07 for July, the net advance being 7 to 9 points. October sold off to 10.35 and closed at 10.46, December to 10.36 and closed at 10.48.

Liverpool was apprehensive of the effect of the San Francisco disaster here and was inclined to be very weak, at one time being 8 to 10 points lower. Futures recovered some, however, and closed 5 to 8 points lower, May-June at 5.89, July-August at 5.88, August-September at 5.83, October-November at 5.63, and December-January at 5.62. Spot prices lost 12 points with sales of 12,000 bales at 6.04d. for American middling. The local spot market advanced 5 points to 11.75 against 7.80 last year. The tone was quiet. Southern spot markets were fairly steady at 1-16 to ⅛ decline. Advices from New Orleans stated that exporters were trying to secure cotton on a lower basis, but holders would not make a cut.

Cotton Opinions.

SANGER & ETTELSON.—It appears to us as if the liquidation has spent itself, and the trade will now turn their attention to legitimate influences.

J. S. BACHE & CO.—We regard as the most potent adverse influence the poor spot demand, but we think it will speedily reappear with a renewal of strength in the future markets.

DICK BROTHERS & CO.—Southern spot markets are holding very well, and there has been no desire on the part of Southern holders to sacrifice their cotton. We look for a further improvement.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO.—Any outside speculation for an advance seems to have received another serious check.

JOHN MUIR & CO.—On all such breaks as we have had cotton should prove a good purchase.

Following are the opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The market for wheat had a quiet opening at a decline of about ⅛c, cables being unsatisfactory, and crop news generally bearish. Later the market rallied ¼c, and was finally steady at a net decline of ⅛@¼c. Cash wheat closed quiet but firm, No. 2 red nominal, in elevator, and 90¾c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 90⅝c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—Corn was fairly active and quite strong within a narrow range of variations, opening ⅛c lower for May, ⅛c higher for July, and ¼c lower for September. Later the market moved up ⅛@¼c from these figures, with the tone finally firm, at a net advance of ⅛c to a net decline of ⅛c. Cash Corn was firm but quiet: No. 2 corn, 57c, nominal, in elevator, and 54⅞c, nominal, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 56c, and No. 2 yellow, 55¾c, free on board, afloat.

World's Supply of Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, issued to-day, shows the total visible to be 4,416,071 bales, including 2,855,071 bales American cotton. There are now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 2,101,000 bales; Egypt, 414,000; India, 1,408,000, and United States, 1,123,000.

Rockaway Beach Railway Bonds.

F. J. Lisman & Co. announce that they will act for the holders of the second mortgage 5 per cent. income bonds and stock of the New York & Rockaway Beach Railway Company. Holders of these securities are requested to deposit their bonds and stock with the bankers on or before April 30. Negotiable certificates of deposit will be issued for the security.

CENTRAL'S EARNINGS GROW.

Were $86,095,602 Gross Last Year, Says Annual Report.

The annual report of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, issued yesterday, shows gross earnings of $86,095,602, an increase of $7,522,393, and net earnings of $24,594,831, an increase of $2,144,027, compared with the previous year. Operating expenses show an increase of $5,393,662, due largely to heavier maintenance and equipment charges and increased cost of conducting transportation resulting from the larger volume of traffic.

After the payment of 5 per cent. dividends on the stock the road showed a surplus for the year of $2,113,848. From this sum $1,500,000 was set aside as a special fund for new equipment and betterments.

The extraordinary expenditures provided for during the year amounted to $16,400,413. This includes, $2,853,718 for renewals of equipment charged to operating expenses. The funded debt of the company was increased by the issuance of $3,500,000 4 per cent debentures and $202,096 3½ per cent. gold mortgage bonds.

The acquisition of new lines, including the New York & Ottawa and the St. Lawrence & Adirondack, added 239 miles to the New York Central's lines. The statement of President Newman to the stockholders largely concerns the taking over of the new lines and the definite financing of the New York Central's recently acquired electric lines, all of which was announced from time to time last year.

Discussing the rebuilding of the Grand Central Station and the other improvement work which the road has under way, President Newman says:

> Satisfactory progress has been made on the work connected with the improvement of the Grand Central terminal and the electrification of lines to Croton and North White Plains. The main power stations at Port Morris and Yonkers are nearly completed, and work on substations at various points and transmission lines is well under way. It is expected that operation by electric traction between the Grand Central Station and temporary terminals at Woodlawn and Highbridge will be installed during the coming year.
>
> Among the important improvements under way or completed are the abolition of grade crossings at various points on the system, the relief of main tracks between Albany and Buffalo by construction of additional sidings, &c., and the continuation of double tracking, revision of grades, and the construction of additional sidings on the Pennsylvania Division.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 20.—The local money market is dull. Call loans, 5@7 per cent.; time loans, collateral, 5@6 per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 5½ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 6 per cent.; New York funds, 8c discount; clearings, $37,914,425; balances, $3,524,584; Sub-Treasury debit, $108,241.

There were large realizing orders here at the opening, and the volume of business was large. This selling in turn brought in stop orders, under which prices crumbled rapidly. Calumet and Hecla showed a decline of 5 points, United Copper about 2 points, Amalgamated over 1 point, Smelting and Copper Range about 1 point each, and the majority of the copper shares in proportion. After the early trading the market became stronger, in sympathy with the better tone shown by the New York list, and advances were shown all along the line. The closing was firm at very near the highest point of the day.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 20.—Houston Oil common's decline to-day affected a large part of the list. It sold as low as 8¼, which was 1⅜ below the price recorded Wednesday. The general trading was more active than on any previous day this week. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut rights dropped to 50¼, swinging back to 53 toward the close. United Railways' pooled stock showed weakness, dropping off 1 point, but recovered ¼.

In the bond list trading was larger in volume than in stocks, and declines were more numerous. United Railways' pooled incomes were the feature, selling steadily for a 1-point loss. Sparrow's Point 4½s broke through for ½ loss. Consolidated Gas declined ¼. Charleston Consolidated Electric 5s were ½ off. Cotton Duck 5s were very active and stronger.

The market closed firm. Sales: Bonds, $75,000; shares, stocks, 2,790.

Marconi Wireless

An Established, Operating, Commercial Success.

THE BEST INVESTMENT IN THE WORLD.

We have been continuously telling our customers and friends about Marconi Securities. Every word we have said is coming true and much we did not venture to predict. The American people are now awake to the importance and usefulness of the MARCONI SYSTEM, and the demand for the securities has been unprecedented. It would take a book to tell you all about this greatest of inventions. We print the main facts in our prospectus and a good deal of additional information is contained in "THE MARCONI WIRELESS NEWS," both of which are free to you upon application.

To those who are not familiar with the great progress that has been made by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company we publish below a few facts:

The Marconi System has the largest field to work of any enterprise in the world, being adapted to land and sea in every clime in every part of the earth's surface.

The business is on an established commercial basis, now earning money every day and hour.

Its arrangement with the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies gives it the use of their 30,000 offices, covering the United States and Canada, so that a message can be sent from and received in every town and hamlet.

Its Officers and Directors include men of the highest business standing and capacity, including John W. Griggs, President of the Company and former Governor of New Jersey, and ex-Attorney General of the United States; with a strong Board of Directors, and Thomas A. Edison, with other leading scientists as Consulting Engineers.

The English Marconi Company, which was brought out previous to the American Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, according to their annual statement, earned

GUGLIELMO MARCONI.

SEVEN PER CENT. NET LAST YEAR.

A remarkable showing for a young company. The American Marconi Company, which is younger, has the advantage of all the English Company's expenditures, and is growing rapidly, and with its much larger territory its earnings should be much greater.

IT IS NOW TO THE OCEAN WHAT THE BELL TELEPHONE IS ON LAND, and with many times a wider field of operation affords greater opportunity for advancing its securities.

One hundred dollars originally invested in Bell Telephone stock now represents $200,000 value.

The Company is capitalized exceedingly low, has no Bonds or Preferred Stock, and its securities are based on the assets, contracts, and patents of the System in the United States and its possessions and dependencies.

First in the field, based on the highest scientific principles and the widest experiments, and will always be FIRST, like the Bell Telephone.

Electric inventions have proved the most profitable of all investments, and the Marconi Wireless will ECLIPSE them all, as it does in utility and wideness of field.

Its stockholders embrace the most conservative investors in America, including bankers, merchants, mechanics, and professional men of all classes.

The Marconi System is now in daily operation between both sides of the Atlantic and trans-Atlantic steamships and most war vessels at sea. These securities offer the greatest investment opportunity in the world, and will LAY THE FOUNDATION OF YOUR FORTUNE.

Your chance for profit is in finding out that the investment is a good one before everybody else knows it. If Bell Telephone stock were offered now at the price it was sold to original investors, it wouldn't last a minute. $100 invested in Bell Telephone stock in 25 years increased to over $200,000. The only difference between the Bell Telephone opportunity you missed and the MARCONI opportunity you need not miss is in the name. The time to buy is while Marconi stocks are cheap.

Bell opportunity is one opportunity worth regretting. Marconi Wireless Telegraph is just as good to-day.

The New York "Sun," January 28, 1906, says:

"One thousand messages, commercial and personal, have been sent from one ship to others and to shore stations on one trip in the busy season. This means an expenditure by the passengers for Marconi Wireless messages of more than $2,000. On a recent trip to New York from Hamburg the Amerika sent 700 dispatches to ship and shore."

Now is the time to buy Marconi Securities. To-morrow may be too late. A big demand and an advance in price are at hand.

Invest Before the Next Great Rise in These Securities and Reap the Benefit.

URGE MAYOR TO APPROVE THE RAPID TRANSIT BILL

Large Attendance at the Hearing on the Elsberg Measure.

R. T. COMMISSION AGAINST IT

Commission's Counsel Hold the Twenty-Year Clause Will Tend to Keep Away Capital.

Arguments for and against the approval of the Elsberg Rapid Transit bill were presented to Mayor McClellan yesterday afternoon at a public hearing held in the Council Chamber at City Hall. Fully 200 persons attended the hearing, and from the Mayor's comments in the course of the proceedings, they left with the impression that he would sign the bill.

George L. Rives and Albert B. Boardman, counsel for the Rapid Transit Commission, opposed the bill on the ground that the clause restricting contracts for operation to twenty years, would keep capital from entering the construcing and operating field. Senator Elsberg, who introduced the bill, held that the measure really provided a forty-year operating right, as there was a stipulation for a twenty-year renewal, with a revaluation of the terms by a Board of Arbitration. He said the rental would be raised only if it should be shown that the property had increased materially in value. Senator Elsberg declared that the Manhattan Elevated lines, since they began operation in 1878, had paid the cost of construction, damages, capital, and other expenses nearly three times over.

"The best thing the Legislature could do would be to leave the situation to the local authorities," declared Mr. Rives, "as is the case under the existing law. To tie the hands of these officials in the manner provided in this bill is the worst thing that could happen to the city's rapid transit future. The new subways will have to carry twice as many passengers as the present subway if they are to realize 5 per cent. on the investment."

William M. Ivins followed Senator Elsberg. He said that under the Elsberg bill he believed there would be several bidders for the construction of the next subways. Ex-Senator John Ford insisted that competitors would be anxious to come into the field, because he said that in subway building their investments would not be subject to taxation on the franchise.

R. Fulton Cutting, President of the Citizens' Union, urged favorable action on the bill, but he took issue with the critics of the Rapid Transit Commission. He said the members of that body had given the city service far more valuable than the city could have obtained for pay. Borough President Coler of Brooklyn declared that the city would get plenty of bidders under the Elsberg bill if it became a law, while Horace E. Deming of the City Club opposed long-term franchizes or leases on the ground that they were injurious to the city. Frederic W. Hinrichs of Brooklyn also spoke in favor of the measure, as did James L. Wells of the North Side Board of Trade.

LAWYER MILES GUILTY.

He Conspired to Defraud City on Sewer Claims, Jury Finds.

The jury trying Lawyer William O. Miles, his three clerks, and two officials in the office of the Controller decided yesterday that Miles and Frank M. Wandell, Jr., and Charles M. Wells, two of the clerks, were guilty of conspiracy to cheat the city by means of fraudulent claims for damage because of defective sewers in Brooklyn.

The jury acquitted Martin J. McMahon, Chief of the Bureau of Sewer Claims, and John B. Scanlon, an examiner, both employed in the Controller's office, and disagreed as to the guilt of Daniel Casey, one of the clerks in Miles's office.

Judge Crane paroled Miles in the custody of his counsel and committed the two clerks to Raymond Street Jail, to await sentence on Monday. The crime carries with it a penalty of one year in prison or a fine of $500, or both. In the case of Miles the conviction will mean disbarment. Casey was permitted to go upon his own recognizance. He will not be tried again.

In explaining why he committed Wandell and Wells to jail and paroled Miles Judge Crane said: "I have known Miles for years. He is a member of the bar and has large property interests which would deter him from leaving the State."

Miles will ask for a new trial. He was First Assistant District Attorney of Kings County under Foster L. Backus.

Friends and Relatives of John Powers Are Anxious About Him.

Friends and the mother of John Powers, 18 years of age, of 146 Nassau Street, Brooklyn, are anxious to know what has become of him. He has been missing since Wednesday, when he should have reported for duty in the pressroom of THE NEW YORK TIMES, where he was employed.

Young Powers was injured in 1902 in a fire in the basement of the old Times Building after an explosion in the adjacent Subway. Since then his health has not been the best. On several occasions he has announced his intention of going into the country, for which kind of life he had a great longing. It is thought likely that the boy is somewhere in the country now.

Powers is about 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighs about 105 pounds. He has light curly hair and blue eyes. On his left arm, between the wrist and the elbow, there is a scar. He carries his head inclined slightly to one side, and is of a nervous temperament. He carried when he went away a Pressman's Union card and a diary.

COULDN'T MISS BALL GAMES.

Branda Fled After Robbing His Sister, but the Diamond Lured Him Back.

Charles H. Branda's love for baseball brought about his arrest and arraignment in the West Side Court yesterday. He was charged by his sister, Mrs. Grace Kahrs of 182 West Eighty-second Street, with stealing $1,500 worth of silverware from her.

Branda went to Philadelphia after the alleged theft, but when the ball season opened his thoughts turned fondly to the bleachers in this city. He returned to the city and went to the Polo Grounds yesterday. Detective Sergt. Judge learned of Branda's passion for the game and was watching for him when he showed up at the ball grounds.

Branda pleaded guilty to the charge in the police court and was held for the Grand Jury.

ORIENTAL RUGS ON VIEW.

Exhibition and Sale of the J. K. Mumford Collection Opened.

An art exhibition and sale of the rug collection of John Kimberly Mumford, author of "Oriental Rugs," is being held at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, 366 Fifth Avenue. The exhibition will last until Wednesday, April 25. The sale will begin then and last through the afternoons of April 26, 27, and 28.

There are more than 500 rugs in the collection. One of the most beautiful of the lot is a red-centred prayer rug. It is 6 feet 6 inches in length by 4 feet 4 inches in breadth. It possesses all the characteristics of the Ghiordes prayer rug, but the workmanship is Persian. It is supposed that it was made by a Persian weaver, a captive of one of the Sultans, and that he produced in Persian art the Turkish religious symbols.

There is a fine old Persian silk prayer panel, showing the "tree of life," with a palm leaf border, and old Kali rugs of Chinese Tartary, which are becoming exceedingly rare. There are also rugs in the form of large carpets and in small three-foot saddle covers.

LINER GROUNDS IN FOG.

The Weimar Goes Ashore Off Sandy Hook, but Gets Off Again.

The North German Lloyd liner Weimar, while bound in from Naples and Genoa yesterday morning, went aground on the south edge of Flynn's Knoll, off the point of Sandy Hook. The Weimar struck in water 12 feet deep, and rammed her keel into the mud for a depth of about 3 feet. The wrecking tugs that went to the assistance of the liner succeeded in pulling her back into deep water at 8 P. M., after which the vessel proceeded into Quarantine and later to her dock in Hoboken. Apparently she sustained no damage.

The dense fog that prevailed over the harbor and out at sea yesterday morning was the cause of the liner's misfortune. So thick was the fog that in the harbor ferryboats had to run at half speed. One of the Cortlandt Street ferryboats of the Pennsylvania lost her way and had to be piloted to her slip by a tug, while the municipal ferryboat Richmond narrowly escaped collision with one of the Brooklyn annex boats of the Pennsylvania.

HABITUAL CROOKS SENTENCED

Most of Them Young—Salomon Says He's Robbed 100 Flats.

Sentence day in Part I. of General Sessions brought before Recorder Goff yesterday a remarkable array of old-timers. And yet there was not one really old man among them. A majority were still in their twenties, and Robert Dalton, who probably had the worst record of all, confessed to being just 20.

He was sent to the City Reformatory two weeks ago, after having been allowed to plead guilty to petit larceny, although charged with burglary. He said he had never been arrested before. At the reformatory he boasted so loudly of the way he had "fooled" the Recorder that the keepers overheard it and reported the matter. He was brought back yesterday for resentence.

Placed under oath, Dalton confessed that since, at the age of 7, he was sent to the Truant School, he had spent twelve of his twenty years in institutions and prisons.

He was sentenced to twelve months in the penitentiary and a fine of $500, which means that he will stay in more than two years.

Charles Yaeger, though only 21 years old, admitted having served four terms in prison for burglary, and was sent back to Sing Sing for four years more.

Thomas Holden, one of the cleverest pickpockets known to the police, owned up to six previous sentences in this State alone. There was no means of knowing how many he may have served elsewhere. He got four years also.

Thomas G. Britton, another pickpocket and sneak thief, known as "Toothpick," on account of his height, was sent to Sing Sing for a year and a half after confessing that he had been there five times since 1892.

Abraham Burnstein, a Russian tailor, who had pleaded guilty to two indictments for highway robbery, got ten years in prison.

A week was given Daniel Nolan, a recently arrived English crook, to decide whether he would tell what had become of the jewelry which he stole from Mrs. Anna H. Cotton and Mrs. Elsie A. McClurg, when he sneaked into their rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria. He refused to tell, although the Recorder told him he might be sent to prison for ten years.

Louis M. Salomon, a "gentleman burglar," who has harassed Harlem for months and who had been convicted on one indictment and pleaded guilty to another, with two more still untried over his head, changed his mind in court and decided to tell the police all about his exploits. He said that in a few months he had broken into more than 100 flats in the upper part of the city. He was remanded to the Tombs to give the police a chance to learn the details from him.

Edward Willis Declared Insane.

A commission appointed by Justice Keogh and a Sheriff's jury to inquire into the mental condition of Edward Willis at White Plains yesterday declared him insane and incompetent to manage his estate. Mr. Willis is 47 years old. Willis Avenue, in the Bronx, was named after his grandfather. Dr. Schmed said that Mr. Willis was suffering with progressive paresis, and that the disease was incurable.

LONGEST TEN MINUTES IN A MURDERER'S LIFE

Michael Brusch Spends Them Before Jury Says He May Live.

GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT

He Shot Policeman Enright Two Years Ago—Patrick Helped Him Get a New Trial.

One of those times that set one's nerves to tingling with the realization of their dramatic quality—moments common in books and rare in life—occurred in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday when, for the second time in two years, Michael Brusch, alias Jacob Huter, burglar and all-around bad man, was watching the faces of twelve men who had been asked to decide whether he should pay with his life for the shooting and killing of Policeman Hugh J. Enright on March 20, 1904.

On one side were those twelve specimens of the average citizen, showing by their demeanor a clear consciousness of the responsibility placed on them, but yet calm, as men will be in the feeling of personal security; on the other hand was a white-faced, gray-haired, thin-cheeked man, looking more than fifty than the thirty-one which is his real age. And thus they confronted each other—the jury and the defendant—for more than ten minutes while the attendants were summoning Justice O'Gorman from a conference with another Judge.

To those who observed the scene it seemed that no keener torture could have been devised for an offender who knew that there could be no dispute about the act of which he was accused, but that his fate was wholly dependent on the motives the jury would ascribe to him. All through his second trial, granted on technical grounds after the effective appeal drawn for him by a fellow-prisoner, Albert T. Patrick, who is himself engaged in a struggle for his life, Brusch sat like a picture of death-in-life.

But those days were full of activity connected with the struggle between the opposed legal forces. The subsequent wait after the withdrawal of the jury had been bearable, too, because each minute that was added to those already gone by without a decision brought fresh hope to the waiter.

But the whole situation changed the moment the prisoner knew that his judges had made up their minds, and that his fate was already settled, though he was not yet permitted to know what it was. The prison pallor on his face blanched into a hue so livid that not a drop of blood seemed to be left in the skin or beneath it. Minute after minute his eyes clung with glassy, lifeless stare to the faces of the twelve men in the jury box as if he had hoped for some supernatural faculty to assist him in reading their thoughts.

Everybody in the room suffered under the tension. When at last the side doors flew open and a stir among the attendants announced the coming of the Judge, a sigh of relief rose from more than one spectator.

Only the prisoner did not move. It looked as if his nerves had been drawn so taut that he dared not relax them at all lest he collapse completely.

Then the customary formalities were had, and at last the crucial moment had arrived. The final question had been put to the foreman of the jury. And with a slight quiver in his voice he replied:

"Yes, we find the defendant guilty of murder in the second degree."

As the words were uttered the corners of the prisoner's mouth were drawn upward just enough to be perceptible. It could not be called a smile, but rather the ghost of one. And into each white cheek stole a few drops of blood, painting a hectic circle above either cheekbone.

Those were the only visible signs of emotion. But they were plain enough to those who could see. They showed that life at any price had been his hope. On Monday he will be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Brusch was surprised while robbing a store. Fleeing from the watchman, he was seen and pursued by Policeman Enright. During that flight he fired four shots, and the pursuer fell dead.

MAY WATCH THE POOLROOMS.

Injunction Forbidding Police Guards Before Suspected Places Vacated.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday reversing the lower court in the poolroom case of Lawrence Stevens against ex-Police Commissioner McAdoo and others. The plaintiff obtained a temporary injunction from a Justice of the Supreme Court forbidding the stationing of policemen in front of his place in West Broadway, which was continued by Justice Sewell. That order is now reversed by the Appellate Division. Presiding Justice O'Brien dissents.

Justice Ingraham, who writes the opinion of the court, says:

> Prizefights, horse racing, poolrooms, liquor selling without a license, and other occupations prohibited by law have been carried on for years under the protection of injunctions issued by court of equity restraining the police from interfering with the persons engaged in these various occupations.

Presiding Justice O'Brien says:

> I do not think that any case has gone to the extent of holding that the police have the right to invade houses and places of business without a warrant where such a business is not done under a license or is not one where—under the right which the police have of inspection—their entrance for that purpose would not be a trespass.

The action was originally brought in Kings County.

For City Asphalt Repair Shop.

The Board of Estimate adopted a resolution yesterday appropriating $25,000 for the construction of a municipal asphalt repair shop in Brooklyn. Borough President Coler offered the resolution and Controller Metz approved it. Borough President Haffen of the Bronx offered a like resolution for his borough.

Thomas P. Wickes Disbarred.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday handed down a decision disbarring Thomas P. Wickes. Wickes was convicted of writing the "Lewis Jarvis" letters. His conviction was recently approved by the Appellate Division.

JEROME WINS A POINT.

General Sessions Judges Cannot Grant John Blake a New Trial.

District Attorney Jerome scored a point yesterday by obtaining a decision from the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court restraining Recorder Goff and the other Judges of General Sessions from granting a new trial to John Blake, convicted in November, 1905, before the Recorder of using a false label. When a motion was made for new trial on the ground that the crime had been committed more than two years before the finding of the indictment, the District Attorney contended that the case had passed out of the jurisdiction of the court.

Nevertheless, the Recorder heard argument on the motion, whereupon Mr. Jerome appealed to the Supreme Court. Justice Fitzgerald, in the Special Term, upheld the Recorder. His decision is now reversed by the Appellate Division.

WITH HERRICK IN SPRING.

By CLINTON SCOLLARD.

NOW that all the wakened hills
Arrased are with tender green,
And the noon-gold daffodils
Greet their over-lord, the sun,
Now that tulips show their sheen,
And a thousand ardors run
Mead and orchard lane along—
Voices virginal with song—
Here's the book unfolds to me
How to-day may still be won
The old path to Arcady!

Pastoral revelry and rite,
Clear airs consecrate to Pan,
Dreams of innocent delight,
Love in frolic guise arrayed,
Merriment of maid and man
In the sunshine and the shade,
Here behold, compacted rare,
Ever fresh and ever fair!—
Herrick, pray reveal to me
(Singer Hesperidian)
Still the path to Arcady!

GROVE'S DICTIONARY.

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

THE second volume of Grove's Dictionary of Music (Macmillan) follows the first at a considerably longer interval of time than was expected; but its coming is greeted by music lovers as one of the most important additions to the musical literature of the year. The new volume extends from F to Lysberg. There have been, as in the previous volume, many additions, bringing especially the biographies down to date. Many men deserving of a place in a comprehensive musical dictionary have come up in the world since the same portion of the alphabet was covered by the first and second volumes, in 1879 and 1880. There are some new articles on technical subjects, and many of the older ones have been filled out. New names have also been added of old musicians who were not discussed in the first edition, as Heinrich Finck, (1482-1519); for there has been much work done in research in musical history in the last thirty-five years.

* * *

The new names, however, are chiefly those of new men. The young French, Russian, Italian, and English composers are well represented. Such men as d'Indy, Fauré, Lekeu, Ippolitoff Ivanoff, Glazounoff, Kalinnikoff, Glière, for instance, appear here; they had no place in the first edition. American musicians are especially provided for, and all appear who have any rightful claim for a place in such a book.

There are several new and important technical articles. One, for example, covers the ground of Greek music in a more thorough and lucid way than that in which the difficult and discouraging subject was treated before. The orchestral instruments, as the flute, (like the bassoon in the previous volume,) are more fully discussed. The article on "Fugue" has been completely rewritten. The most important of such articles in this volume is the one on "Instrumentation," which is a great improvement over the one on "Orchestration" in the first edition, and treats the subject, in fact, in a more modern way than any similar article on the subject readily accessible. It is by Frederick Corder. He even mentions the "heckelphone" that Strauss has used in "Salome;" he cites that composer's employment of the oboe d'amore in the "Symphonia Domestica," and gives a number of quotations from his orchestral scores, with not a few incisive criticisms. Tschaikowsky's scoring he admires as the most brilliant example of the new art of instrumentation, and his scores as of the greatest educational value to the student. He is not of those, however, who will accept everything in the scores of the great masters as conclusively right. "Much orchestral music," he says, "is written in all countries without this experience and knowledge, and nothing but the curious fact that an orchestra will nearly always sound beautiful, even when the composer has gravely miscalculated his effects, saves such works from failure." For instance, in the prelude to "Das Rheingold," he thinks, "none of the effects come off as intended," and having enumerated them, he yet finds that the general effect desired, that of a swelling, surging river, is undoubtedly attained. The examples of the use of the trombone, quoted in the books from Beethoven and Schubert, are nearly all bad, "for it is almost certain that neither of these composers, great though they were, ever heard a trombone in his life, and they seem to have no notion of their enormous tone." And Mr. Corder's independent and original discussion throughout this article, in fact, makes it not only instructive but extremely readable.

Some will think that there is a disproportionate space given to British music and musicians and matters relating to the cultivation of music in Great Britain. But the book is a British book, and is largely intended for reading in Great Britain; and the disproportion is not surprising. It is clearly intentional. Such correction of this lack of balance, which was marked in the first edition, as is made in this revision, comes more from increasing the space devoted to men of other nations than from pruning down the articles about organists, composers, and singers of little more than local reputation in England. Tha articles about British musical festivals, about collections of music and musical books in England, are even largely increased; and British biography flourishes in all its branches.

Likewise, it would not be difficult to go through the book and point out errors in dates, incomplete statement of facts, omissions of various kinds, in some cases errors. It is notorious that no attempt to marshal so vast an array of divers facts, extending over centuries in time, can hope for complete accuracy. There is a table of corrections of errors in the first volume at the end of this, and there will doubtless be more corrections in the third volume. The longer articles are critical in their tone, and are more than mere statements of facts. There is room, naturally, for conflict of opinion over most of these: Many, for instance, will not agree that "Liszt stands before us as a man in whom sympathy was a far stronger thing than imagination," yet articles of this kind that are not critical in tone would be of very little interest or value; and as soon as criticism enters, enters also divergence of opinion.

Nevertheless, Grove's Dictionary is an invaluable work, and since the appearance of its first edition it has been superseded by nothing in English except this revised and enlarged edition. The revision is in charge of Dr. J. A. Fuller Maitland, and that well-known scholar has carried on and developed in an admirable manner the high and ambitious intentions of the first editor, Sir George Grove, whose spirit and intelligence and catholic taste are still in evidence through the successive volumes.

NOVELS OF THE SPRING.

G. B. Lancaster's Stirring Tale of the New Southland Australia, Called "The Spur"—Owen Wister's New Story and Others.

"THE sky was brass and the earth was tow color, with a livid heat reeling giddily between." It sounds like Kipling, but it is not. For thus begins the story called "The Spur; or, The Bondage of Kin Severne," by G. B. Lancaster, (Doubleday, Page & Co.;) and no common story it is, either, for motive or for language. It deals with hard things hardly, brutally, cruelly, with hard, direct words, wasting no reverence upon traditions of squeamish reticence. It scoffs and gibes and snarls and walks with unregenerate man naked and unashamed, but it leads on from these basic matters to the heights of sacrifice, to things not taken into account by the unregenerate one. And it goes on its way burningly, passionately, with full blood and tingling nerves. Which means that it is a story of living, not of dreaming only, though great dreams also are dreamed. As of right, where men are concerned who have heads as well as hands, fizzing brains as well as warm blood.

The scene is not the ancient land east of Suez, but the new land south of the Equator—Australia, New Zealand, Samoa; and the plot, or as much of it as we intend to reveal, goes this way:

There was a lean young man in Coolibah, who was nobody in particular as to origin, but one who had grown up and lived as he could. He was shearing sheep between the earth and sky above mentioned, when Mr. Haddington came that way. Haddington was a promoter and explorer of whatever under the sun seemed to promise profit. And he bargained with the lean young man, hot with ambition as he was. For three years he was to have education and funds at Haddington's hands, and if, within that period he failed to make name and fortune with his pen—that way was his bent—he was to be Haddington's bondman for seven other years. Thus the story begins. And it goes on to tell how the lean young man, by name Kin Severne, toiled and wrote and partly won and partly failed. It takes him to Sydney, where strange things are done upon the streets and within men's houses; it takes him to Samoa when war is there, and leads him through nights full of whistling bullets, wounds, groans, and darkness; then to a sick bed with a priest and a susceptible brown maid attending; then, naturally, to other things—including the knowledge of how a woman can die and how a man must stick to a weaker comrade even though he wreck his own ambitions thereby. So to Sydney again, and stormy scenes with the man who holds the bond and no little stress of soul and body. After that New Zealand and a period of fiercer stress of soul—a rescue from the quicksands by a wild rose barefoot maid, days and nights of writing at white heat, other days and nights fatal to literary concentration and subversive of life philosophies. All of which is the path of love the transformer, teaching the lean young man that taking a pen and playing wizard with scrawled words till men must see things as you have seen them is not all of life. Also that the hard things of life, the brutal, cruel things that rejoice the untamed, are not all of life; that, even a wizard of words must show.

The lean young man, staying with comrade Dick, whose weakness is drink, and comrade Dick's brother, who is a born lover, and having the wild rose girl living hard by, with a tragedy behind her, learns much of these new things—much and reluctantly. And this learning makes a moving story—a story which grows more moving and more intense as it builds toward its climax—a story into which is woven much of the unreason which is called humanity, expressed in words which cut into the consciousness sometimes like whiplashes. This effect of jagged incisiveness is a distinct fault in the earlier part of the book, where it is overdone. By now the author, whose sex is concealed even from the publishers, has fallen into his or her stride (we mix metaphors fearfully,) and the full effect of the manner is apparent—a manner admirably adapted to the material. For these are rude countries and the ways of them direct. And the refining of Kin Severne out of the utter savagery of his youth is no subject to handle with kid gloves. What the end of it all is it is no part of our business to set out here, but it is an end which shows in the author a rather astounding measure of courage. There are points about the story that are a bit beyond our philosophy, any way.

Haddington's malevolence seems, for instance, to overcome his self-interest, and the ethics of Kin's devotion to honor—to his passed word when he had sworn to his own hurt—is not, in the circumstances in which he finds himself, quite clear. Taking the author's viewpoint for granted, the drama is tremendously impressive. And in any case, the story is one that gets the reader firmly by the human part of him and plays upon his emotions and his sympathies. If the sharply accented style is overdone, as already noted, many things are admirably said—some superlatively—and effects are produced—thrills, glimpses of the unguessed, shocks of truth. Wherefore, one may say boldly, it is a story worth while.

SOME NEW NOVELS OF THE SPRING.

OWEN WISTER'S STORY.

MR. OWEN WISTER, who wrote "The Virginian," has caught in his latest story, "Lady Baltimore," (Macmillan,) a touch of Henry James. As in the earlier book he showed himself a brave romancer, so in this one he proves the possession of a fine observing eye. "Lady Baltimore" is primarily a study of Charleston and the Charlestonians—those of the old school; secondarily a love story told with singular objectiveness; and finally a collection of obiter dicta on the questions of the day, especially the negro and the new rich. Mr. Wister chooses to consider Charleston under an alias—he calls it King's Port. But the alias is not intended as a disguise, and there's no possibility of failing to recognize the picture. There was, we seem to recall, some little umbrage taken by the Charlestonians themselves while the story was appearing from week to week in The Saturday Evening Post of Philadelphia; but Mr. Wister is at once so perceptive, so appreciative, so sympathetic, that those who have provided him with copy should have little to forgive. The charm of the old South Carolina city, with its lingering bit of that which used to be the best American society, has quite enchanted Mr. Wister. Not only so, it has set him to making comparisons with the thing which now pretends to be society. He recognizes that Charleston has kept a little longer—by virtue of isolation, perhaps—what all the cities which were once Colonial capitals once had; what in the first years of the Republic, when the country was still small, they shared and by intercourse among themselves perfected. It was a real aristocracy, he thinks, and really American, made up of certain families in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Virginia, Charleston, who visited and married much among themselves. And he finds in the old ladies of Charleston the finest conserved flower of it. To be sure, he admits that isolated cases of old ladies of equally fine flower may be found in New York or Boston; but it is only in Charleston that they are still regnant. That leads to much talk about the "replacers," "the yellow rich," "alcoholic girls," and so forth, which shows that Mr. Wister is a better impressionist than philosopher. His condemnations are too obviously sweeping. Perhaps he does not mean to agree entirely with his first personal narrator, Augustus; but you can't separate the two, and the talk is tiresome. More to the point, perhaps—though that delays the story, too—are the observations of Augustus on the "reconstructed nigger" and the feelings of Southerners on that and other matters connected with the late war. For Augustus sets himself to understand the Southern point of view, and does it very well. Plainly Mr. Wister has taken pains to get at the matters—sentimental and practical—upon which this view is based.

However, the attraction of the book is in its hitting off things and people in little illuminating phrases which flash this and that characteristic home to you. The felicity, subtlety, and nice discrimination in the shading of words, and something in the objective attitude, are the suggestions of Henry James already noted; but Mr. Wister doesn't get labyrinthine. The strain of humor which runs through the whole is a part of the author's attitude toward life.

The story tells how Augustus, who was a young man of good family in New York, was sent to King's Port with letters of introduction from an aunt who was a Livingston, (or some such,) how he met the old ladies of King's Port and took lunch in the Woman's Exchange, where a young lady of King's Port presided, how the whole town was absorbed in the impending marriage of John Mayrant, a young man to whom all the King's Port old ladies were aunts, to a young woman belonging to some family one doesn't know. This young woman presently appears, with many "yellow rich" persons and a motor; she is beautiful, she is a finished work of art, she is a most accomplished campaigner, and she has a young bounder of a banker in her train. The subsequent proceedings involve John, the young lady of the Woman's Exchange, the disapproved beauty, (whose father, a bogus General, ran away at Chattanooga,) and a number of interesting subordinate persons. It is the triangle. Lady Baltimore is a kind of cake.

"THE EVASION."

IT has been some time since the appearance of Miss Eugenia Brooks Frothingham's first book, "The Turn of the Road," but it was so far out of the ordinary that its impression is still vivid enough to make one open "The Evasion" (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.) with the confident expectation of finding it worth reading, and that confidence is not betrayed. The story is interesting, well constructed, and written with charm and spirit, but too many novelists attain, temporarily at least, all three of these merits nowadays to make them by themselves especially noteworthy or especially reassuring as to the staying powers and the possibilities for development behind them. There was something rarer and better than mere technical cleverness and skill in "The Turn of the Road" to make it hold the memory so long among its innumerable rivals, and "The Evasion" gives even surer evidence of Miss Frothingham's real power, of her possession of an insight, imagination, and dramatic intensity that are more than suggestive of the great ones in her profession. Her people are alive, they develop slowly and surely under her hand in the satisfying fashion that is found only in the occasional book, however "popular" the tens of thousands may be, and the story of their lives, as she unfolds it, involves mental resources in the author that are certainly not commonly in evidence among novel writers.

"The Evasion" contains a plot absorbing enough to hold one's attention tensely to the end, but it will be remembered longer for its vivid portrayal of the lives of the idle rich and the convincing contrast drawn in its pages between these seemingly useless members of society and the big majority that "counts." Miss Frothingham's methods are very quiet, her characters indulge very little in the extremes of either virtues or vices—the hero is not always heroic, the other man is far from being an unequivocal villain, and the heroine frankly shirks the higher issues at the critical point in her career—but it is this very moderation and restraint that gives the story its attractive semblance of reality.

The plot turns on the cheating at a game of cards by one of the two men in love with Gladys Lawrence—the evasion of a confession of guilt by the real culprit and the entirely too quixotic shielding of him by the other one accused. There is much of the unexpected in Miss Frothingham's mode of settling this unhappy state of affairs, and the ending of the story is unusual in its disregard of what is wont to be considered the necessary claim to popularity. It is not often that the villain has the best of it to the very end, but there seems to be no other way in "The Evasion."

THE PEERLESS HORSEMAN.

IN his new story of the West called "The Throwback," (the Outing Publishing Company,) Alfred Henry Lewis has gone back into a period anterior to "Wolfville." He has reverted, too—and one must suppose he has done it deliberately—to something of the manner and spirit of Capt. Mayne Reid. That is, Mr. Lewis has yielded himself freely to the old-fashioned romance—the romance in which the hero is a peerless horseman, the heroine as good as gold, the villain as black as ink, the Indians noble, picturesque, loyal to benefactors, the adventures thrilling and crowded—yet not productive of fatal wounds for any of the favorites. Mr. Lewis has not forgotten to begin with the description of a party crossing the plains; he has taken care to introduce the peerless horseman dramatically at a moment chosen to flutter the virgin breast of the young girl from the East, and he has remembered at the end to bring all the threads together and reward all the deserving with suitable marriages and the distribution of rich treasure. He has not omitted either the hero's faithful friend, talkative in the dialect of the West, nor the black-eyed Spanish maid, nor the soft-eyed Indian girl, nor the hero's great, wonderful horse, nor the heroine's swift and faithful pony. There is the gay Mexican ball on the great rancho, whither the hero comes clad in green velvet and bullion—though the house is the house of enemies.

There is the dance with the Señorita, while the men of the house glower and feel of their knives. There is the wild riding afterward and the roping of steers, in which the hero magnificently carries off all the honors—including the heroine's handkerchief—and there is the encounter with the cowardly villain afterward and the utter foiling of the villain's hired assassin on the way home. Also there is a buffalo killing, and a fearful slaughter of Kiowas, led by halfbreed Pedro of the Knife—the earless one—and a famous ride of the heroine with murderous Indians showering arrows after her—even piercing her white shoulder. She rides to warn the hero, of course, and he is in the nick of time to save her and suck the poison from her wound.

It is good reading, too, as romantic as Mayne Reid in spite of certain welcome modern improvements in the style of conversation, and the omission of the excellent Captain's passages of set instruction. Mr. Lewis has tamed his usual picturesque Wolfville language, but he has left enough of it to add spice, and he has introduced some very engaging humorous personages—especially a learned professor from old William and Mary College in Virginia, Ptolemy Doremus by name. Prof. Doremus is a man of quaint learning and high spirit, who finds the Western country full of interest, and readily accommodates himself, in spite of his old-fashioned manners, to the ways of the men of that strange region.

Of course the peerless horseman is the most important person in such a story, and Mr. Lewis has made of Alan Gordon, (alias Tom Moonlight,) the man who plays that part, all that the heart could wish. Tom is a very Mars in war, and with the ladies most dashing, gentle, and winning. Altogether—taken purely as a pleasant time killer—"The Throwback" is very well indeed. The title refers to the circumstances that the hero is a sort of reversion to type. He was born of a good family of Eastern Virginia, and parentally designed for the Christian ministry, but he had the blood of wild Highland men in him, and that led him to leave his father's house and take to the life of the plains, where the story finds him a mighty man of his seat and hands.

A DEVON STORY.

THE MAN FROM AMERICA. A Sentimental Comedy. By Mrs. Henry de la Pasture. One volume. Pp. 417. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $1.50.

MRS. HENRY DE LA PASTURE'S "The Man from America" will need no better recommendation for those who read "Peter's Mother," than that it is from the same pen and fully comes up to the charming impression left by that book. The author frankly calls it a sentimental comedy, than which no better description could be found for this fresh, clean, simple love story of the old-fashioned and well-nigh obsolete kind, where there is no villain of either sex, no problems of any kind to be settled, nothing but a pleasant picture of an agreeable set of people amid most attractive surroundings, where the interest is entirely due to the author's skill in the depiction of her characters and the wit or pathos with which she manages to invest their conversation and their relations to one another. It is only out of an abundant experience of life, a keen habit of observing and analyzing both men and things, and a special cleverness in presenting the fruits of all, that one could hope to tell with any appeal to his readers a story which thus dispenses with such valuable accessories as stirring incidents, thrilling adventures, and extraordinary characters, and the pleasure one derives from "The Man from America" is proof of Mrs. de la Pasture's attainments in these respects. It is not tragedy, but comedy of the most light and charming kind, with sentiment enough of a natural and healthy kind and wit enough to add savor to the sentiment.

It is, moreover, a cosmopolitan little group that the author brings together against her Devon landscape—a charming old French Vicomte, a fabulously rich American family, a sprinkling of British titles, and a generous quota of youthful persons of both sexes with no special claim to notice except through the pretty romances which they proceed to weave in pairs. The Vicomte happened to go to Devon because his daughter married an English Squire and he could not live without her, and he stayed when she was dead to look after his two little granddaughters. There is nothing better in the book than these three, their old servant, Pelagie; their thrifty French housekeeping, their tea parties in the garden, and we doubt if there is a more delightful old gentleman in the whole realm of fiction than the Vicomte de Nauroy, son of Chevalier O'Reilly, a naturalised Frenchman and soldier of fortune. The children are drawn most attractively, and abound in quaint speeches. Their first visit to London chaperoned by "bon papa" is inimitable.

A certain Mr. Gregory Griffin is responsible for an introduction which is nothing more than a very flattering review of the story that follows. It is an innovation in which there seems to be no particular virtue or advantage, especially when the reviewer is not so well known as the author.

A SOLDIER'S STORY.

A LAME DOG'S DIARY. A Novel. By S. Macnaughton. Pp. 311. 12mo. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $1.50.

IT is a great relief to find that the "lame dog," is an English soldier who has left a leg in South Africa, and not one of those piteously anthropomorphic animals whose tragic biographies have been so rife in these latter years, fairly twisting our hearts out of our bosoms when we are compelled to read them—and we never do read them save upon compulsion.

This very human "lame dog" is a brave and cheerful one, filling his diary, not with repinings, but with charming pictures, quite in the "Cranford" style, of his sympathetic neighbors. There is a romance, too, such as "Cranford" has not, unless one developed between Mary Smith and Mr. Peter, as we have always privately suspected.

The character sketches are delightful. There is the group of Jamieson girls, whose sole objects in life are to make other people happy and to get married themselves. "The different stages of development in love affairs is shrewdly noted and commented upon by the Jamiesons. The first evidence of a man's preference is that he 'is struck,' and the second, when he begins to visit at the house, is known as 'hovering.' The third stage is reached when the lover is said to be 'dangling,' and the final triumph, when Maud" (who "gets them all") "has received a proposal, is noted as having 'come to the point.'"

And there are the Miss Traceys, who in moving have "the handsomest pieces of furniture duly placed upon the outside of the van," and who, as it is well known that they keep three servants, never have any hesitation in going to the door themselves. Whereas, the Miss Blinds, who have only one domestic, "would seem hardly to know where their front door is situated."

Mrs. Fielden, the gay, pretty young widow and devastator of hearts, is very charmingly audacious and inconsequent. "Do you smoke?" asks the diarist. "No," said Mrs. Fielden, "I don't." "I'm glad you don't," he replies. "For years," she said, "I tried to think it was wrong, and then I quite enjoyed smoking, but there is certain effort involved in trying to raise an innocent occupation to the level of a crime." She avers, furthermore: "I look upon smoking as a purely feminine habit, like drinking tea, or having headaches, or anything of that sort. It was simply because it was so expensive that men took to it in the first place."

Then there is the young American widow who asks at bridge: "Col. Jardine, did you play the lost chord?"

"I know the tune," said the Colonel, "but I don't play at all."

"And how was I to know," he splutters over his whisky and soda, after she had left, "that she meant the last card?"

And there is the hero's devoted sister—such an ideal sister! And the delicious younger brother of the Jamiesons, who, on the strength of an eventless week in Buenos Ayres, "in dress and general appearance suggests a pirate King," and always alludes to that highly civilized town as "out there."

And—but one must read the companionable, pleasant book, warm at the heart with neighbor feeling and radiant with gentle humor. There must needs be a note of pathos in "A Lame Dog's Diary," but it is a pathos which has nothing in common with egotism and morbidness.

FOR ART'S SAKE.

UNDER the curious title "A Grain of Madness" (New York: New Tide Publishing House,) is issued a sort of romance of transcendental renunciation by Lida A. Churchill. The story concerns two painters, a priest, and a musician. The priest is one who, having forgotten his vows in the hot days of youth, has devoted his life to repentance and work among the poor. One of the painters is his daughter, fruit of his sin, though until the end she is ignorant of her parentage. The other painter is a man, a stern devotee of art, who takes the girl as his pupil and teaches her only on condition of her swearing to forego love for ten years. Even then she must marry none other than a painter greater than herself. In that test lies the sting—for, naturally, the teacher is in love with the pupil, and she outstrips him in his art before the ten years are past. As for the musician, he grows into great fame and serves by his love for the painter woman to whet the ardor of the painter man. There are certain mystic matters interwoven—visions and the like—which lead the repentant priest to become an evangelist of a rather unusual sort. He blossoms forth as the apostle of the doctrine that "unhappiness is sin"—a doctrine at least as true as many others. The whole story is rather incoherent, but it is written with a sort of passion—a passion born rather of dreaming, one might suppose, than of living, though there seems a deep suspicion in it of the quality of mere love of man and woman.

THE TRANSFORMATION.

JAMES BALL NAYLOR'S "The Kentuckian" (C. M. Clark Publishing Company) is a story of a brave young man handy with his fists and his pistol, a fine horse, a pretty girl, a small boy, a gang of horse thieves, and the underground railway. The scene is Southern Ohio, and the time a few years before the civil war. The small boy tells the tale, which is, on the whole, fairly readable. This is the idea: A young gentleman comes riding up out of the South on a fine sorrel horse honestly come by in his case, but recognizable as having been stolen from a farmer in the countryside. He knocks down a bully blacksmith with his bare hands first off, and thereafter undertakes to teach the district school. Also he settles down to live at the house of a drunken ruffian who has a pretty niece and a comic story-telling hired man. Love comes in at the window, of course. Also these humanitarian persons, the abolitionists, are busy helping their neighbors' human property to get away to freedom and a climate fatal to black men, and the ruffian's house is one of the half-way stations.

The young gentleman from Kentucky, whose own slaves have been sold away from him under the auctioneer's hammer, is gradually transformed by environment into an abolitionist himself, and eventually serves as food for powder in the Union Army. Meantime, however, there is time for a pretty lively series of happenings. Horses are stolen and recovered, plots are plotted and overheard, black fugitives are helped along, high words are exchanged, guns spurt lead, pistols crack, wounds are bound up by gentle hands, and songs are sung at midnight. There is a will, too, and arguments, and many dialect yarns by the comic hired man.

MORE OF MR. PIDGIN.

ANOTHER of the curious stories of Mr. Charles Felton Pidgin, whose "Corsican Lovers" was noticed in these columns not many weeks ago, is entitled "Sarah Bernhardt Brown." The publishers of the present effort are J. K. Waters Company of Boston, and the letter press deals industriously with a great many things. First there is a murder in the mining West—a singularly perfidious murder. Then the story skips to New York, with an entirely new set of characters. Colonel Orlando Hix of the metropolis is a theatrical manager. Major Thoroughbrace of some rural place is an angel. These two launch a company of burlesquers with Major Thoroughbrace's money—or, rather, money embezzled by that worthy. Whereby you meet a number of ladies and gentlemen of the stage and attend several rehearsals. The proceedings, conversations, jests, even the lines of the piece are reported with infinite detail and at great length, the intention of it all being humorous. If Mr. Pidgin's humor is very primitive his supply of talk and narrative (such as it is) is apparently limitless. So the thing flows on. We couldn't quite hold the connection, but anyhow the burlesquers get to a certain country town of Methodist proclivities and there are stranded. And Miss Sarah Bernhardt Brown (otherwise Winifred Winton, leading woman) went into business in those rural parts as a Lady Bountiful, which gives opportunity for "Old Homestead" humor and pathos, the poorhouse, the hired man, and all that, to a point far beyond the limit of endurance. Then the murderess of the West turns up, rewards and punishments are distributed, and Miss Winton marries her one-time leading man. The book is very long.

An Indian Story.

BLUE EYE. By Ogal Alla. Portland, Oregon: The Irwin-Hodson Company.

This story of the Western plains is said to have been written by an Indian. Certainly the author was familiar with the region of which she wrote. The tale concerns the fortunes of a cow puncher enjoying the sobriquet of "The Kid" and contains hairbreadth escapes enough to satisfy the most exacting reader of adventure. The rescue from the Indians of Blue Eye, a white girl, who afterward proves to be the sister of The Kid's chum, is the introduction to a romance which ends in the usual way. The interest is sustained throughout the narrative and there are occasional gleams of humor. Uncle Zach is a conventional philosopher of the David Harum type, but his remarks are apt and always bring a smile.

Soap Boiler and Aristocrat.

THE CHATEAU OF MONTPLAISIR. By Molly Elliott Seawell. Pp. 245. New York: D. Appleton & Co. $1.25.

Dame Fortune is often erratic in her choice of whom to smile on, and thereby hangs a tale. Louis Victor de Latour, of irreproachable ancestry but no income, sits at a window of the dilapidated Château of Montplaisir, which is his sole inheritance. Enter Victor Louis de Latour, a soap boiler with no family tree, but more than enough money to make up for the deficiency. He claims descent from the same ancestors as Louis Victor de Latour, and unblushingly offers him 300,000f. for recognition as a member of his family.

"It is worth 300,000f. to put the de Latour crest on my carriage without being arrested for it," explains the soap boiler.

"You may have it tattooed on your body if you like," Louis hastens to reply, and so this story of modern French life proceeds.

The antique Comtesse de Beauregard, with a predilection for youthful habiliments and abhorrence for piety in men, is not the most conventional character, and provides much of the comedy. It will be strange if this book is not one of the most popular for Summer reading, for it is sparkling with humor and is full of amusing situations.

Swinburne's Tragedies.

The collected tragedies of Algernon Charles Swinburne are shortly to be published by Messrs. Harper & Brothers in two five-volume editions—a library edition (uniform with Swinburne's Complete Poetical Works, issued by the same house) and an edition de luxe. The price of the library edition is $10, the format crown 8vo. It is hardly necessary to say that much of the very best of Mr. Swinburne's work is couched in dramatic form, though the dramas remain rather poems than plays. Volume I. in the present series contains "The Queen Mother" and "Rosamund." Volume II. contains "Chastelard," and the first two acts of the chronicle play, "Bothwell," the remaining three acts of which make up Volume III. Volume IV. contains, not only Mr. Swinburne's drama of "Mary Stuart," but the poet's essays on the life and character of the unfortunate Scottish Queen; while Volume V. contains the old English play "Locrine," "The Sisters," "Marino Faliero," and "Rosamund, Queen of the Lombards."

"Living in the Sunshine."

The Fleming H. Revell Company announces the publication of "Living in the Sunshine," by Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, author of "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life." The book deals with practical religious experiences and goes back to the style and purpose of the author's first volume. Mrs. Smith, although a Philadelphian, has been living in England for several years past.

UP THE AMAZON.

The Course of the Yacht Virginia Described by Richard Arthur and William M. Ivins.

A LITTLE book about the somewhat celebrated cruise of Mr. E. C. Benedict among the West Indies and up the Amazon in the Winter of 1904-5 appears with the imprint of E. P. Dutton & Co., and the title "Ten Thousand Miles in a Yacht." Richard Arthur, one of the eleven persons who made up the party, is the writer, and an introduction is furnished by William M. Ivins, another of the company—the same who was not so long ago pleasantly and picturesquely conspicuous as candidate against Mr. McClellan and Mr. Hearst for the Mayoralty of the City of New York. Mr. Ivins, who had business interests in Brazil and had visited and studied the Amazon country before, was, indeed, primarily responsible for the expedition, if one may use so imposing a name for what was really only a jaunt. Neither love of science nor hope of conquest inspired the cruise—rather the pursuit of pleasure, and this fact is abundantly evident from Mr. Arthur's narrative. A singularly naïve narrative it is, by the way, reminding one of letters home written by travelers more conscientious than inspired, better armed with good intentions than with the eye to see and the words to tell. The pictures, reproduced from photographs, are numerous and excellent, and the paper and print all that could be desired. The frontispiece is a portrait of Mr. Benedict, to whom the book is dedicated.

The party sailed from New York on the 15th of November, 1904, in the 200-foot steam yacht Virginia, visited Bermuda, voyaged through the Lesser Antilles, touching at Dominica, Martinique, Santa Lucia, Barbados, and so passed to the mouth of the Amazon. Then they sailed in their big white boat up the great river past Para and Santarem, and up to Manaos, where they spent a week and were hospitably entertained by the Brazilians. Mr. Ivins, by the way, has a good deal to say about the Brazilians in his introduction:

> The Brazilian race as a whole [says he] has come to be quite a new and distinct people in the world. It is quite as well marked as, let me say, the Spanish or the French or the Italian, and, I may even add, the English. Our people of the United States have as yet by no means been brought into such a degree of synthetic racial unity as the people of Brazil, but the Brazilians are infinitely more unlike the Portuguese, although they speak their tongue, than the people of the United States, taken as a whole, are unlike the English, for the predominant strain is Indian and negro, while the predominant culture is Portuguese, chastened by the more primitive culture of the other races.

Mr. Ivins adds that Brazil has a literature also—"a literature wholly unlike any other literature in Christendom, and as beautiful as any other whatsoever, even if not as rich."

One may gather something of the manner of the body of the book—the author's part—from the excerpts which follow.

> Among the many pleasurable sensations experienced by us in Dominica, there were two at least which I for my part shall long remember. One was purely physical, the other mental; the first was the joy of diving from the yacht and swimming in tepid water that looked like a sea of liquid sapphire; the second was the quiet emotion of watching the approach of night over the island. The sun sank, a crimson globe, into the indigo sea, and, disappearing, threw up a flush of delicate orange and violet along the western horizon and a faint pink glow to the arch of the firmament. The hills of Dominica on our east, but a few moments before luminously verdant, darkened to a sombre green, then to a vague black from which the green had vanished. And now a profound peace and a brooding melancholy fell upon the land from shore to peak. The glow of the atmosphere went out; the stars began to twinkle here and there in the heavens; the sea became dim and shadowy. Now the hills grew into an obscure slumbering mass. Far up the mountain side gleamed one lone light. Here and there a lamp flickered in the town.

That's a very unusual flight; however, chiefly the pages deal with the commonplaces of the cruise and the towns and islands visited, though sometimes they are concerned with the jests of the company—jests rather faint in the retelling. Here is a fish story:

> It was on the evening of Jan. 5, about 10 o'clock. The yacht was gliding through the sea at nearly 15 knots an hour and rolling about 25 degrees. One of the stewards was sitting in the dining room on deck forward. He was dozing and dreaming. Suddenly he was awakened by something swishing through the open window, over his right shoulder close to his face. Before he could open his eyes he heard the flop of something weighty on the floor beneath the dining room table, and then, to his amazement, he saw the gleaming back of a good-sized, tale-flapping, all-alive-o fish. A brother steward was immediately summoned, and then nearly the whole crew, and the fish was duly measured and weighed. The official report made him 2 feet 3 inches long and gave him 3½ pounds avoirdupois. He certainly made a famous leap to get out of the sea into the dining room. Allowing for a possible lurch of the yacht in his direction at the moment of his jump, he still must have leaped in a curve over twenty feet long in order to clear the railing of the yacht and the passageway between the railing and the dining room, to pass through the window and land under the table.

There are other fish stories; there is rather guide-bookish information about the Antilles, the Amazon, and the lives of the dwellers on the Amazon's banks; there are even some speculations about the future of the country, statistics of the rubber trade, &c.—but the book is for the most part a mere memento of the cruise. The returned Virginia dropped anchor in the East River on Jan. 30, 1905.

SHADOWY.

ANOTHER collection of powdered rose-leaf and passion-flower sketches by Richard Le Gallienne is named characteristically "Painted Shadows," (Little, Brown & Co.) There is about Mr. Le Gallienne something which causes downright folk to count him a thing of perfumes and poisons, the truth being that he delights in rolling the tenderer sentiments like a sweet morsel under his tongue—lingering luxuriously over the dear, sad taste of them. That is too epicurean a practice to be quite wholesome, and it infects everything Mr. Le Gallienne writes with an element of weakness aromatically evident. And yet Mr. Le Gallienne is an artist—sometimes an admirable artist—in words.

In this volume he expresses a number of truths—and more half truths—subtly and even pungently. He has wit, which is not always drowned in a flood of rose-water sentimentalism, and he has a poignant appreciation of certain beautifully sad psychological moments. For instance, in the first sketch in this volume, called "The Youth of Lady Constantia," he writes beautifully of the death of a woman's youth, "the glory of glories—womanhood standing on the last lighted frontier of the shadow—even yet it was Summer with her—but a step and it would be the Autumn woods."

So he translates a mood which must come once in a lifetime to all the Helens. Even the sketch in which this occurs, however, Mr. Le Gallienne spoils by giving it a decadent twist. The next, called "The Shadow of the Rose," is a rendering into prose of Andrew Lang's exquisite "Who Wins His Love Shall Lose Her"—a flower which will not bear transplantation from the garden of verse.

The fantasy "Poet, Take Thy Lute," is a shadow tale after the fashion of the symbolists—inspired, no doubt, by the like of "Aucassin and Nicolette," and "The First Church of the Restoration" is a satiric vision in which some remarkably striking phrases occur, especially one or two passages touching upon the Jewish race and its real and imagined characteristics. "Old Silver" is the idyl of a painter who loved to paint the sky line of New York as one sees it towering from the river. And "Beauty's Portmanteau" is another idyl—a satiric idyl this time, involving some amusing observations on the British aristocracy and the humors of travel on those "feudal" trains which on Saturdays bear the elected weekenders out of Waterloo into the "more distinguished parts of Surrey." This sketch shows, along with a fine perceiving eye, hardly a touch of Mr. Le Gallienne's besetting weakness of over-sentimentalization, and gains no little thereby. It is not necessary to go further specifically. Mr. Le Galliene's mark is his own; most of him is like the rest of him. If you have moonlit moods of your own—more or less decadent—you'll undoubtedly find times when he's quite readable.

HISTORY OF ALL NATIONS.

THREE volumes of "The History of All Nations" (Philadelphia: Lea Brothers & Co., subscription) are on our table now—so rapidly do the volumes of this monumental work appear. These three are the fourteenth, "The Age of European Balance of Power"; the fifteenth, "The Age of Frederick the Great," and the sixteenth, "The French Revolution and the Rise of Napoleon." The first two are by Prof. Martin Phillipson—his final contribution to the series, the sixteenth volume is by Prof. Theodor Flathe, the first of four volumes on the Napoleonic epoch which he will contribute.

Dr. Phillipson's volumes cover the history of Europe from about the beginning of the eighteenth century to the death of Frederick the Great, 1785; the record of the history of separate States being carried on further or shortened as may be needful. Dr. Flathe's first volume studies the actual French Revolution—the Terror—and the development of the republic to the eighteenth Brumaire; and in a second book, the rise of Napoleon to the Consulate and the Empire. The text of these volumes is succinct and yet interesting; the whole complicated history is covered without waste of words, yet without omission of important details. It is evident that the stories of events were written by men who knew their subjects. The illustrations are almost invariably reproductions of pictures of the time, and what they may lack in strenuousness and action they make up in interest as exhibits of the actual time. It is unusual for the bindings of historical books to call for notice; but those of the books before us deserve attention. The binding of each volume is typical of its contents. Volume XIV. has as the decoration of its side a group of the arms of the chief rulers of Europe; Volume XV. shows the Prussian eagle; Volume XVI. the crown of France and the Phrygian cap of liberty within the imperial wreath. The decorations on the backs of the books are equally symbolic.

MORE ENGLISH PROSE.

THE name of George R. Carpenter on the title page of a volume dealing with education at once arrests the attention and invites examination. The success of his compilation called "Modern English Prose" has inspired a new volume particularly designed to meet a definite need in the secondary schools of the country. ("Model English Prose." New York: The Macmillan Company. 90 cents net.) The authors from whom extracts are made comprise a list ranging from Thomas Malory, who wrote in the middle of the fifteenth century, to Robert Louis Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling, and include these Americans: Franklin, Webster, Irving, Hawthorne, Emerson, Poe, Holmes, Thoreau, Lowell, Parkman, and Bayard Taylor.

For convenience, not only of rhetorical, but of logical and practical examination, the extracts are arranged under such heads as will invite what follows being studied as refreshing and inspiring supplements to the departmental "grind" of English rhetoric as taught in the secondary school—the diary, the letter, description, narration, argument, style. The brief pages accorded to "Argument" show that its intent is only general, which is eminently proper, as the student cannot master this subject until he shall be well grounded in logic, which is not a subject for secondary schools.

The aim of this book, indeed the aim of all of Prof. Carpenter's works dealing with secondary education—whether addressed as aids and guides to teachers or to pupils as text books—is to raise the standard of English among students preparing for college. This standard is now so low, whether judged from a knowledge of English or its literature, that much of the freshman work continues to be devoted to teaching students how to write simply and forcibly their mother tongue, whether translating from a foreign language, writing a composition, or answering examination papers on any subject whatsoever.

A NEW RUSSIAN READER.

WHAT may be called academic Russian presents few difficulties for the student with a taste for languages as long as one remains satisfied to read public documents, reports of scientific societies, the best newspapers, and novels by the best Russian authors. Speaking the language or understanding it when spoken is quite another matter. This requires a long residence in Russia or a daily Russian environment—for there are many ways among Russians of speaking the same language, and many oral differences of place, class, and race. To be sure, this language with its numerous and complicated inflections for nouns and pronouns, and a verbal system of varied flexibility presents definite difficulties from the purely grammatical point of view, but the student's enthusiasm is constantly stimulated by a varied and simple syntax and a freedom of construction which at once appeals to the imagination.

One great obstacle the language presents to the foreigner rests in the fact that nearly all books which have been written to make it accessible to him have been composed by theoretical grammarians who confuse the student by a futile attempt to teach by means of analogies with classical and modern non-Slavonic tongues, where no such analogies exist. In order to study the Russian language intelligently and with pleasure one may acquire within a fortnight sufficient grammar to begin reading the language. Indeed, one should stick to the grammar only until one becomes convinced of its uselessness as the via magna to the language. The best method to acquire a reading and writing knowledge is through a book of interlinear or alternate page translation, but the abuse of this method causes it to be eschewed by most instructors. The alternative is a "reader" beginning with simple fable and folk tales with full footnotes explaining verbal and phrase characteristics, including, as far as necessary, a running vocabulary with a complete vocabulary at the end. Such a volume has just been prepared for English readers from the original of Profs. Boyer and Speranski of Paris, by Samuel Harper, ("Russian Reader." The University of Chicago Press. 400 pages, 8vo. $3 net.)

Mr. Harper is the son of the late President William R. Harper. He has spent some time in Russia and holds a diploma from the Ecole des Langues Orientales of Paris. At present he is an instructor in the Russian language in the University of Chicago. In the first part of the book he judiciously reverses the usual method and uses the text to illustrate pertinent notes rather than vice versa. Fully nine-tenths of the text is drawn from episodes, bits of conversation, and descriptions to be found in the writings of Tolstoy—a good English version of which should be within easy reach of the student, who would make the most rapid progress, but who has sufficient self-command only to employ it when continued readings fail to give the thought. A blankbook and pencil should also be constantly employed. Mr. Harper's book is a splended example of the typography which always characterizes the Press, the imprint of which it bears.

A MODERN GUIDE BOOK MAKER.

THE LETTERS OF RICHARD FORD, 1796-1858. Edited by Rowland E. Prothero. 8vo. Pp. 285. Illustrated. Cloth. Gilt top. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $3.50 net.

THE letters written from Spain to Henry Unwin Addington, British Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Court of Madrid in 1830, by Richard Ford, who may be rightly called the first modern correspondent, and author of the first modern guide book, have been collected and edited by Rowland E. Prothero, M. V. O., author of "The Life of Dean Stanle[illegible]he Psalms in Human Life," &c.

Richard Ford was one of the best known and most welcome men sixty years ago in art, literary, and social circles of England. An amateur artist, he was also an interpreter of Velasquez and a connoisseur of engravings. In fact, some of his drawings appeared in contemporary journals of the day and illustrated Byron's "Childe Harold" and Lockhart's "Spanish Ballads." He had a splendid collection of the ceramic arts of Italy. In addition he was an expert cook, and introduced into England Amontillado sherry and Montanches hams. Finally he was widely read, a gifted conversationalist, and had a keen memory and sense of humor.

Born in 1796, in London, he was educated at Winchester and Trinity College, and called to the bar at Lincoln's Inn in 1822. But he never practiced. He indulged his love for travel, which he was enabled to do by his easy circumstances. He visited different parts of France and Italy, and in 1830 went to Spain.

The letters to Addington in the present volume begin with the announcement, Sept. 30, 1830, of Ford's intention to winter in Spain. The second letter tells of the writer's arrival at Seville the latter part of November safely, "in spite of the Bay of Biscay, and all the dangers and perils supposed to abound in this quiet country by the good people in England. We had rather a long passage—twenty days—but were in a good ship with a good Captain. * * * We were right glad to be landed at the Rock. * * * By the way, before you leave Spain, you should see the Straits of Gibraltar. I never yet have seen any scenery to equal the African coast, so bold and mountainous."

It was here, at Seville, that Ford laid the foundations of his knowledge of Spanish life. And the letters that follow describe the various styles of architecture, both ecclesiastical and civil, which he studied with interest; the ceremonial origin and meaning of the religious functions; the pictures in the cathedrals, churches, universities, museums, private galleries, rare volumes, for which he ransacked the shop of a Greek bookseller in the Calle de Genoa, in Seville, and other things. He drew sketches of many of the objects he saw, and some of these drawings have been reproduced in the book.

Leaving Seville, he journeyed to Madrid by "diligence," explored "Don Quixote's" country, and then returned to Seville in May. Later, the Fords moved to an apartment in the ruined palace of the Alhambra, not having been suited with a furnished house at Granada, which Ford had contemplated renting. A tour was then made to Alicante, Valencia, Barcelona, and Zaragoza. In December, 1831, the Fords returned to Seville, where they remained for a year. Between January and September, 1833, the letters are dated from Seville, Granada, Tetuan, and Madrid, the last one in September announcing the departure of Ford and his family for England. The letters following contain references to Ford's literary activity, the death of his first wife and subsequent second and third marriages, the publication of his "Handbook of Spain," and other writings dealing with that country, until in the last letter, dated Dec. 26, 1857, Ford speaks only of his regard for Addington, a Christmas dinner, and the state of the people of India. Ford died at Heavitree, the last day of August, 1858.

The book has been written for the general reader.

MARIE ANTOINETTE.

Frederic Barbey's Book About the Exciting Career of Her Friend, Charlotte Walpole, Lady Atkyns.*

By Arrangement with The London Times.

THE Question Louis XVII.—the question on which so many novels have been founded—never loses its hold on the imagination. Lady Atkyns was the friend, or rather lover, of Marie Antoinette, and, shortly before her death, the Queen, refusing help for her own escape, besought her to look after her children. Thenceforward the kidnapping of the Dauphin and the spiriting of him to her home in England became the one object of Charlotte Atkyns's life, and her correspondence, only recently discovered and now published for the first time, has once and for all solved one part, at least, of the question. It proves that the Dauphin left his prison in the Temple; that first a "little mute" was substituted for him, then a scrofulous boy, who died as Dauphin in his dungeon; that both the Prince and the mute were released. But just as all hopes were rising, while Lady Atkyns, who kept ships plying on the coast, was triumphantly expecting her royal charge, she learned it was the mute who was delivered to her emissaries, and that the Prince, also liberated, had been taken away, why and whither no one has ever discovered. The probability is that the Committee of the Republic secretly put an end to him; the possibility remains that he was allowed to go free, to grow up, and perhaps to leave descendants. In that most exciting of all forms of sport, the search after documents, some one blessed among huntsmen may one day discover fresh papers finally clearing up the matter. Till that day fiction and pretenders may still enjoy their opportunities.

⁂

Lady Atkyns was née Charlotte Walpole, and she came from Norfolk, where, according to M. Barbey, the gloomy skies and the green grass foster sensibility. Accordingly the fascinating Charlotte developed a talent for acting, and at nineteen migrated to London and "came out" upon the boards of Drury Lane. She scored an immense success in "The Beggar's Opera" and "Love in a Village," and as Jessica in "The Merchant of Venice," and then her dramatic career was suddenly cut short by matrimony. She married a Norfolk Squire, Sir Edward Atkyns, and went to live on his estate, Ketteringham Hall, which was henceforth to be the scene of her plottings and counterplottings. Before long, however, she and her husband removed for a time to Versailles, and here she became acquainted with the Duchesse de Polignac, who introduced her to Marie Antoinette. The die was cast; "a current of ardent sympathy established itself between the two women"; and from that day onward Charlotte Atkyns was not a free woman. She thought she was the righteous champion of a just cause; she was really a heroic woman acting under a personal spell.

The strength of that spell—the charm of Marie Antoinette—has perhaps never been rivaled except by that of Mary Queen of Scots. Mary was dowered with so much more power of personality, with so much more fateful a beauty, that the analogy may seem overstrained, but the enduring magic of their sweetness, unexplained by portraits, or (save for happy moments) by memoirs, produced the same strange results in either case. They broke fortunes, they inspired life, they inspired death. Lady Atkyns returned to England at the outbreak of the troubles in France, but the end of 1789 found her resident in Lille, and for six years to come her life was an incessant journey between the two countries. Her dramatic instinct had not died upon the stage; the romantic actress and the histrionic woman were alike involved in the conspirator's existence that now began for her, her aim being nothing less than to effect the escape of the Queen.

Early in the day Sir Edward Atkyns conveniently disappears from the story, probably, thinks the chivalrous M. Barbey, because of his own infidelities; and, from the outset, his wife was at liberty to sacrifice her fortune and her strength for the sake of the ill-starred Queen. She went to Paris—she moved heaven and earth—she got into the Concièrgerie, in 1793, in the costume of a National Guard. She "was to content herself with offering a bouquet to the Queen," but at the critical moment, "under the stress of intense emotion," she unfortunately let a note fall out from among the flowers, and only redeemed her blunder by swallowing it whole. Her training at Drury Lane was not for nothing. However, she was rudely expelled. A second time she gained access to her royal mistress, and on this occasion had an interview with her. She pressed the Queen to escape—all was ready. But Marie Antoinette refused firmly; she would neither desert her children nor endanger the life of another. All that she did was to commend the Dauphin to the care of her faithful friend.

It was thus that this sacred charge became the motive of that friend's existence after the Queen's execution. Lady Atkyns developed into the centre, the organizer, the financier of a series of complicated intrigues to effect the deliverance of the Prince and to leave a substitute in his cell. Her aides de camp were few and fervent. The two chief ones were inclined to be in love with her, and quarreled with each other in consequence—the one being the Chevalier Notté, afterward a leader of the Chouans; the other M. Cormier, a solid, impetuous Breton magistrate. The least trusted, the most active member of the band, was the restless "Little Baron," the Baron d'Auerweck, a never-resting and ubiquitous Hungarian agent, who, years after all the game was over, was imprisoned by Napoleon for seven years without real trial, on account of his former indiscretions.

The volume before us mainly consists of the correspondence of these conspirators with their quixotic feminine employer, and we confess that their letters are dull. A web of intrigue seldom makes good reading, however interesting the cause of the manoeuvrings, and in this case the drawback is emphasized, because, although M. Barbey is a good compiler of evidence, he has no gift for vividness. Had M. Sardou fulfilled his first intention, of which he tells us in his graceful preface, and written the work himself, we should have known more about its dramatis personae. As it is, the energetic gentlemen in question "bustle over Europe," like so many irregular verbs, and we hardly feel that they are human beings; and we might say much the same of Lady Atkyns, a more possible subject for a living portrait.

The result of her high-souled plottings we have already seen. Six years of self-sacrifice found her with no better reward in her hands than the wrong child. The fate of the right one she never knew, though to find him remained the dream of her existence, and the various impostors who claimed to be the Dauphin became her hope and her excitement. The last days of conspirators are always melancholy and generally inadequate. Lady Atkyns had spent £80,000 in the cause of the Bourbons; her estate was mortgaged; her spirit was broken. It is no wonder that for the last years of her life she was an importunate widow, (a real widow by this time,) and that she spent them in petitioning Louis XVIII. and Charles X. for compensation. But she never got more than a small sum of money, and she died, disillusioned, in 1836, with no friend near her but an old servant.

One incident cheered her later existence—her friendship with the tragic Louise de Chatillon, Princesse de Tarente and Duchesse de Tremville. This lady, an émigrée at Richmond, had survived all her relations and lived like a shadow only in the past and in her love for Marie Antoinette. Yet so strong was this romantic devotion that it still lent vitality to this sad ghost of a grande dame, and a letter from her about her memories (given in the appendix) seems now more vivid than all the action in the rest of the book. The letter was written on Oct. 15, 1797—the day before the anniversary of the French Queen's death.

> I am thinking sadly of her, whom I loved more than all the world besides, to whom I would have sacrificed anything. * * * That thought stays with me still, the thought of Her, of Her alone. * * * It is 11 o'clock now. Where was She then? I evoke it all—the whole scene, afresh. * * * To-morrow I shall be alone all day; I won't see my brother-in-law, or any one else. My door will be fast shut, and I shall return to you.

The great feelings of the world do not pass like its glory.

MRS. WARD'S NOVEL.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD'S latest novel, "Fenwick's Career," now drawing to the end of its serial course in The Century Magazine, and founded, as was noted in "Topics of the Week" in the last issue of THE SATURDAY REVIEW, upon the story of the painter George Romney, will appear in book form some time during the first week in May. The Harpers, who are the publishers of the book, announce two editions—an ordinary $1.50 edition and an edition de luxe (price $5) in two volumes, limited to 498 numbered sets, with the autograph of the author and photogravure illustrations on Japan paper from drawings by Albert E. Sterner. Mr. Sterner's illustrations appear in the ordinary edition also. As those who have been following the story in The Century know, Mrs. Ward has departed somewhat from her high company of aristocrats in choosing a hero. Fenwick (who must be pronounced Fennick) is a painter in a little Westmoreland village, severely handicapped by lack of training and injudiciously equipped with a wife in his youth. Fenwick goes to London and there meets Eugenie de Pastourelles, a beautiful woman, unfortunate in her husband. Mrs. Ward's admirers, who are legion, may trust her to extract from the situation all her well-known effects. The publishers declare that they expect for the story a wider acceptance than was given to "The Marriage of William Ashe."

POETICAL WORKS OF WILLIAM BLAKE.

A Noteworthy New Edition of the Writings of the Inspired Engraver and Lyrist—The Story of His Career.*

Published by arrangement with The London Times.

WILLIAM BLAKE was a professional engraver of talent; a designer of imagination all afire and of an inexhaustible invention, a prophet and a mystic, a lyric poet of genius. Many of his songs can only be compared to those of Shakespeare. Many of them are unsurpassed by Shakespeare. But he himself never drew these distinctions. In his own eyes his literary gift and his pictorial gift were, so to speak, fused into one. From the first he wedded and welded his poem to the illustrations he made for his poems. His unflagging pencil drew designs and wrote out verses with the same ardent simplicity. To Blake language and design were but the two wings which bore him, singing, to a remote and illuminated Heaven.
